Record Civic Vote Likely

Several Issues Hike Interest

Victoria and district residents appeared to be taking a lively interest in civic affairs after voting began this morning.

Encouraged by good weather in the morning and still determined when rain fell, they were trooping to the polls in what may prove to be record numbers in some areas.

No one can know until counting of ballots begins tonight what is the catalyst firing the enthusiasm of the voters — hospital tax, the fight for municipal office or other issues.

But in Victoria and Oak Bay mainly, returning officers and polling clerks were being rushed in an almost unparalleled manner.

By 11 a.m. in Victoria 2,533 persons had cast ballots. This compared with only 1,761 in the last mayoralty contest four years ago. (In 1963 the mayor was named by acclamation.)

The increase is 43 per cent.

The 21 polling booths were almost constantly in use. Outside the Victoria Ballroom, the city's only polling station, parking was at a premium. Police were on the job keeping cars moving and expecting a long day of headaches.

In Victoria's 1964 aldermanic elections 3,657 voted—just 18.61 per cent of the registered voters.

In 1961, the last mayoralty contest, 10,004 voted which was 49.1 per cent of those registered.

PHONE TIMES FOR RESULTS

With the intense interest in the municipal voting in the Greater Victoria region today the Times tonight will provide a special telephone service on the results. Polls close at 8 p.m. and first results should be starting about 8:15. Phone number 382-3131.

Early Oak Bay Vote 'Double'

Poll clerks reported a large number of problems engendered by voters who complained they were not on the list to vote—but in most cases this applied to new tenant electors who had not registered. Many of them were confused by the enumeration for the federal election in November.

At Oak Bay by 11 a.m. 900 people had voted—almost double the number who had appeared at the same time last year.

Returning officer Ted Hart said, "I've never seen anything like it. You can't get in the building."

He's been involved in Oak Bay elections since 1936. He expects a record to be set.

Oak Bay has more contention than any other municipality or unorganized area in the district. As well as the hospital tax referendum which every other area but Sidney is voting upon, Oak Bay has a referendum on fluoridation.

There are 8,931 eligible voters in Oak Bay. Last year 3,507 voted—39.6 per cent of the electorate.

In Saanich returning officer Gordon Hayward reported the turnout of voters was light in the first few hours but said this is a pattern. Most people in Saanich tend to vote later in the day.

But even with a light vote, all the polling booths were busy.

"Voters are spending more time in the booths—up to five minutes—because there are so many ballots."

He asked voters to come to the polls as early as possible to avoid a jam up in later hours.

The 27,334 voters of Saanich must pick five of 12 candidates for council, more for school board, and consider five bylaws or referendums.

Retiring Reeve First In Line

Voting in Esquimalt before noon was reported steady and improved over the 1963 vote in the number of ballots cast. By 10:30 a.m. 322 persons had voted. (Reeve A. C. Wurtele was first in line, with Mrs. Wurtele.)

Last year the number who had voted at about the same time was 93. In the last reeveship contest in 1963 it was 175.

At Central Saanich, returning officer Fred Durant said the vote appeared "heavier than usual". Reports from North Saanich and Sidney were delayed — apparently no one had time to answer a phone.

Returning officer for Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, Sooke areas, F. J. Willway said voting was moderate; but he too looked forward to a heavy day.

RAMPAGING RIVERS

52 U.K. Counties Inundated

LONDON (CP)—At least 17 of England's 52 counties were inundated today as rivers swelled by 24 hours of wind-driven rain overflowed their banks.

In the Welsh border country the Severn River, Britain's longest, was more than 17 feet above normal and reported still rising.

Warnings of dangerously high tides came from England's east coast, hit by disastrous floods in 1953.

In London, a flood alert was cancelled along the Thames early today when the morning high tide failed to reach Friday's high water mark.

The Thames at Westminster reached its highest level for 31 years Friday. Then the water reached within six inches of the top of the parapet fringing the House of Commons terrace. Boards and sandbags were made ready.

In the Thames Estuary waves lapped the 21-foot high danger mark more than an hour before high tide.

When the tide receded at St. Helier Harbor, Jersey, the body of Paula Huet, 18, was found in an auto. It was believed the auto was blown into the harbor by the gale.

MAN BELIEVED MISSING

No trace could be found of a man believed to have fallen into a swollen brook at Matlock, Derbyshire.

In Yorkshire, floods brought chaos and threatened to leave more than 10,000 persons jobless for Christmas. Nine thousand were sent home at the giant steel works of Steel Peach and Tozer Ltd., Rotherham, after floods forced the plant to close. Production losses mounted to £200,000 ($600,000).

Another 2,000 workers were sent home when flood waters prevented them getting to the General Electric Co., plant in Mexborough.

At Beverley, the River Hull burst emergency dams and

BLASTOFF TIME 6:54 A.M.

Great Chase in Space Starts Sunday Morning

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — With their final rendezvous rehearsal a success on earth, astronauts Walter Shirra and Thomas Stafford today prepared for blastoff Sunday on man's great chase in space.

Things were moving so well toward the 9:54 a.m. EST (6:54 a.m. PST) launch that the Gemini 6 pilots were expected to take the afternoon off after attending the final pre-launch decision making session.

Forcasters continued to predict near-perfect weather for Sunday and engineers kept up the steady stream of "go" reports for the busy launch pad that only a week ago felt the scorching blastoff of Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell.

Shirra and Stafford spent four hours Friday in a Gemini test. They carried the simulation through the last big manoeuvre but stopped their make-believe flight about 50 miles away from their imaginary target.

VERY PLEASED

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr., who will be on hand in the Gemini nerve centre in Houston for the real thing, reported he was "very pleased" with the rendezvous exercise.

TORONTO (CP)—The blast off of Gemini 6 from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday will be covered by CBC-TV from 9 to 10:30 a.m. EST (6 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. PST) the CBC said today.

The blastoff, expected at 6:54 a.m. will hurl astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford into a 100,000-mile chase of Gemini 7 for a rendezvous in space.

If the blastoff is delayed the CBC will begin one hour and a half later, the time it takes Gemini 7 to orbit the earth.

"Everything went very well," said astronaut Alan Shepard at the cape. "No problems."

The powerful Titan 2 rocket and its 19-foot Gemini 6 pursuit ship were undergoing final checks today before the start of the final countdown at 3:20 a.m. EST Sunday.

Technicians planned to start fueling the booster a few hours early tonight to make sure it will be ready for an on-time liftoff. A delay of only 100 seconds would push the rendezvous try back from the fourth orbit of Gemini 6 to the fifth.

Officials explained that for every 100-second delay in the launch Gemini 7 would move so far ahead that it would take an extra orbit for Gemini 6 to catch it. If the shot were more than 300 seconds late, Schirra and Stafford would delay the meeting until Monday when they would be in better range of tracking stations.

But if everything goes as planned, Gemini 6 will approach Gemini 7 at 12:34 p.m., five hours and 40 minutes after launch. It would be a space "first" for the United States and bring it one step closer to sending men to the moon.

Gemini 6 will start out at least 1,200 miles behind Gemini 7. For most of the delicate rendezvous manoeuvres, Schirra and Stafford will be relying on radar information and tracking data fed into their own computer.

SPACE MEETING

But when Gemini 6 finally matches the perfect 185-mile circular path of Borman and Lovell in the darkness over the Indian Ocean, the pilots will finish the space meeting by "eyeballing" in on the blinking tail lights of Gemini 7.

If Schirra chooses, he may guide his capsule to within inches of its twin. All four astronauts should be able to see and photograph each other in

RUSHED to hospital Friday in Nice, France, was Somerset Maugham, 91. The famed British author, seriously ill for some time, had lapsed into a coma, according to his secretary, Alan Searle. Maugham has long since given up serious writing, spending the last few years at his villa on the French Riviera.

$270,000 Gem Theft In Britain

LONDON (CP)—Two gunmen and an attractive blonde woman handcuffed the owners of a jewelry shop in London's fashionable Mayfair quarter today and made off with gems valued at £90,000 ($270,000). The jewelers were Bermans on North Audley Street. Last month thieves escaped with at least £500,000 of jewelry from a Regent Street shop.

Cong Building Up For Saigon Fight

SAIGON (CP)—A major battle with a battalion of Viet Cong forces appears to be developing close to Saigon, military authorities said here today.

An American spokesman said a multi-battalion force of South Vietnamese troops came under heavy fire from .50-calibre machine-guns and mortars in Go Cong province only 35 miles southwest of the capital.

Aircraft were called in to support the government forces and flew 29 missions, destroying 47 buildings and damaging 29 others the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, there was only sporadic contact today after five days of heavy fighting between Viet Cong guerrillas and South Vietnamese and American troops in the remote Quang Tin province, 355 miles northeast of Saigon.

An official report in the capital said U.S. marines overran heavily fortified Viet Cong positions Friday night and reported killing 74 Viet Cong and capturing 24.

The South Vietnamese were said to have suffered heavily.

TB CRIPPLES HUSBAND

Quiet Dignity Hides Woman's Suffering

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

The woman looked utterly worn out.

On her shoulders she carried a long stick with about 100 fish tied to it.

With a weary smile, she admitted that the load of fish was heavy indeed.

But on her face was written the quiet dignity which many Koreans use to hide their suffering.

The woman's fish were worth 20 to 30 Won each, about 10 cents.

Every two or three days she goes to the country to peddle her fish from Mokpo harbor, and barters it for grain she gets at the village markets.

Her face is well-known in the country," her husband said, "and the fishermen trust her with their wares."

Her husband, a gentle intelligent man, has had tuberculosis for three years.

He is among 400,000 Koreans, a large percentage of them under 25, who are racked with the disease.

Before he got TB, the man had been an engineer for 10 years in an oil company and a shoemaker for another 10 years.

Now he was wholly dependent on his wife, and worried because she had to work so hard.

Although he was obviously in great pain most of the time, he could still express gratitude for the help he and his wife had received through Canada's Unitarian Service Committee.

Besides food and medical attention given the man by the USC, he and his wife had also been "less cold this past winter," he said, thanks to USC help.

By this he meant the flattened out cardboard boxes, packing cases for USC clothing contributions from Canada which were insulating the couple's shack.

In unexpected ways as well as with gifts of food and medical aid, the USC is able to help needy persons overseas.

Your contributions to the Times-sponsored Children of Asia Fund give hope to this couple and others like them everywhere USC aid goes.

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques should be made payable to the Children of Asia Fund.

Contributions are also being received at the main branch of the Bank of Monteral, Douglas and Yates.

A list of donors is published daily in the Times.

If it isn't 8 o'clock and if you haven't voted yet—there's still time t' join th' human race.

NOTHING TO EAT but a cold potato is what faces this little Korean girl for many days in a row. Her mother, whose leg was crushed in a railway accident, sells greens in the marketplace. Both depend on milk and barley, provided by the USC through Times-sponsored Children of Asia Fund, to keep them alive.

Periodically we hear complaints about Canada's national anthem — that it lacks the punch some anthems use to stir patriotism — like La Marseillaise of France, for instance.

Well, we're advised that Victoria Symphony Orchestra conductor Otto-Werner Mueller has written a new arrangement of O Canada using lots of drums and brass. He'll present it Sunday and Monday at Royal Theatre concerts, dedicating it to symphony president Jack Barraclough. Our spies say it's terrific.

Now if we owned a radio station we'd be there to make sure everybody heard it.

You would think Oak Bay would be willing to pay as much for its hospitals as for garbage disposal, says Pat Blewett, assistant administrator at St. Joseph's.

He's miffed because Oak Bay council urged a no-vote on the hospital referendum.

He says Oak Bay pays 24 mills for schools, 4.63 mills for fire protection, 3.9 mills for police protection, 3.54 mills for parks and 1.96 mills for garbage disposal.

The successful passage of the referendum on hospital expansion would mean a boost of 1.79 mills.

We often wonder why Canadian judges don't exercise more imagination in setting penalties. Perhaps our rules don't permit it. But we admire the two California judges we read about in the B.C. fish and game branch news letter.

Two fishermen caught littering were given a choice of a $200 fine or the cleaning of a quarter of a mile of shoreline. They filled a truck with debris.

And a man caught throwing a lit cigarette down in a no-smoking forest area was fined $25 and made to write a 2,500-word essay on the subject of forest care.

A few months ago Times staffer "Fearless" Jacques Rousseaux crossed from Vancouver to Victoria in an Amphicar.

Today you couldn't get him to go out fishing in the harbor. He's afraid immigration won't let him land again — here or anywhere else.

Jacques says all of a sudden he's a man without a country. He slipped up and let his Luxembourg certificate of nationality expire and he hasn't yet become a Canadian. He's hoping Luxembourg will renew his certificate as soon as he gets documentary proof that he isn't now a naturalized Canadian.

Frewing

We've told him to cheer up. When we get a chance to send a reporter into space, he's the natural candidate.

"Not a pretty way to usher in Christmas," he commented at Rotary.

We add an "amen" to that. Christmas was still three weeks in the offing when they came to our neighborhood.

Business Brisk In Colwood Area

Busiest place in Victoria district due to the voting today may prove to be Colwood liquor store rather than any of the polling places.

It was the only district store open and was doing a spectacular business before noon.

Under the terms of the Government Liquor Act, liquor stores were closed all day in Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. Beer parlors and bars were closed but due to reopen at 8 p.m. when polls close.

But in Colwood the beer parlors also were open all day.

A loophole in the act calls for beer and liquor outlets to be closed for an election in a municipality. But the Colwood area is an unorganized area.

A provincial high-placed government official told the Times the situation suggests corrective legislation at the next session of the legislature.

Shell Strike Ends

WINNIPEG (CP)—Employees at the Shell Canada Ltd. refinery in neighboring St. Boniface, on strike since Oct. 14, have agreed to return to work Monday. In a joint statement, Shell and Local 9600, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (CLC) announced Friday that a new two-year agreement which will provide a 35-cent-an-hour wage increase has been signed.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A weakening storm over Vancouver Island was giving some rain there this morning and spreading considerable cloud over the rest of the lower coast. In the interior patchy cloud helped hold overnight temperatures to the low 20s. The next Pacific disturbance moving from the Gulf of Alaska will bring rain to the extreme north coast Sunday. However, a ridge of higher pressure building over the south coast later today promises more sunshine for all of southern B.C. Sunday.

At Parracombe, Devon, Stephen Bray, 8, was drowned when he was swept away in the swollen River Lynn near his home.

In the swamped parts of mid-Wales, troops in amphibious vehicles took supplies to farms cut off by the floods.

Police warned motorists to keep out of four towns—Derby, Wigan, Burnley and Shrewsbury—because of flooding. One of the worst hit places was Derby, where hundreds of persons were evacuated.

CONTINENT ALSO HIT

The continent also was plagued by floods and wintry weather. In Belgium the Scheldt and Lys Rivers overflowed Friday and flooded fields in the Ghent region.

In Paris, the waters of the Seine were 10 feet above normal. Elsewhere in France, villages and roads were cut off by floods.

Five crew members of a French trawler were reported to have been swept overboard in a storm in the Bay of Biscay. In southwest France an avalanche completely isolated a mountain village.

In The Netherlands, dike patrols placed on the alert during the last two days were withdrawn today as water-levels subsided.

In Italy, part of an alpine winter resort was evacuated today for fear of avalanches as new snowfall blanketed the north and storms lashed the coast. Three persons were feared drowned.

At Cervinia 300 persons were evacuated from several hotels and chalets after a heavy snowfall on the Matterhorn.

Ultimatum Delay Called

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Doubts about the wisdom of an African ultimatum to Britain to reverse Rhodesia's declaration of independence became increasingly evident today.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia called for a delay in implementing a resolution the Organization of African Unity Ministerial Council passed last weekend. The resolution demanded that all African states break relations with London unless Rhodesia's breakaway government is crushed by Dec. 15.

'HECK OF A NICE KID'

Police Charge Youth In Axe Killing of Five

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 17-year-old youth, described as a "heck of a nice kid" with a history of mental disturbance, was charged Friday with delinquency in the axe slaying of five members of a family.

The youth was arrested after he gave himself up to a psychiatrist. He was to appear in juvenile court Monday on five counts of delinquency.

Shocked police said the hacking to death of most of the Osborne Kosberg family was one of the most tragic multiple murders in the city's history.

A veteran police officer said after viewing the trail of death through various bedrooms of the neat two-storey suburban house it was the worst violence he had ever seen.

Kosberg and his wife were found in bed. Their two-year-old son Vincent was on the floor beside the bed. Osborne Jr., six months, in a crib in the same room, was spared.

FAIR CONDITION

The body of Gayle, 11, and a severely injured Marianne, 13, were in another bedroom. The body of Barry, 15, was in a third.

Marianne underwent emergency surgery for head wounds in hospital and was in only fair condition. The baby was in hospital for observation.

Blood samples were to be tested to determine if the victims had been drugged into a deep sleep before the attack took place early Friday morning.

An autopsy said the five died of "lacerations to the brain, contusions and skull fractures caused by an axe."

Psychiatrist Dr. Bennet R. Wong called police after the boy was brought to him by Robert Estergaard, a youth supervisor of Central City Mission.

Dr. Wong said the boy had stayed at the mission boys home. Then in January, 1964, he was admitted to Crease Clinic, a government-operated mental hospital to which admission is voluntary. He was discharged in May of that year. Subsequent to that he attended group therapy classes at the clinic and elsewhere.

Dr. B. F. Bryson, superintendent at Crease, said the boy had a history of emotional disturbance.

PERSONALITY PROBLEM

"He was suffering from an emotional disturbance or a personality problem of the nature that one would probably find in many teenagers of that age. There was no indication his condition would lead to a breakdown or manifestation of violence at some future date. If there had been, he would obviously not have been discharged from the clinic."

Mr. Estergaard said the youth: "He's a heck of a nice kid, he got along real well with everyone. But he kept running away both from the home and the mission."

He said the boy phoned him Friday morning and asked him to meet him.

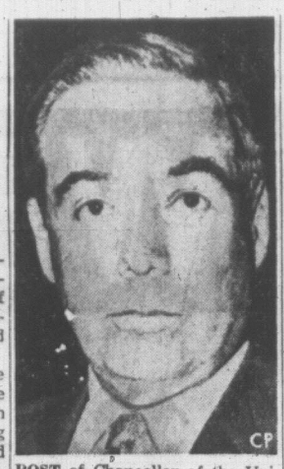

PALE, TREMBLING

"He was pale and trembling, he was doubled over with cramps and he kept holding his stomach. I thought he'd taken poison. Now and again, he would drift off to sleep."

At the boy's request he was driven to Dr. Wong's house. Dr. Wong called police.

Meanwhile, a family friend, Mrs. Edith Stonehouse, said the Kosberg house was filled with laughter Thursday night.

The Kosberg's were a close and happy family. The parents loved their children. The children would do anything for their parents.

LESAGE WANTS BIGGER CUT OF TAX MONEY

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec Premier Jean Lesage repeated Friday demands for a larger portion of tax revenues and his government's wish to initiate new social programs instead of using the federal-provincial shared-cost system.

In a statement to the two-day meeting of the federal-provincial tax structure committee, Mr. Lesage said a series of new shared-cost programs would reduce his province's budgetary autonomy "to the point where it might become insignificant."

He said that before any new programs are started new tax-sharing arrangements are needed to help provinces fill the gap between projected revenues and expenditures.

Rhodesia Rejects U.K. Plan

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) —Prime Minister Ian Smith today rejected Britain's demand that his government surrender independence as the price for reopening peace negotiations.

In an interview one month to the day after his government seized independence, Smith said Rhodesia would survive the economic sanctions imposed by Britain and eventually gain recognition from most world powers.

He characterized this white-ruled country as "one of the strong bulwarks against the invasion of communism on the African continent" and shrugged off threats of diplomatic and military moves by his African neighbors.

Smith said British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's demands Friday that his government step aside and allow establishment of a constitutional regime in the former British colony were not logical. Wilson made the demands in a speech to the British parliament.

FEET ON GROUND

"How can we abandon our independence? We have independence—that is a fact. We are the defacto government and I don't see how anybody can get away from that—not if he has his feet on the ground," Smith said.

Smith said the economic sanctions ordered by Britain had caused some hardship in his country, but added: "we are determined that we will overcome them. They will not make any difference in the end result."

When asked for his reaction to threats by member nations of the Organizations of African Unity to break diplomatic relations with Britain if it does not topple Smith's government by Dec. 15, Smith replied:

FLIRT WITH REDS

"Speaking as an individual I have not given it very much thought. But if I were a Briton and realizing how some of them, although not all of them, flirt with communism, and have abandoned principles which Britain stands for and cost the British taxpayer millions a year, I think I would heave a mighty sigh of relief personally."

Smith said he welcomed Britain's decision to send troops to Zambia, Rhodesia's northern neighbor. But he warned Britain not to attempt to take over the Kariba power station, a joint electrical plant which serves both Rhodesia and Zambia.

TEMPTATION got the best of three-year-old Mary and she had to lift Francis Cardinal Spellman's skullcap, Friday, during Christmas party the Roman Catholic prelate gave for children of New York Foundling Hospital. (AP Wirephoto.)

MAJOR WIN FOR CANADA ON FINANCE CRISIS IN UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada scored a major victory in the United Nations Friday with the overwhelming approval of a resolution calling for voluntary contributions to meet the UN's financial crisis over peacekeeping operations.

The Canadian resolution, co-sponsored by 18 other nations, was adopted by an 88-to-1 vote, with three abstentions, after the Soviet Union, France, the United States and Britain threw their weight behind the proposal.

The almost unanimous approval of the proposal, which also urges that the question of peacekeeping be returned for study to the 33-member UN special committee on peacekeeping, immediately deadlocked the committee on what to do with an Irish draft before it.

The Irish proposal was met with strong disapproval from the Soviet Union and France as well as from a host of other countries, including Canada, because it called for immediate interim financial arrangemennts to pay for peacekeeping costs.

The Irish resolution also would have the authority for peacekeeping financing and decisions placed on the hands of the 117-member General Assembly when the 11-nation Security Council reached a stalemate.

These two points in the Irish proposal are exactly the ones that had brought a split in the world organization on the question of peacekeeping operations which produced a deficit when the Soviet Union, France and a number of other countries refused to pay their share.

Despite urgent pleas from the Soviet Union and a number of other countries, Ireland insisted that a vote be taken on its proposal. Finally, a decision on whether to vote on the proposal was shelved until Monday.

ALBANIA VOTED NO

Only Albania voted against the Canadian resolution. Burma, Nepal and Zambia abstained when the proposal came up for a vote in the assembly's special political committee.

Paul Beaulieu, Canada's ambassador to Brazil and a member of the UN delegation, introduced the Canadian proposal Wednesday in an attempt to prevent a wider split in the UN on the question of peacekeeping.

The Canadian proposal will give the 33-member special committee, of which Canada is a member, a chance to complete its study of the entire question of peacekeeping before the next session of the assembly, when further action will be taken.

It also gave External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken of Ireland and the seven co-sponsoring nations of the Irish draft an opportunity not to press for a vote on their resolution which was certain not to gain the support of the major powers.

Only one major power—the United States — indicated it would support the Irish resolution as well as the Canadian proposal.

Canada felt the solution to the question of peacekeeping would be made more difficult if a detailed resolution such as the Irish draft left the UN member states divided.

Co-sponsors of the Canadian resolution are: Algeria, Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Iran, Italy, Japan, Mauritania, Mexico, Nigeria, Norway, Sweden, Tunisia, Uganda and Yugoslavia.

Man Charged In 1945 Hunting Death

KITCHENER (CP) — Harry Dietrich, 43, Wednesday was remanded to Dec. 15 on a capital murder charge in connection with the death 20 years ago of Elmer Battler of Kitchener.

Battler, a taxi driver, was shot through the head while on a hunting trip July 13, 1945, in the Breslau area. Dietrich was questioned at the time but released after an inquest brought in a ruling of accidental shooting.

A mental examination has been ordered for Dietrich, brought from London, Ont., by police officers to face the charge.

London police had investigated a report that a man had talked of a slaying many years ago. The man had been drinking, police were told.

3 Years for Fraud

WELLAND, Ont. (CP)—Three men were sentenced here last week to three years each in penitentiary after they were convicted of defrauding Atlas Steels Co. Ltd., of Welland of $1,264,069. They are Sydney Troester, 46, and Hyman Jack, 49, both of London, Ont., and Emmett Sullivan, 54, of Welland.

Vancouver to Get Illuminated Fountain

An illuminated fountain, much larger than those in the Legislative Building lawns here, will be built by the provincial government in Vancouver.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Friday the fountain will be erected on the old courthouse lawn in the downtown area. It will be a monument to the union of the Crown Colonies of Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland in 1866.

Earlier it was announced that the centennial years of 1966 and 1967 (the 100th birthday of Confederation) will also be marked by the province in Vancouver by establishment of a sports hall of fame at Exhibition Park.

Victoria is getting a $7 million museum and archives which is now under construction at Belleville and Government.

Mr. Chant said the new fountain will be designed by his department as was the $45,000 fountain recently built on the south side of the capital buildings here, but the Vancouver fountain will be "much greater."

The minister said several contractors likely will be involved but he did not estimate the cost.

CHINESE CROSS INDIA BORDER

NEW DELHI (AP)—A force of 350 Chinese troops is standing firm three miles inside Indian territory on the distant eastern front, Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan told Parliament today. However, India "will not be provoked to take any rash action against the Chinese at present," he said. Chavan said the Chinese crossed Thagla Ridge on the India-Tibet border Dec. 6 and moved south through the Namkachu Valley to Hatung La Pass.

40 Years Of Service With Gov't

Gordon L. Landon, director of the extension branch of the provincial department of agriculture, retires at the end of this month after 40 years of service.

Mr. Landon, born near Brockville, Ont., jointed the department in 1926 at Nelson, and since then has served under 11 different agriculture ministers.

He and his wife, Violet, were guests of honor at a farewell gathering Friday.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter presented Mr. Landon with a gold watch on behalf of the government.

"While Mr. Landon was with us many, many years, we are not really going to lose him by retirement," said the minister, "we are merely giving him an opportunity to get on the outside and tell us what is wrong."

Mrs. Richter presened Mrs. Landon with a bouquet of flowers and Allan Littler, chairman of the department social committee, presented Mr. Landon with a wallet on behalf of his fellow employees.

The gold watch which Mr. Landon was presented with was inscribed: "Service to British Columbia 1926 to 1965, G. L. Landon."

Mr. and Mrs. Landon plan to retire to Vancouver.

BENNETT BACK FROM OTTAWA TALKS

More Aid for Education

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Friday he is confident Prime Minister Pearson will make an announcement early in the New Year about increased federal spending on education.

However, the premier, interviewed on his return from the federal - provincial finance minister's conference in Ottawa, said he was not so sure the federal government would heed his plea for increased aid for hospitals and mental health.

Premier Bennett, who is also B.C.'s finance minister, said he and other provincial representatives received no reply from Mitchell Sharp, the acting federal finance minister, when they asked for more federal aid for hospitals.

The premier said the present federal share of hospitals costs is "unrealistic." They now pay 10 per cent and the provinces 50 per cent.

He said a proposal to include mental hospital treatment under federal - provincial hospitalization agreements is to be discussed later by health ministers.

"I'm confident we'll have the full co-operation of the federal government," said the premier.

Mr. Bennett also said there was no doubt in his mind that Mr. Sharp would be given the finance cabinet post on a permanent basis. It was vacated by the post-election resignation of Walter Gordon.

Prematurely Old?

THE ROYAL COMMISSION ON Bilingualism and Biculturalism is coming under increasing criticism for its professed intention to put out another interim report. The first interim report contained a mass of material of an inconclusive nature. It was conclusions and recommendations that the public waited for, not a voluminous compilation of the comments that had been gathered from end to end of the country. But the results of the survey, said the commission, must await further study.

Now a second interim report is announced, and we appear to be as far from the meat of the bi-and-bi meal as ever. In addition the commission is still travelling the country, receiving further briefs and petitions from the public, and presumably becoming still further smothered in the vast accumulation of material that has been gathered.

The chief spokesmen of Canada's people have long ago been heard. There is surely little that can now be added to their presentations, and the tendency inevitably will be for die-hard extremists, zealots and other highly prejudiced persons to hang on to the end, as long as the commission will listen. These cannot fairly represent the opinions of Canadians in general, so that so long a prolongation of the commission's hearings may well be a waste of time.

But a more fundamental criticism must also be considered. The Canada of today is not the Canada whose internal turmoil originally called forth the bi-and-bi commission. The commission's eventual findings may be similarly out-dated.

There have been important changes in the concept of Quebec's relationship to the rest of the country. There has been legislation which goes far to meet many of the protests which the people of Quebec were voicing. Above all, although our problems are by no means solved, there has been created a new racial climate in Canada, wherein Canadians of non-French derivation have received a fresh—perhaps in many cases a first—look at their French-language compatriots.

The establishment of the commission was itself a part of this new inter-racial approach. Since a major factor in Quebec's disquiet was the frustration caused by a lack of recognition and consideration on the part of the rest of the country, the ensuing widespread attention given to French-Canadian affairs in itself has considerably assuaged French resentment.

In this light, the mere appointment of the commission, demonstrating as it did a real concern for Quebec's interests, was in effect a partial answer to the inter-racial problem. As things now stand the commission would best fulfil its continuing function if it were to desist from churning out inconclusive interim reports and get on with the busine ss of quietly formulating its definitive recommendations.

Time to Show a Green Light

THE RELUCTANCE OF GOVernment to interfere in the initial stages of a labor-management dispute is understandable. It is usually based on a desire to have the two sides work out an agreement on their own without any feeling that they are being coerced by an outside agent.

However, in more and more cases nowadays it seems that government is forced to intervene eventually in order to produce a settlement of disputes, particularly in cases where the public welfare is concerned. Increasingly, as well, intervention is necessary simply to get the parties to a dispute to talk to one another since initial stalemates are too often followed by long periods of non-communication.

The current dispute between the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen seems to be a classic case in which the government should step in at the earliest possible moment and attempt to bring the parties to agreement. Or better, since the railway is government-owned, set up a neutral authority to assist with the problem.

This is not a case of a simple strike for higher pay but rather, as are so many labor disputes today, one in which a cumulative series of union grievances has led to a walkout. The railroad management claims it has asked repeatedly for an explanation of what grievances the union would like to discuss and has received no answer. The union, on the other hand, has requested talks with management or, alternatively, referral of the dispute to a compulsory arbitration board, and this has been refused by the PGE.

The result to date has been stalemate, spread of the walk-out and curtailment of needed rail services. And the public, which is vitally concerned both because of the transportation tie-up and the fact that the PGE is a publicly-owned railroad, is left in the dark.

From this point on there is bound to be a hardening of attitudes on both sides, a reluctance to make any concessions which might be interpreted as a sign of weakness.

The odds are that government intervention — even if only to get management and union together to discuss the situation — will have to take place eventually. So why not now before losses to both sides, and to the public, grow any greater?

Words and Deeds

THE VAST GULF THAT DIvides verbal expression of high principle from its realization in fact has been shaply defined by United Nations Secretary-General U Thant in his Human Rights Day message.

"There is," he says, "a brutality against innocent people caught in the clash of violent disputes between and even within nations." And he speaks of the "frustration of elementary opportunity and dignity among people who do not have enough to eat, who are not properly clothed, who unnecessarily suffer illness and disease, who do not have decent homes in which to live and whose children cannot go to school."

The statements of the distinguished secretary-general serve a valuable purpose. They return us to reality from the euphoria of many of our popular concepts. They remind us that whatever those in the more fortunate parts of the world are doing to help the unfortunate, we have scarcely begun to be our brother's keeper.

It is a humbling reminder, and perhaps an inspiration for humble effort—the type of effort which can be made in some measure by supporting such causes as the Unitarian Services Committee.

Faster, Further, Stronger

MANY REASONS HAVE BEEN advanced for the affection a grandfather bestows on his grandchildren—most of them sentimental.

There's another added today. Recent tests by the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation disclose that today's youngster of 12 runs faster, jumps further, and is more agile and stronger — a phenomenon that has arisen within the last seven years.

When grandpa was a young father out to discipline an erring son, it was hard enough to catch the boy. Now it's harder. If you can't catch 'em, you can't lick 'em, so you might as well join 'em—and be gracious about it.

"Daddy . . . name something that you've wanted badly all your life and costs about 36 cents . . ."

Canada Checking SEC Ruling

THE Canadian government is seriously concerned about the sweeping new regulations, applicable to Canadian companies, proposed by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. As an interested party, the government is entitled to make representations to the commission prior to January 17 and it has, in fact, taken the first steps in this direction by despatching four officials to Washington to obtain a clearer view of American intentions.

Western

It should perhaps be pointed out that the present situation is not an over-night development. There has for a long time been a feeling in the United States that Americans are often victimized by a traffic in worthless stocks, some of them issued by Canadian companies. About 18 months ago Congress passed an amended U.S. Securities Exchange Act which, in Section 12 G, imposed on the commission the duty of promulgating new and tighter regulations to protect the investing public.

Protests Made

After intensrve study, the commission made public its proposed regulations last July. Since that time a number of representations of protest have been made to the Canadian government by business groups in this country, notably by the Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The primary objections are that the SEC is casting too wide a net and in doing so is breaching Canadian sovereignty. It is one thing for the commission which wishes to have its stock traded on U.S. exchanges to register and to file detailed reports in respect to its organization, capitalization, assets and so on. But it is quite another thing to require, under threat of penalty, similar disclosures by Canadian companies whose stocks are simply traded over the counter in transactions over which the affected firms can have no control. This is what the SEC now proposes to do.

Extra-Territorial Authority

The assertion of such an extra-territorial authority (the new regulations would apply to any Canadian company doing business with the United States if it has total assets of over a million dollars and 750 or more shareholders) is obviously offensive whether the power is seriously intended to be used or not. But the immediate concern is with the practical effect of the regulations.

From the talks in Washington, Canadian officials derived an impression that the SEC is open to persuasion on the question of enforcement. As the regulations stand, companies failing to register with the commission would be liable to prosecution; indeed, their officers, if apprehended, might be subject to arrest and trial in U.S. courts. On the other hand, the commission enjoys broad exemptive powers under the law and there is a strong probability that its bark will be worse than its bite.

Doubts will persist, however, until such time as the commission does make up its mind. The indications are that it has no thought of starting a general pursuit of Canadian companies. It is likely to confine its attentions to firms which it has some reason to regard with suspicion. In those cases, it is believed that action, at least in the first instance, will be indirect.

The sanction will be a "grey list" of suspect, non-registered firms. This will be generally distributed to brokers who will be obliged, under the regulations, to warn purchasers of stock that the company concerned, though required to register, has failed to do so.

There is no assurance, however, that the commission will stop at that point. It may be under some pressure from public opinion, which has been none too favorable since the losses suffered by investors on the failure of Atlantic Acceptance Corporation. In the circumstances strong representations are probably in order and it is with these in mind that the situation is presently being studied by finance officials.

'MORNING AND NOON'

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Acheson Story

BY its nature the democratic process seldom allows the greatest men in any age to become the rulers of the state. Instead, it usually elects lesser men who won't irritate the public too much. The Lincolns, Churchills, Roosevelts and Kennedys are the rare exceptions. It is quite natural, therefore, that Mr. Dean Acheson should never have been considered for the American presidency. Whether this was good or bad for the nation a foreigner wouldn't know but assuredly it was good for American letters. No president could have written Mr. Acheson's books, especially his latest one. They are far too witty, ironic and indiscreet.

Hutchison

No Vote Appeal

You don't make votes that way. You only make literature and illuminate human events. The illumination of events in Mr. Acheson's case is startling enough, the illumination of the writer even more surprising. But it won't surprise anyone who knows the private man of infinite jest and most excellent fancy as distinguished from the rather frightening public statesman.

Here I am not concerned with the literary values in Morning and Noon, Mr. Acheson's story of his life up to the point where it became one of the most influential in our time. In passing I note only that it will be a misfortune, almost a crime, if he fails to complete the record of his finest hours.

However, this book, which comes so trippingly from the tongue, has a peripheral interest to Canada and a central importance to the world.

Mr. Acheson, it turns out, began his manhood in the Canadian wilderness, working on the railway with pick and shovel. It was a good apprenticeship to life. And since his ancestors had been Canadians, an extra asset to any man, he took into the state department later on an intimate knowledge of our country lacking in all presidents.

But the thing that strikes you most in Morning and Noon is the revolution of our collective ideas during one man's lifetime. While the word "revolution" is too lightly used these days, it is quite accurate in economic affairs anyway.

Conflict With Roosevelt

Before he had reached middle age Mr. Acheson, a lawyer not a businessman, found himelf acting head of the United States treasury at the depth of the great depression and at bitter odds with Franklin Roosevelt. Refusing, as a lawyer, to approve the president's breach of the law in arbitrarily (and ineffectively) changing the price of gold, Mr. Acheson resigned and apparently ended his public career in the cold fury of the Rooseveltian temper.

This breach was subsequently healed but the struggle surrounding it shows that a mere 30 years ago economic thinking in North America was primitive, almost barbarous. Though we forget it now, Roosevelt's original cure for the depression was a drastic cut in the government's spending. Throughout the election of 1932 and for a year afterwards he was preaching economy, denouncing public debt and blaming the pitiable Hoover for spending too much.

Revolution In Thought

The president, in fact, was instinctively a conservative in economic terms while his difficult young colleague had become a liberal already. These labels meant little then and mean less now but the heresies of deficit finance that appalled Roosevelt became his creed and today's orthodoxy. And the businessmen who thought that Roosevelt and Keynes would wreck free enterprise are doing better than ever. In only three decades the science of economics has been turned upside-down.

So, of course, has the foreign policy of the United States. In 1940 Mr. Acheson was asked for another legal opinion, this time on something more important than gold. Could Roosevelt legally give American destroyers to a Britain under siege?

The lawyer thought he could and must. Mr. Acheson was sure, long before most of his countrymen, that the collapse of British resistance would finally ruin the United States. Roosevelt got the opinion he wanted and the destroyers helped to win the Battle of Britain.

Old Concepts

It may be hard to believe now that gold and balanced budgets were sacred only yesterday, that the United States had contracted out of the world until December 7, 1941, but so it was. Therein the thoughtful man should find some comfort. For he sees at once how fast the American people can learn, with what astounding energy they can reverse the habits of centuries, with what clear heads (despite the clamor of the democratic process) they can meet any crisis and take any risk, as in Cuba for instance. They have many faults, which Canadians are never slow to detect and piously condemn, but an unwillingness to experiment is not one of them.

Few men did more than Mr. Acheson to prepare his people for the trials of the postwar era but as his book shows he was always thinking far beneath the level of current politics.

As the young protege of Holmes and Brandeis he had learned many things from these giants, including this private dictum from Holmes: "Man is the leader of the whole pageant of the universe! Yes, he is the leader just as small boys lead a circus parade when they walk ahead of it. But if they turn down a side street, the parade goes on."

Condescending F.D.R.

That parade went on after Mr. Acheson turned down the side street to a so-called retirement filled with strange memories. The memory which particularly interested this reader is of Roosevelt. Others worshipped him blindly, but not Mr. Acheson. Thus:

"He could charm an individual or a nation. But he condescended. Many reveled in apparent admission to the inner circle. I did not . . . To me it was patronizing and humiliating. To accord the president the greatest deference and respect should be a gratification to any citizen. It is not gratifying to receive the easy greeting which milord might give a promising stable boy and pull one's forelock in return."

Mr. Acheson has never been good at that sort of thing but he had one advantage over his great leader. He could write much better.

To the Editor

So Grateful

With all those various organizations collecting at this time in order to help others at Christmas I feel compelled to draw to everyone's attention the wonderful work of the Surplus Food Stall that supplies a hamper of food not just once a year but every month.

My circumstances have been such that I have been on welfare for many years. The hamper of food from the food stall each month means that another pair of shoes for a child or underwear can be bought that would otherwise be impossible. Those of us who are recipients feel so grateful not only to those who run the stall but to the many good people of Victoria who contribute and make it possible.—"A Most Thankful Recipient."

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

AT this time of the year holly comes to the fore in many a person's mind. Most of the holly grown in this vicinity is of the European variety. B.C. is the only province where it can be grown with any success, because of the climate.

Do you know that the male and female flowers are on different trees and only the female produces the bright red berry?

In England the holly tree grows wild and is found in hedgerows and thickets. It loves the bright sunlight and will not flourish in the deep shade.

There are many places around our country-side where you can find it growing in the woods, but you will not find any that has any berries. Most of the trees in the bush are spindly and sprawling; this may be due not only to the dense shade but to the heavy competition for nourishment.

The flowers of this tree are very small, four-petalled, white often tinged with purple, and grow in close clusters.

The seed is enclosed in a hard woody husk or stone and is covered with the bright red pulp that we know as holly-berries.

These berries are not only decorative but are sought after by many birds for food. Thus the spread of the tree to the forest, as the pulp is the only part that the birds are able to assimilate. The seed enclosed in its shell is deposited in the ground, originating the wild tree.

The holly is prized by wood carvers for its clean, close-grained white wood.

Arts and University

By TONY EMERY

A LITTLE red-covered book has just landed on my desk for review, and its contents have turned out to be so interesting and, to my way of thinking, so important that I make no apology for bringing them to your attention. The book contains the printed version of the Frank Gerstein lectures, given this year at the invitation of York University on the subject "The Fine Arts and the University," but I hope to persuade you that they are worth pondering even by those who are not directly connected either with the arts or with a university.

Emery

In his introduction the president of York University puts the issue squarely. "There is now acceptance by most people," Dr. Murray Ross observes, "that the arts have a place in the university—that it is good for students to hear good music, see good paintings, view good plays—but many academics believe this should all be done outside the classrooms, in a student's spare time. The great issue in respect of the fine arts at the moment, however, is the place (or whether there should be a place) for the arts in the formal curriculum of the university."

Varied Opinion

"There are many in universities," Dr. Ross goes on, "who would approve courses in the history of art or the study of drama in the nineteenth century, but who would not allow any 'studio courses' (practical work in painting, or drama, or music) in the formal academic program of the university. Others, of course, think that the whole range of study in any of the fine art fields is an essential part of the univerity curriculum."

The four distinguished lecturers, two from Harvard and two from Yale, addressed themselves to different aspects of this central problem, and for good measure their published lectures are prefaced by an article written a few years ago by the late Whitney Griswold, president of Yale University, on his conception of the place of the fine arts in the university. Altogether it would be hard to have assembled into such small compass more good ideas from better brainboxes than those to be found between these red covers, and York University's committee (I assume that there was one to select the speakers, for how else is anything done in any organization except by a committee?)—is to be commended for its perspicacity.

John Coolidge, director of the Fogg Art Museum at Harvard, believes "that in our day both the production of great art and the adequate interpretation of the art of the past requires the intense concern of a cultivated body of amateurs. The university must inspire these amateurs. No other institution today can or will."

Three Divisions

Coolidge distinguishes three kinds of activities in the introduction of undergraduates to the arts. First the history of each of these arts must be taught. "In the United States, the most satisfactory practice has proved to be the teaching of the history of drama by the . . . existing language department, and the teaching of the histories of the visual arts and of music by separate departments within the faculty of arts and sciences. This teaching has had phenomenal appeal." Then there must be facilities for the practice of the arts by any student who wishes to do so; and finally the university must do all in its power, by means of concerts, play productions and exhibitions, to bring contemporary work to the students' attention.

Coolidge probes mercilessly into the record of universities as patrons of the arts, and finds it "deplorable". "They have been less effective than the church, the state, or the business community, less effective even than academies or research institutes." And he documents his assertions in a telling paragraph.

At Graduate Level

Curtis Canfield, dean of the School of Drama at Yale, speaks on the performing arts, and makes this interesting assertion: ". . . professional theatre should be taught mainly at the graduate level . . . all participation in college dramatics should be extra-curricular, done for love and fun, rather than for academic credit." Admittedly he warns the reader that "mine may very well be a minority viewpoint."

Vincent Scully of Yale, one of the brightest minds active in the field of art history today, expatiates brilliantly on "the visual arts as intellectual disciplines." He sees no reason to defend the history of art because it "is clearly a humanistic discipline in the traditional sense", though he warns that "it is, I think, always a mistake to bracket art historians with professional artists in the same department." He wants to see painting and sculpture, graphics, architecture and city planning taken seriously by universities, and in this he is strongly supported by Eduard Sekler of Harvard's Graduate School of Design, in the fourth and last lecture. Macmillan's of Canada market this book for $2.95, and better value was never offered to the reader who is concerned with, or in, education through art.

SHOCK CURE

As an ex-smoker of only five years' standing, I hesitate to offer my own cure. Still, here it is. Go to some country like America or the Lebanon and smoke yourself brown with cigarettes at one-and-ninepence a packet. Then move smartly to Britain—and try to keep it up. Soviet Arms Budget Boosted; Historic Vatican Council Ends

By PETER MURRAY
Times Wire News Editor

Some of the chill returned to the cold war with the announcement by the Soviet Union that it is increasing its military budget for the first time in three years.

In a sharply-worded attack, Premier Alexei Kosygin blamed the U.S.

Kosygin charged the U.S. is aggravating world tensions by its policies in Viet Nam and Europe. He repeated Russia's concern over plans to give West Germany a nuclear role in the NATO alliance.

A meeting between himself and President Johnson would "not be feasible" at this time, Kosygin said.

The five-per-cent increase in arms spending by the Soviet is expected to curtail the current consumer goods expansion program.

The Russian people will undoubtedly blame the U.S. for this disappointment and new public demonstrations were reported in Moscow protesting the American role in Viet Nam.

After more than three years of deliberations that changed the face of Roman Catholicism, the 21st ecumenical was ended by Pope Paul.

The council, first in this century, was called by Pope John to renew the church and pave the way to Christian unity.

A total of 16 decrees were proclaimed.

Modern languages replaced Latin in the mass, the principle of religious liberty was recognized and the 1870 definition of papal infallibility was diminished by giving more authority to church bishops.

Steps were taken to improve relations with other Christians and with followers of other religions, particularly the Jews.

Decision was deferred on the question of modifying Catholic dogma on birth control, but Pope Paul indicated changes may be forthcoming.

In a humiliating setback, President Charles de Gaulle of France fell well short of winning re-election on the first ballot and must take part in a runoff vote Dec. 19 with leftist Francois Mitterand.

There was some speculation that De Gaulle might bow out in displeasure at the voters' rebuff but he confirmed that he will stay in the running for another seven-year term. The polls indicate he is in little danger of losing the two-way fight.

In the first balolt De Gaulle received 45 per cent and Mitterand, with the support of both Socialists and Communists, came second with a surprising 32 per cent.

His detractors hoped that De Gaulle will profit from his reversal and modify his ultra-nationalism and high-handed international relations.

Two American astronauts were put in orbit aboard a Gemini spacecraft on a 14-day endurance mission and preparations were rushed to put up a second two-man Gemini craft for a rendezvous.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson refused to bow to an ultimatum from a group of African nations on Rhodesia and decided to risk the possibility of a mass walkout from the Commonwealth of its 16 non-white countries.

The Organization of African Unity, after a meeting in Ethiopia, said its 36 members would break off diplomatic relations with London if Britain did not crush Premier Ian Smith's white-minority government by Dec. 15.

Wilson said Britain would continue to rely on economic sanctions to bring the Smith regime to its knees and would "not be pressured into starting a war which we believe to be wrong."

His position was strengthened during the week by signs of wavering among the African nations on the hard line taken at Addis Ababa, and indications that the economic pinch is beginning to be felt in Rhodesia.

●

An economic squeeze of another kind was felt in Canada.

In an attempt to cut its balance-of-payments deficit, the U.S. government asked American business firms to reduce foreign investments in the coming year.

At the same time the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank, without the approval of the Johnson administration, raised the discount rate to reduce the threat of inflation from the current economic boom.

The Bank of Canada followed by boosting the bank rate in this country, which will mean a general increase in the cost of borrowing money at all levels of the economy.

People Blame Big Profits For High Cost of Living

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

More Canadians today blame "big profits" for the currently high prices in this country than they did eight years ago.

Nearly five in ten people say big profits account for today's high prices. In 1957, only three in ten felt this way.

Twenty-four per cent of adults claim that high wages contribute to the rising cost of living. Eight years ago about the same proportion (25%) blamed high wages.

The working man and the farmer feel most strongly that big profits are the cause for increased prices. However, these two segments of our society do not see eye-to-eye on the subject of high wages. Thirty-three per cent of farmers blame high wages for high prices and only 19% of labor feels high wages contribute to spiralling prices.

The question: "Do you think the main cause of high prices in Canada is high wages, big profits, or some other cause?"

A Land of Rough Grandeur And the Spirit of Pioneers

By ART STOTT

A PREVAILING wind these December days sweeps down from Alaska's Prince of Wales Island over grey-green Dixon Entrance to pile a rolling surf on the North Beach of Graham Island in the Queen Charlottes.

Stott

The scene, as I saw it at the beginning of this week, has a desolate grandeur. The water of the Hiellen River, rushing clear, cold and brown from the muskeg country, cuts a channel through the sand at the eastern base of the towering bluff they call Tow Hill. The beach, a quarter-mile wide at low tide, stretches into misty distance running to Rose Spit.

Harsh, tough grass grows high and yellow above the tideline of drift logs. Behind it the scrub trees of the bank lift to the lofty evergreen forests of the island.

In a tropical or more temperate region, this would be one of nature's playgrounds. On the shore of Canada's extreme northwest island, it is a place to which members of a sparse population come in warm summers to picnic. At other times fishermen seeking trout or steelhead make a lonely pilgrimage to the river estuary, and to the sands troop workers who dig razor clams commercially for the Masset cannery.

The gulls wheel through clean, raw air. They are joined occasionally by small aircraft, pleasure-riding or carrying passengers to remote points.

★ ★ ★

This is a land to which the small plane has brought dramatic, often storm-interrupted, communication. You fly there at the whim of the wind, high seas and fog. Roads, some of them gravelled, the rest dirt, are beginning to lace in loose mesh settlements to logging operations and community to community. Much of the territory is still inaccessible except by boat or aircraft.

Aviation may be a generation away from pioneer bush-flying. The planes no doubt are better. But there is enough improvisation there to make it adventure for anyone accustomed to the city airport.

To leave Masset you pass over a causeway cutting across Delkatla Inlet, and reach a small thumb of land jutting into the basin. A cement ramp, similar to those used by sports fishermen here, leads into the water.

When flying is possible, a Grumman Goose slides in over the treetops, drops to the water, roars in to the ramp and waddles up it. Passengers and freight go aboard and you roll down the ramp, across the water and thunder back into the air.

Below, the cover of the island assumes texture, a green carpet of fine trees—logging provides something less than half the Charlottes' economic base. Large splotches of muskeg, russet at this season, mar the covering. Lakes sparkle when the sun breaks through and at a distance the sea glimmers.

Airborne, the pilot completes his manipulation of cranks, switches and levers then reaches for his radio phone. On our trip he was diverted to North Sewell, deep in the pouch of Masset Inlet.

★ ★ ★

To reach the settlement of unpainted buildings we circled over the water, slid down to the surface, and I looked for the landing ramp. There was none. Four passengers in town clothes and shoes without calks ran huge slippery logs, lashed end to end, to the deep water where tide and wind were pulling at our aircraft. On the third run we made contact and lifted to the air again headed for Sandspit. There a single tarmac runway accommodates larger planes—when it's not blowing too hard.

You settle back in your seat, realizing you have glimpsed, but only glimpsed, a land of rich natural potential, narrow economic base—fishing is still the most important industry—and the new generation of an old breed of pioneers.

In Masset, where Ray Hanson, former Victoria baseball star, has just been returned as village commission chairman, they have electric power, dependent on the limitations of a struggling private utility. They also have running water, when the wells and pumps operate efficiently. And they have other hard-earned urban amenities.

More important, they have people who find satisfaction in expanding a developing community from the resources at hand. Not many of the men wear white shirts and ties. Their work doesn't lend itself to business suits. But they dig into their physical labors. They fake the gambles of a pioneering society. And somehow you feel that they are the stuff that created an earlier Canadian nation.

HANSELL LED SOCREDS TO VICTORY IN B.C.

By AL FORREST
Times Staff Writer

It was a stormy Social Credit convention that day on April 26, 1952, when Alberta MP Rev. E. G. Hansell was elected to lead the surging B.C. party into the election that defeated the Coalition government.

But it turned out to be a good move.

Mr. Hansell led Social Credit to power in the June 12 voting and then stepped aside so the 19 elected MLAs could select their own chief.

Newly-elected Social Credit MLA W. A. C. Bennett edged out P. A. Gaglardi 10-9 to succeed Mr. Hansell and become premier.

Mr. Hansell had served as member of Parliament since 1935 and he continued public service in the Alberta legislature after his first federal defeat in 1958. He worked hard until illness forced his retirement.

He died Friday in Calgary at age 70.

That decision in 1952 to name Mr. Hansell campaign leader was not made without protest.

Some delegates to the New Westminster meeting argued that while the long-time Macleod MP was a great organizer and colorful speaker, a B.C. person should be named leader.

Mr. Bennett was nominated. So were W. N. Chant (now works minister), B.C. Social Credit League President Lyle Wicks, and national Socred leader Solon Low. All withdrew in favor of Mr. Hansell.

The strong hand of Alberta Premier E. C. Manning was evident in Mr. Hansell's selection as leader.

Premier Manning's Social Credit League sent a letter to the convention saying that all manner of support would be forthcoming from Alberta — if someone from outside B.C. were named leader.

Some delegates called the letter "an ultimatum" but it won the day.

Rural delegates to the convention, many of them former Alberta farmers, solidly backed the Alberta Social Credit proposal and helped elect Mr. Hansell.

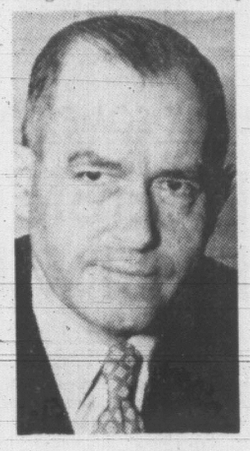

Some city delegates protested.

After Mr. Hansell was elected, one urban delegate said:

"They've undone all our hard work. Social Credit is finished before it had a chance to show itself. Election of an outsider was the worst possible move."

The delegate was wrong.

All Social Credit workers united behind Mr. Hansell, leaving personal leadership ambitions in the background until the votes were counted.

REV. E. G. HANSELL
. . . led B.C. Socreds

Mr. Hansell ran a sparkling campaign and brought unity into a fast-growing party that had never elected a member in B.C. to that point.

Then, his work completed, he stepped into the background, leaving Social Credit firmly in the saddle. The party has continued to grow on the framework he left.

Mr. Hansell was born in Norwich, England, coming to Canada in 1904. He received bachelor and doctor of divinity degrees at Alberta Bible College. He also attended the Bible Institute of Los Angeles and Southern Divinity School at Dallas, Texas. He became minister of Church of Christ in Alberta and was first elected to Ottawa in 1935.

U.S. Investment Formula Interpretation Uncertain

By MAURICE WESTERN Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — While Canadian officials are hopeful that the foreign investment formula announced last weekend in Washington will not unduly squeeze the Canadian economy, they are very much in the dark on one important question.

Western

No one knows how to translate the formula into meaningful dollar figures.

It is a nagging question because the United States, in effect, underwrites our huge balance of payments deficit by the free flow of investment capital into this country.

In its effort to meet its own payments problem, the United States government has laid down guidelines for companies, requiring them to limit the amount of funds sent abroad for direct investment, plus the amount retained abroad for capital expansion, to 135 per cent of the average figure for 1962 through 1964.

What precisely does this mean? The impression is that there will be available for investment in Canada in 1965-66 approximately $300 millions more than the average for the three stated years.

But this figure, much bandied about in Ottawa, was described to me by a responsible official as "very, very dubious."

The basic difficulty is that the formula applies not on a country-by-country but on a company - by - company basis. Firm X is told that its investments in the whole world must not exceed 135 per cent of the figure for the base period. But it is free to make its own decision as to the geographical allocation of these resources.

No one in government knows in advance what the level of of earnings of a particular firm will be. No one knows in advance what proportion of allowance investment will be allocated to Canada. No one can estimate the general result of business decisions scattered through thousands of firms.

There's Still a Short Fuse On India-Kashmir Dispute

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
Times UN Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS — The countdown on a major new Kashmir crisis, UN people believe, is three to four months, and holding. Whether the "hold" continues, and if so for how long, will be the principal issue at stake in the meetings this coming week between Pakistan's dynamic president, Field Marshal Mohammad Ayub Khan, and Lyndon B. Johnson, the rough rider of the Texas ranchland.

The UN's interpretation of the Kashmir timetable is admittedly optimistic. On the surface, there is much less time.

A Pakistani ultimatum, delivered privately here last September, is about to expire. Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto told the United States and the UN they had three months to get the Kashmir dispute on the way to solution, failing which Pakistan would pull out of the UN and attempt to solve the problem itself — presumably by all-out war. The implication was that Red China would help.

If, as was assumed, the starting point was Sept. 22, the date of the India-Pakistan cease-fire agreement, the expiration would be Dec. 22

However, the time element in this Pakistan ultimatum, or near-ultimatum, was never wholly explicit, nor was it made public. Little has been heard of the threat of late.

UN people point to the fact that Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri has agreed to meet Ayub in Tashkent, Soviet Central Asia, early in the new year. This meeting could satisfy Bhutto's condition, they say. It could be a step toward the Kashmir negotiation Pakistan wants.

Moreover, there are other good reasons for snuffing out the fuse of the ultimatum, at least temporarily. Shastri is coming to Washington in January or February; and the UN has undertaken a serious on-the-spot effort to disengage the Indian and Pakistani armies.

However, even if it is not now burning, the fuse on the Kashmir bomb is too short for comfort.

The principal purpose of Ayub's trip is believed to be to emphasize to President Johnson and the American people just how short it is—and how formidable the explosion will be if the bomb does go off.

Few, if any, in Washington really need this warning. It is not on this point that the United States and Pakistan disagree. They differ on how to deal with the challenge.

Ayub wants the United States to focus its pressure primarily, or exclusively, on India with the objective of forcing a Kashmir compromise.

The United States wants Pakistan to release pressures now being applied, or at least to keep them tactfully out of sight long enough for common sense and reason to prevail over emotion in New Delhi. Washington is willing to encourage the development of those qualities.

From Ayub's point of view, this is asking a great deal. The Pakistanis feel they have looked in vain for common sense and reason in Delhi. If Johnson insists, to the point of withholding American military and economic aid, it could mark the final end of the American-Pakistani alliance.

Ayub feels he is under a deadline. Persistent reports say India is shortening the lead time for building and exploding her first atomic device—perhaps a "peaceful" device, but nonetheless an instrument with obvious military implications.

New Delhi denies the reports, but Pakistan remains concerned. If India were to demonstrate a nuclear capability, it would become unprofitable for Pakistan to provoke a new Kashmir crisis.

Military pressure, real or threatened, would no longer be a credible increment to Pakistan's bargaining position. And when both countries had the bomb, both would be effectively deterred.

Ayub thus sees himself in much the same spot President Kennedy faced in the spring of 1961, when prospective increases in Cuba's military might made an effort to overthrow him by exile invasion a then-or-never proposition.

In these circumstances, how long can Ayub be expected to wait, the Pakistanis ask, for some display of common sense and reason, as they would interpret the words?

The answer Johnson is likely to give, it is believed here, is — in effect — "at least until spring."

The chances of Ayub buying this proposition are considered fairly good. He needs until then, in any event, it is believed, to resupply and reequip his armies.

Moreover, Chinese pressure on India's frontiers is an important element in the equation, and given the severity of the Himalayan winter, this cannot be cranked up effectively until spring.

Ominous troop movements continue on the Chinese side of the India-China frontier, and indeed there have been some unpublicized border incursions; but Indian intelligence sources do not consider a major Chinese military move imminent.

So there probably is a little time. Whether it will be used effectively will be more readily apparent about a month from now.

Super-Salesmen Needed In World Arms Markets

By DAVID FAIRHALL
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — An 85-page report which, its author believes, contains "an effective answer" to American domination of the international arms market has just landed on the desks of Britain's ministers of defence and aviation.

The report is the result of three months' work by Sir Donald Stokes, managing director of Leyland Motors, the firm that has sold buses to Cuba and Red China.

The contents of Sir Donald's report are strictly confidential, but a direct answer to the Americans is likely to mean only one thing — a British equivalent to the Pentagon department run by their "super salesman," Henry Kuss.

His title is deputy assistant secretary of defence for international logistics negotiations, but around the Pentagon his title is "Kuss and Co." and his job is to help sell U.S.-made arms abroad to cut the balance of payments deficit.

Kuss is a professional salesman who happens to be dealing in arms. He maintains the sort of continuous liaison with his market on which most good salesmen depend, and he seems to enjoy as solid backing from his government, in terms of flexible pricing and diplomatic effort, as any representative could wish.

Santa Rides RCAF Giant For Visit to Far North

By KEN MacGRAY
Kitchener-Waterloo Record

THULE, Greenland (CP)—Santa Claus took the long way from the North Pole this year when he visited the isolated men of the Arctic weather and radio stations, the RCMP and Eskimos.

This year he rode into the last outposts of civilization on the back of 20,000 horses, packed in the power plant of an RCAF Hercules aircraft, with 13 tons of Christmas toys, foodstuffs and trees in his pack.

He travelled 8,500 miles dropping Christmas gifts by parachute to the men who staff the lonely outposts near the roof of the world.

Flt. Lt. Walter G. Burchnall, captain of the 75-ton aircraft, edged the four-engined plane down among the high mountains of such Arctic outposts as Pangnirtung, Griese Fiord, Eureka, Isachsen, Mould Bay and Resolute to make the parachute drops from 500 feet.

He and his navigator-radar operator, FO Allan H. Tarkka, combined their skills to edge the aircraft down through the clouds and swirling snow into the fjords where the winds blow at 70 miles an hour.

HURTLES THROUGH GAPS

The huge craft hurtles through the narrow gaps at better than 150 miles an hour makes the drop and pulls sharply up into the fog-shrouded darkness of the long Arctic night.

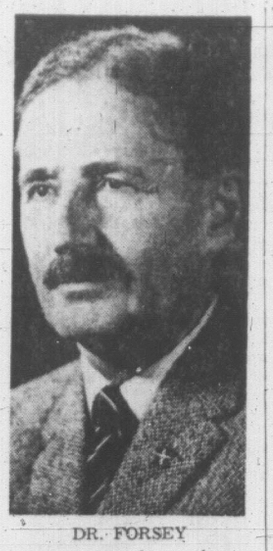

The flight includes 19 such drops in addition to four landings in the long flight to Alert on the tip of Ellesmere Island, farthest northland mass in the world.

Here, 4,000 miles due north of Toronto, the Eskimos and weather and radio men receive the only mail they will get for six months.

At Pond Inlet, at the top of Baffin Island, the men on the ground had written Merry Christmas in red flares in the snow. It is a cheering sight for the weary aircraft crew.

At Resolute, on Cornwallis Island, Flt. Lt. Collin R. Dobbin of Vancouver Island emerged from the plane dressed as Santa Claus. He is a burly, grey-haired pilot with a kindly face.

Eskimo children led by tiny Sarah Levi, 9, almost mobbed him. The temperature was 37 degrees below zero and the wind was blowing at 35 miles an hour, but it didn't bother

EX-OFFICER COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

BURNABY (CP) — David Louis Harrison, a former Vancouver policeman, was commited Friday to stand trial in connection with two Burnaby holdups in which almost $200,000 was taken.

Harrison, 32, was ordered to stand trial for the Dec. 24, 1962, robbery of $106,000 from a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and for the $88,000 robbery of armored truck driver Reginald Keen at a Burnaby department store June 22, 1964.

More than 30 witnesses gave evidence at the preliminary hearing before Magistrate Murray Hyde.

TRYSTE LOOKS AROUND FOR NEW PUBLISHER

'Pornography' Missing

University of Victoria literary magazine, Tryste, appeared Friday without a story which the printer refused to put into type because he thought it was "pornographic."

The managing editor explained that commitments to advertisers forced publication of the censored edition.

"But we'll be looking around for another publisher, said Randy Burgoyne.

"That's fine," said the printer, Charles Morriss of Morriss Printers Ltd.

The students plan to publish the story in the next edition when they find another printer.

The story, a satire on popular attitudes toward sex, was written by James Scott, a graduate student.

'Flexible' Policy For TV Urged

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Eugene Forsey, once a member of the Board of Broadcast Governors, looked back Friday on his BBG experience and came up with a one-word version of how to protect the public interest in television—toughness.

Dr. Forsey, research director for the Canadian Labor Congress, said Canada's television policy should be "flexible," but that an authority guarding the public interest must "prevent the hucksters or demagogues from imposing their views on this medium."

He made the remarks during a one-day conference sponsored by the Canadian Broadcasting League, an association of 20 groups that say they want better broadcasting.

The groups include the CLC, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Co-operative Union of Canada.

Dr. Forsey was among the first group of members appointed to the BBG, after its establishment in 1958. He resigned in 1962 on a policy matter.

The BBG would not authorize a CBC-TV outlet in Quebec City, and Dr. Forsey had supported such authorization. The outlet was approved in 1963.

'NOT TOUGH ENOUGH'

The BBG, he told the Friday conference, has been "insufficiently tough with private stations.

"On the whole, the people who run the private stations are a very tough crew and they are interested in making money.

"There's got to be real control and we (of the BBG) were really too easy. We didn't swat flies hard enough and often enough."

Any organ overseeing broad- must teach broadcasters "that casting in the public interest they do not bargain with the regulative authority," said Dr. Forsey.

The authority must hear and consider broadcasters' views, "but bargaining won't do."

'BACKBONE IS NEEDED'

The regulative function is a "stiff and difficult job" that requires "people with backbone."

In the interests of flexibility, said Dr. Forsey, some doors should be left open but "some should be banged and locked."

The league opposes the current system which gives Parliament power over CBC finances.

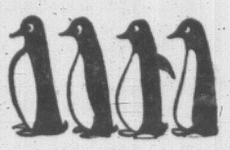

Dave Kirk, a member of the league executive, said such parliamentary control "is in principle wrong and dangerous."

But Dr. Forsey doubted whether the CBC could get along without advertising, "infurating" as he thought advertising on the CBC to be.

Diners Club Sought

LONDON (Reuters) — The Westminster Bank, one of Britain's five leading banks, surprised the financial community Friday night by announcing it had made a $4,000,000 bid for the British Diners Club credit card organization. But J. H. R. Boreham, one of the British company's directors, said club directors, who own more than half the outstanding stock, have already committed themselves to an earlier $3,400,000 bid from the American Diners Club.

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Three Artists at Gallery, Painters of Splendid Vision

The three painters currently exhibiting at Victoria Art Gallery approach their work with such different intentions, and produce such contrasting results, that it is difficult to mention their names together without becoming bewildered at the rich variety of contemporary painting which their works illustrate.

Skelton

P. K. Irwin, Herbert Siebner, and Michael Morris have a room each in this fascinating show, and to move from one room to another is to fundamentally alter one's vision of the world and of the role of the painter within it.

Nevertheless there are, once you become used to each vocabulary, common elements in these three languages of vision. Mrs. Irwin, like Herbert Siebner, is concerned with the presentation of a mythology.

Both artists present archetypal images that seem to be part of a symbolic vision of the Universe.

Siebner's images are many, but they are always closely connected with the theme of man as an individual, caught up in the drama of existence.

His centaurs, lovers, kings, and solitary brooding men and women, oppose their physical solidity to the bland indifference of infinite space.

Sometimes, as in The Making of Man II their urgencies of love and labor seem oppressed by the perpetual presence of the void which, paradoxically, encloses them and makes them cave creatures, cramped and distorted by the limitations upon human endeavor.

Sometimes, as in the superb, simple, terrifying Triptych, the human creature becomes dehumanized, made monstrous, by the machines with which he has surrounded himself.

Siebner's world is, however, public in a way in which Mrs. Irwin's is not. His creatures can be seen in our world of reality and possibility, gazing at us from behind a fence scribbled with graffiti, or caught in the lonely clumsinesses of love.

There is a sombre strength in the brushwork, and in the thickened lumpy textures of many of the backgrounds, that corresponds beautifully with the toughness and urgency of the vision.

It seems to me as if Siebner has painted all these works in a passionate conviction of the importance of the image. The composition, the overall disposition of form and color, the scale—these are all subservient to the one vital truth which is the image.

This image is always one of strength, clumsiness, dignity, and pathos. "The poetry is in the pity," said Wilfred Owen; Herbert Siebner might well echo his words, or alter them only a little to read "The painting is in the tragi-comedy of man."

If we walk from the vast stage of the Siebner drama into the smaller theatre which is Mrs. Irwin's, we notice an immediate similarity and difference. Here again are the big symbols.

A burning golden ball spins out at us from the infinite space within the frame of Dark Golden Glow. Light itself shakes and flows in the subtly vivid Sol.

In another part of the room a strange rider upon a mount composed of scarves of wind makes the gestures of Apocalypse, and in a painting called Cosmos the molten heart of image explodes into a mazy whirl and sweep of as yet undividuated forms.

Where Siebner becomes simple, bold, massive, however, Mrs. Irwin becomes detailed, precise, even fussy.

Her works are often created partly or wholly by means of a myriad of lines scratched into the surface of the work. It is as if the works were themselves composed of complex meshes of nerves — to quote T. S. Eliot, "as if a magic lantern threw the nerves in patterns on a screen."

Sometimes this results in an atmosphere of obsession. The paintings become self-involved and self-regarding to the point of making me feel as if I am observing some intimate confessional fantasy.

This is parallelled by my feeling, occasionally, that Siebner's images have become so monumentally simple, so brutally aggressive, that I must back away from them if I am not to be deafened.

In both these extreme cases, however, I feel that I am responding as the painters would wish. Siebner wishes me to be stunned by the courage and stature of man. Mrs. Irwin wishes me to be disturbed by the passionate complexities and fevers of the individual sensibility.

It is dangerous to refer paintings to literature or philosophy, but both these painters have made poems so perhaps this time I might risk it.

It seems to me that Siebner and Mrs. Irwin both face, with enormous courage, the human predicament, that the former has a Nietchean, and the latter a Kierkegaardian sensibility.

Their defects are similar. Nietche could become grandiose, and melodramatic. Kierkegaard could become riddling and hair-splitting.

Both were, however, great thinkers, and P. K. Irwin and Herbert Siebner are both fine painters with important vi- work again and that of Michael Morris next week.

A Challenging Book Surveys Our Problems

The reader beyond our borders will find in writer-editor Gerald Clark's 'Canada: The Uneasy Neighbor' a close-packed volume of views and judgments which cannot but increase his knowledge of this troubled country's past history and present dilemmas.

That the picture will be neither complete nor altogether without bias is only incidentally Mr. Clark's fault.

No Easterner, for one thing, can understand the West or interpret it with complete success until he has spent a great deal of time among us . . . about as long, I would judge, as has not-quite-native-son Bruce Hutchison.

For another, as a Canadian in the thick of the struggle to find an identity which our rather prickly national pride will allow us to accept, Mr. Clark is denied the historian's opportunities for total backward-looking.

In spite of these lacks, he has done a remarkably sound and detailed job here, and I hope his book's American sales will be of a size to match its horrendous price. It will help outsiders to an understanding denied us where we sit with our quandaries all in a tangle.

As associate editor of The Montreal Star, Mr. Clark has covered the provinces as few men before him. His pages, with their capsule interviews and statements both documented and caught on the fly, offer fascinating reading.

This is especially true when he writes of his home province. Montreal born . . . again we come to this matter of living in the land . . . he writes of French Canada with a sure and affectionate touch.

By the same token, he is occasionally over-generous in defence, even to the point of giving the average English-Canadian a blacker eye than he deserves in affairs touching on Quebec.

Stupid we may be at times, but this failing must be explained in part by the not notably apt Quebec approach to the rest of us.

Where this reviewer must pick a bone with Mr. Clark, however, is in his chapter on British Columbia. Here, I suppose, speaks provincial arrogance, but his treatment strikes me as too much that of the lecturer fresh home from three weeks in Russia. It's too flash, and even though author Clark endears himself to me immensely by quoting from one of my Times' columns, I feel he might have profited by a longer sojourn among the susquatches of Pacific Canada.

CANADA: THE UNEASY NEIGHBOR; by Gerald Clark; McClelland & Stewart, Ltd.; Toronto-Montreal: $7.50.

Reviewed by ARTHUR MAYSE

Except in his too-casual account of how our southern border was established, he isn't precisely inaccurate.

But he doesn't quite dig us, and he hasn't endured our company long enough to justify his use of the sobriquet 'Wacky' for our Premier Bennett.

Returning to Mr. Clark's overall picture, let me note that he deals much more kindly with Mr. Pearson than with Mr. Diefenbaker, that his grasp of Canada-United States relationships is impressive, and that he speaks out in staunch terms for the Bi-and-Bi commission and its works.

Agree with him or no, he has written a most challenging book about Canada, and one that merits a thoughtful reading.

Evolution of a City

SKETCHES OF OLD TORONTO, by Frank N. Walker. Longmans Canada Ltd., 1965, 350 pp. Illustrated. Index. $6.95.

Reviewed by R. H. Roy

Dr. Walker is a retired doctor of medicine with a passionate interest in history which, fortunately, his wife shares with him. Together they have done a great deal of research tracking down the social history of "little old York," and this book is the result.

Covering the period from the founding of Toronto to about mid-19th century, Toronto emerges from a clearing in the woods to the booming, bustling city well on its way to becoming the great metropolis of today.

This is a book which, quite naturally, will appeal primarily to Torontonians past and present.

Now and then when he strays too far from civic and provincial affairs, the author might raise the eyebrows of Canadian historians.

But by and large, it is a pleasant book—easy to read, entertaining, frequently interesting, and designed to please Torontonians with any pride in their past.

GIFT LIST

Special Interest Choices

Most opulent book gift for a musical member of the family comes from the Viking Press; its title, The Golden Horseshoe, and it is, as subtitled, "the life and times of the Metropolitan Opera House."

It is large and handsome in format and consequently expensive, but worth the investment for the opera-minded to whom it will be a lifetime treasure, a source of unending interest and information.

In superb photographs — a number full color—in sketches, and in well arranged and written text, the history of New York's famous Met is chronicled from its opening night, Oct. 22, 1883, to its final phase and the inauguration of the new magnificent opera house in Lincoln Centre.

To a lesser extent it is also something of a social history of the age for it reports on the changing scene in its impact on the life of the Met.

Several two-page centre spreads in color afford opportunity of studying costume and scenic detail.

The following — for Christmas and choice—are personal selection of Dr. R. H. Roy, one of our regular reviewers.

This is a magnificent record of the life of Sir Winston Churchill in pictorial form. Over 300 photographs, both black and white and colored, take the reader through the years of his youth, his long period of public service and ultimately to his death.

The text is reportorial and descriptive, well adapted to the pictorial nature of this large-size book.

In all respects, the Viking Press is to be congratulated. The Churchill Years is a "prestige" book which will be highly valued as a gift.

MILITARY

THE SHADOW OF VIMY RIDGE, by Kenneth Macksey. Ryerson Press, 1965. 264 pp. Index, photography, maps. $10.

There are few Great War veterans who will or can forget such places as Arras, Grivenchy, Monchy, Mont St. Eloy, Fresnay and above all, Vimy. All of these lay within "the shadow of Vimy Ridge," and in this well-written volume the author describes the battles which raged in this area during the Marlborough Wars, the Great War and the Second World War.

Rarely has this reviewer read a military history by a British officer in which the Canadians are so highly and so constantly praised. Written for the general public, but based solidly on factual accounts, this will hold the interest of any veteran.

NOVELIST Robert G. Harlow, 42, has been appointed permanent head of the new department of creative writing at the University of British Columbia. First of its kind at a Canadian university, the department was established last July. Mr. Harlow has been acting head and associate professor since that time. His second novel, A Gift of Echoes, was published by Macmillan of Canada. His first, Royal Murdoch, appeared in 1963. He wrote the scenario for the current Larry Kent film, When Tomorrow Dies. He has written criticisms for Canadian literary reviews and plays and scripts for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation which he joined in 1951.

Gold-Seekers' Adventures Factually Told

KLONDIKE SAGA, by Carl L. Lokke. The Copp Clark Publishing Co. Ltd., 1965: 211 pp., illustrated, indexed, $5.50.

Reviewed by Charles A. Perry

This is a narrative which deals with two years and some months in the lives of sixteen Americans of Scandinavian origin who, operating under the auspices of the Monitor Gold Mining and Trading Company, sojourned to the Klondike in '98.

It is a faithful, though in some respects a somewhat tedious report, extracted largely from diaries and correspondence, of the daily trials and tribulations of a group of sober and industrious young men who, while possessing all of the attributes which would normally ensure success, arrived too late for fame and fortune.

It is recommended reading for those interested in this era of North American history.

Broadway Hits Slump But No Panic Buttons

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Show business is having a tough season on Broadway and off, but producers aren't hitting any panic button.

"It's just one of those bum cycles that can happen to anything, anywhere," said one veteran backer, expressing the consensus.

On Broadway the main trouble is that no blockbuster hit has emerged from the new productions. Instead there have been eight fast flops out of 18 arrivals to date, representing an investment loss of $1,400,000. Another million has gone down the drain on out-of-town try-out foldings.

But everyone is not pessimistic.

"There isn't anything that a few rave notices and a solid hit won't cure," said one Broadway press agent.

Of the 18 shows that have opened, only four won majority approval from reviewers—and two of those were for limited engagements.

PATRONS INDEPENDENT

As usual, ticket-buyers have been showing a good deal of independence. The strongest recent arrivals are plays tepidly regarded by the critics, although in each case the stars won raves—Generation, with Henry Fonda; The Impossible Years, with Alan King, and The Zulu and the Zayda, with Menasha Skulnik.

Theodore Mann, a sponsor of both the Skulnik show and The Royal Hunt of the Sun, a modest profit-maker starring Christopher Plummer, a native of Toronto, is optimistic.

But off-Broadway, where Mann once was busy, is something else.

"There's been a tremendous drop-off there," Mann says.

"Last season there was a one-third decline in production from the previous year, and this year there's another one-third decrease."

Statistics from the League of Off-Broadway Theatre Owners and Producers show that from September to December, 1963, there were 31 premiers in the small experimental playhouses; during the same period last year there were 23, and scheduled for the same current span, 17. Last January, 11 shows booked openings for next January, none.

But whether the flop ratio this season on Broadway is greater than usual, or is merely accentuated by lack of a jackpot, cannot be determined statistically. Trade sources keep productivity records only on a season-long basis.

LIFE-LONG AMBITION

Veteran Actress In First Musical

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Lillian Gish is singing, at last.

"Since I began in this business at age five," gently banters the thousand-role veteran, "I've wanted to be in a musical and a circus. I'd better be careful, or I'll end up in the centre ring."

Miss Gish ventures into modest melody during portrayal of the dowager empress of all the Russians in Anya currently on Broadway.

The production is based on Anastasia, a mildly successful drama a decade ago which investigated the purported survival by one princess of the Bolshevik slaughter in 1917. For Slavic atmosphere, all the tunes are adapted from Sergei Rachmaninoff compositions.

HAS NO QUALMS

Miss Gish's special song is Little Hands. If she shows a measure of inner fear about doing the number, the 69-year-spry star has no qualms whatever about everything else in the musical.

"I'm doing it because I was asked by George Abbott—it's that simple."

Abbott, seven years senior to Miss Gish, is another of the theatre's most durable, energetic and admired institutions. Somewhat surprisingly, this is the first time their careers have converged on a project.

Anya is the 106th Broadway production in which Abbott has been involved in one capacity or another. As co-author with Guy Bolton and director, Abbott sent Miss Gish a script last spring.

SAID 'YES' QUICKLY

"I said 'yes' almost before I read it," she declares. "His taste is impeccable. I'd do anything on a stage he told me to. The song is a great mountain for me—but if he says so, I'm singing."

Rather ruefully, she recalls, she might have branched out earlier. But there have always been plenty of screen and stage calls to keep Miss Gish busy.

"Going places and reading books are the two greatest things in my life. There are still so many places in the world I want to see."

One of Miss Gish's long-term enthusiasms has been to win increased appreciation of the creative arts in American life. She spoke up loudly in television and press interviews on the theme about 10 years ago—"until I started campaigning I don't think the arts were ever mentioned in Washington."

The cultural boom which has subsequently burgeoned doesn't gain her unqualified favor.

"I only wanted the arts to be recognized — not subsidized. Any increased attention is healthy, but I'm not sure that all these grants are desirable.

"I don't think money is as important in this regard as some people think. I think it's foolish to believe that if we put up a lot of beautiful buildings that automatically we are going to turn out beautiful artists."

Henry VIII Drama Replaces Osborne

Peter Mannering, artistic director of Bastion Theatre, has announced a change of play in Bastion's spring 1966 schedule of major productions at the McPherson Playhouse.

While professional actor Don McManus is on the West Coast, Bastion has decided to present "Royal Gambit," the long-run stage success in Europe and New York, by Hermann Gressieker.

Don McManus will play the much-married monarch in this unusual play about Henry VIII and his six queens. This means that John Osborne's Look Back in Anger, scheduled for March 8th to 12th, will be postponed until the 1966-67 season.

Don McManus was featured in Bastion's first production of this season, the comedy Come Blow Your Horn, and subsequently returned to Victoria to appear in the Scenes from Shakespeare program, which recently concluded a tour of 19 schools on the Island.

Mr. McManus' exceptional singing talents were also put to work in the role of Gepetto in the popular children's production Pinocchio.

MOODS OF CHRISTMAS INVO KED WITH MUSIC AND DRAMA

Wonder, reverence, joy and merriment of the Christmas season is expressed by several Victoria organizations in their performances of fine works in music and literature. At Christ Church Cathedral, at three-year intervals, Menotti's tender, reverent Christmas opera, Amahl and the Night Visitors is presented. Its schedule of seven performances begins this year Dec. 28. At left, Peggy Walton Packard and Stanley Martin sing the roles of the mother and Melchior, one of the three kings. Bill Dyson appears as the child, Amahl. Mr. Martin is also baritone soloist in the Messiah portion of Music for Christmas being presented next Friday and Saturday by Victoria Choral Society at McPherson Playhouse. Rodney Webster, third from the left, is the director. Ramona McBean (fourth), a gifted actress, will play the Wicked Witch in Bastion Theatre's Wizard of Oz, opening at the McPherson Dec. 27. Peter Mannering (fifth) directs. Christmas music is on the program for the premiere concert of Victoria Chamber Orchestra at the Royal Dec. 19. Otto-Werner Mueller (right) conducts.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

The prime time of Christmas is still two weeks away but already signs of weariness, of premature aging are around if one looks closely.

But premature aging is almost certain to follow premature arrival and every year the orgiastic season — most of which has little or nothing to do with the central meaning — begins to emerge from its cocoon a few days earlier.

October had not made it into limbo this year when "Christmas idea" books were accosting customers in certain stores. And of course, early bird lures were being set out for the purchase of greeting cards and Christmas wraps.

If this sort of thing goes on, pretty soon we'll find ourselves putting in a six-month season of Christmas build-up; and seeing that most of us spend the other six months getting over Christmas, our lives could become just one long Christmas from year's beginning to year's end.

Which was a thing profoundly desirable when I was about six years old. There used to be a sentimental ditty about "wishing it could always be Christmas — jolly Christmas time!" Little did they know — whoever wrote it.

REACTION

I think, though, that many people react instinctively to the commercial distorting of the Nativity season, by turning more eagerly to special religious services, and to musical and dramatic expressions of the real reason for the Yuletide celebrations.

Each year carol services and concerts all over the city draw hundreds of people. For a few years, St. Barnabas Church used to feature a beautiful and moving Nativity play at Christmas and they never came to the end of the numbers of people who packed the church to its fullest capacity to see it.

In the six years since it began, Christ Church Cathedral has attracted thousands of people to its triennial presentation of the brief, lovely sacred opera, Amahl and the Night Visitors.

And one sure way to fill the McPherson Playhouse from orchestra pit to gods, would be to perform the eternally beloved Messiah. (We are, incidentally, to hear the Nativity portion as one part of Victoria Choral Society's Christmas music concert at the McPherson next week.)

By the way, am I wrong, or is there really an almost complete absence of the profane churning out of canned carols along down-town streets this year? Or is this monstrous custom being reserved for the next two weeks?

FOR LISTENING

I have an intense dislike of any good music being used as mere background noise for conversation, eating, working—in fact for anything but listening.

Agreed, there is light, pleasant music that does not demand, or warrant, much attention, that makes a harmonious sound—cyclorama for the day's proceedings.

But I'm one of those oddballs that will drop a conversation in mid-sentence when the overture to a musical stage production begins and who hates my host to put on a good recording when everyone else in the room continues to gab.

A great many—but not all—of the favorite carols are in themselves worthwhile musically and in many cases have been subjected to tasteful sometimes even inspired arrangement.

I'm sure I'm far from alone in feeling that I want to hear them, in their season, in the right mood of calm, relaxed attention, not in shreds and shards, muddied with the constant noise fo trade and traffic.

Carols might be a very pleasant warming prelude to the day's work if one could pause to listen quietly before settling down to the typewriter or the cash register.

At City Hall next week, there are to be early morning carols each day, Monday to Friday.

Greater Victoria School Board's director of music, Harry Bigsby has arranged for various school choirs to sing a carol program from 8:45 to 9:15 in the anteroom to the council chamber.

For anyone who would like to begin their day that way there is an open invitation.

Speaking of City Hall, reminds me—I love those Christmas floodlighting effects.

In fact I'm in love with Centennial Square.

There's a very special delight in walking through the square from the parking garage to the Playhouse these nights. It already has a mellowness—a distinction.

And with the effective lighting adding dramatic values, the short journey becomes a perfect overture—and finale—to one's evening in the theatre.

Symphonic Midway Point And an Orchestral Debut

Two orchestral Sundays follow each other in this pre-Christmas season. Tomorrow and Monday it will be Victoria Symphony Orchestra on the Royal stage, marking the midway point in the current season.

The program spans two-and-a-half centuries, from the late 17th to the 20th. Eighteenth century Telemann's double Concerto for violin and cello will feature as duetists, principal string players Jean Angers and Hans Siegrist.

Otto-Werner Mueller will also conduct Bach's Suite No. 3 in D Major, the Mozart "Jupiter" Symphony and Hindemith's Symphonic Metamorphoses, a rich work on themes by von Weber.

On Sunday, Dec. 19, at 3 in the afternoon, an important new step forward will be taken in the city's musical life.

The premiere of the Victoria Chamber Orchestra is an event long anticipated and desired by most music lovers. Mr. Mueller is the director and conductor of the 19-piece orchestra which is jointly sponsored by the Symphony Society and Victoria School of Music.

Corelli's "Christmas" Concerto Grosso No. 8 will open the program which is to be presented in the Royal Theatre.

The closing number will see the unique prospect of four grand pianos on stage, as soloists Gertrude Durand, Winifred Scott, Dwight Peltzer and Robin Wood perform Bach's Concerto in A Minor for Four Pianos and Orchestra.

Other featured artists include solo flautist Jan Menting and violinists Vivienne Abbott and Trudi Conrad in a Bach Double Concerto for two violins and strings.

Tickest are available at the Symphony box office at Eaton's Students will be admitted at half price.

'IT'S HARD TO SHAKE'

Robe-and-Camel Image

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Omar Sharif, the most famous film sheik since Rudolph Valentino, thinks it is time the public let him down off his camel.

The young Egyptian-born actor, who won an academy award nomination for his portrayal several years ago of Sheik Ali in Lawrence of Arabia, remarked:

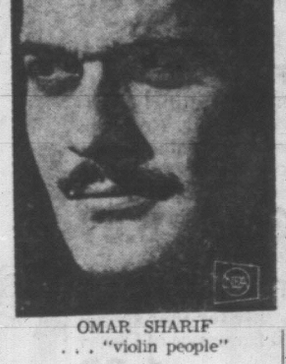

"Many think I always wore robes and rode a camel. This is untrue. I hardly ever saw a camel before except on a cigarette box.

"It's hard to shake the image created by your first success. Most of the time one doesn't succeed in shaking it. But that is better than to have to try to shake the image of your first flop."

Sharif recently finished playing the title role in Boris Pasternak's famous novel, Doctor Zhivago, an $11,000,000 production directed by David Lean which is expected to boom him to new screen heights.

Slender, still in his early 30s, Omar is good-natured, somewhat shy in manner. As Michel Shalhoub, son of a Syrian lumber importer, he was reared in Cairo and graduated from an English college there. A year later he turned to acting.

He made a couple of dozen films in Cairo, became a star in the Arab world, and married Faten Hamama, Egypt's best-known actress. They have a son, Tarek, 8.

OMAR SHARIF
. . . "violin people"

STYLES DIFFERENT

He has found a great difference in acting in Arab and Western films.

"Orientals are violin people," he remarked. "They are emotional and sentimental and self-indulgent.

"In Egyptian melodramas your success was judged by how much you could make the audience cry. Since then I've had to learn emotional restraint—to realize that the most moving thing is not someone actually crying, but someone who wants to cry and is fighting it."

Sharif, a cultured man who speaks six languages, said that as an Oriental he had met with some difficulties in adjusting to the Western tempo.

"It is so speedy," he observed drily. "I try to sleep as long as possible because it is the slowest thing I know.

"An Oriental, as long as he has food enough for this day, neither works nor worries about tomorrow."

JUDGE FREES SUSPECT

'No Relationship In Sales, Gifts'

OTTAWA (CP) — A jury has returned a judge-directed verdict of not guilty in the "advantage or benefit" trial of Brig. John Baxter Allan.

Brig. Allan, 51, former vice-quartermaster - general of the Canadian Army, faces a second charge of conspiring to accept advantage or benefit to a value in excess of $8,000 from persons having dealings with the federal government. This charge, unless dropped by the Crown, will be heard in February.

The four-week trial ended Friday when Judge Peter Macdonald called the all-male jury into the courtroom—it had been excluded for the last week while counsel argued a defence motion for a directed verdict—and ordered it to acquit the brigadier.

"There is no evidence, as a matter of law, on which you, as a properly instructed jury, could bring in a verdict of guilty," said the judge.

Brig. Allan, who retired from the army in August, 1964, was charged with accepting advantage or benefit arising from payment of hotel bills, for merchandise and transfer of shares in Levy Industries Ltd., from Morris, Mark, Edward and Benjamin Levy, or one or more of them, who in their capacity as directors or agents of three Toronto firms had dealings with the federal government.

"My conclusion is that there is absolutely no relationship between the favors, if there were any and you could call them such, and the dealings of the givers with the federal government," the judge said.

CONSIDER APPEAL

Outside the courtroom, Crown Attorney John Cassells said any decision to proceed with the conspiracy charge against the brigadier "must await a decision on whether we will appeal this verdict."

The judge, giving his reasons for directing the verdict, said it is "important that not only should justice be done, but that justice should appear to have been done."

"The Crown evidence is such that no properly instructed jury could register a conviction."

Judge Macdonald said a "ridiculous situation" could result if one did not interpret the section of the Criminal Code under which Brig. Allan was charged to mean "that the favor received must have some relationship with the dealings the givers are alleged to have had with the government."

As an example, he said a literal translation of the section would mean an employee of Dominion Archives who accepted an invitation to lunch from a friend who leased a building to a public works official would be guilty.

"Surely this is not what Parliament had in mind. . . . There must be some relationship."

BOUGHT SURPLUS

Ben Levy, executive vice-president of Levy Industries Ltd., testified his firm purchased surplus from Crown Assets Disposal Corp. and sold material to the department of defence production. Other evidence showed the army neither bought nor sold itself.

"There is evidence that the accused could not influence the dealings of the Levys with either Crown Assets or defence production," Judge McDonald said.

There was also "much jurisprudence" to show that a member of the armed forces is not a government official, as set out in the charge.

The charge said the alleged offence took place while Brig. Allan was "at Ottawa or elsewhere in Ontario," but the evidence was "unsatisfactory on this" and showed the accused was in Saigon and Washington when some of the transactions took place.

"What Brig. Allan did might be a violation within some regulation of the army . . . or under the National Defence Act—but we're not concerned with this."

Mr. Levy testified that his firm paid Brig. Allan's hotel bills at the Westbury Hotel in Toronto, sent him "festive hams" and smoked turkey and helped arrange stock purchases for him.

Mr. Levy said Brig. Allan helped the Levy firm entertain foreign-buying missions at Toronto and "of course, we paid his bills." The accused and the Levys had been friends for a long time and the Christmas gifts arose from this. All stock involved was paid for by the brigadier.

WESSIN MUST STAY IN EXILE

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—President Hector Garcia-Godoy said Friday that exiled former geenral Elias Wessin y Wessin will not be permitted to return to the Dominican Republic before elections next June.

Wessin y Wessin, an armed forces chieftain who ordered assaults on rebel positions in the revolt last spring, was ordered out of the country last September and now is in Miami, Fla. It is understood that some right-wing groups have been pressing for his return.

Court Upholds Conviction Of Minister

TORONTO (CP)—A lawyer for former United Church minister Russell Horsburgh says his client may go to the Supreme Court of Canada to appeal his conviction for contributing to juvenile delinquency.

C. E. Perkins, Horsburgh's lawyer in Chatham, Ont., said there is a possibility the case will go to the higher court after the Ontario Court of Appeal Friday upheld Horsburgh's conviction in a split decision.

He said he had not seen the court's reasons for judgment but in view of a dissenting judgment by Mr. Justice Bora Laskin, there should be no difficulty in having the case heard in the federal Supreme Court.

Horsburgh, 45, former minister of Chatham's Park Street United Church, was sentenced to a year in prison last November after conviction on five charges that he encouraged sexual intercourse among young members of his congregation. He voluntarily resigned from the ministry last June.

Officer Hit, Man Jailed Four Months

Robert Bowden, 1216 Oxford, was sent to jail Friday for four months when he was found guilty of assault on a police officer.

Evidence at earlier hearings was that the officer was struck by Bowden during a police raid on the Bowden residence which was suspected of being a bookmaking establishment. Bowden was charged with recording bets but was acquitted on this charge.

Magistrate William Ostler said he was satisfied that the policeman identified himself to the accused.

He said that Bowden had no legitimate reason to think his wife was assaulted by the officer.

The magistrate said assault on a policeman is a serious crime and a fine would be inappropriate.

Wheat Sale Lost In Poor Planning'

SASKATOON (CP) — Alvin Hamilton, Progressive Conservative Member of Parliament for Qu'Appelle, said Friday Canada this year turned down a five-year wheat agreement with China because this country was unable to meet the demand.

The former agriculture minister criticized the Liberal government for failing to anticipate the demand and for failing to meet it.

"The Chinese wanted 466,000,000 bushels over a five-year period but we could not give it to them because we didn't have it in supply," he said in an interview.

Mr. Hamilton called for more beef production and predicted difficulty in meeting demand within 10 years. He said there are about 9,000,000 head of cattle in the country today but "we have to think in terms of 13,000,000 head by 1975."

Controls Becoming Big Issue

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Tighter money became a fact and an issue in the United States this week.

The federal reserve board, acting against the wishes of President Johnson, voted 4 to 3 to increase the discount rate to 4½ per cent from 4 per cent.

This rate is the amount of interest that banks charge their biggest borrowers.

Similar action was taken in Canada, where the Bank of Canada boosted its rate to 4¾ from 4¼ per cent.

The board also raised to 5½ per cent from 4½ per cent the ceiling on interest rates that U.S. banks can pay on time deposits. These are essentially interest-earning deposits of corporations, rather than small deposits of individuals.

WANTS STABILITY

The board said its action was taken to "reinforce efforts to maintain price stability, and thus to foster balance in the economy's continued growth and strength in the dollar's international standing."

Johnson criticized the action of the board, an independent agency.

The president summoned board chairman William McChesney Martin to the Texas White House. They discussed the situation and came out of the meeting in an apparently amicable frame of mind, but neither had changed his attitude.

Some people in key positions expressed apprehension that higher interest rates will blunt the current economic expansion, now in its 58th month.

IS OPTIMISTIC

But Martin said he is optimistic and while he thinks the threat of inflation is "a very real one," he also thinks "we have the resources to contain it."

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Martin used a meeting of the Institute of Life Insurance in New York as a sounding board for their opposing views.

Humphrey said the board's action showed a lack of co-ordination between fiscal and monetary policy-makers.

Martin said "the effective time to act against inflationary pressures is when they are in the development stage, before they have become full-blown and the damage has been done."

Major U.S. banks quickly raised their interest rates.

PRICES PLUNGED

The stock market reacted Monday with a plunge of prices in early trading. It began a comeback before the day was over, and more than recovered the loss Tuesday.

The government asked American businessmen to cut back the flow of dollars for investment in foreign countries by $1,000,000,000 next year. This action aroused no general concern in Canada, however, where Americans have invested more money than they have in any other country. It was felt the action may help to ease inflationary pressure in Canada.

The reduction would be from this year's record outflow of $3,400,000,000 for direct investment.

The program is stiffer than it has been in the past, but is still voluntary.

WILLISTON

Pulp Firms Seeking Driftwood

VANCOUVER (CP)—Forestry Minister Williston said Friday he has received a rash of requests from pulp companies for permits to collect driftwood for conversion into wood products.

The minister told the Western Forestry Conference that he has received more such requests in the last six weeks than in all the rest of his term as minister, beginning in 1956.

Mr. Williston said such requests illustrate the growing need of coastal pulp mills for raw material.

He said he will propose to the next session of the legislature that a committee be set up to determine if a beachwood policy is needed and what form it should take.

Earlier in his speech, the minister said "the demand for pulp chips is expected to reach a point on the coast where there are not sufficient chips available and, with added pulping capacity, operators will have to turn to round wood."

He said this shortage was developing despite the introduction of self-dumping barges.

Mr. Williston told the foresters—predominantly Americans—that there was a misconception that the sharp increase in pulp mill capacity in the province and consequent increase in the volume of wood coming out of B.C. forests, represented a faster rate of depletion.

However, he said that on the contrary, most of the additional wood comes from material that was wasted in the days of a pioneer wood economy.

Small Firms To Disappear

MONTREAL (CP) — Between 700 and 800 firms will control 60 per cent of world production within the next few years, Oliver Giscard d'Estaing, brother of the French finance minister, predicted Friday.

Confronted by such a situation, he told a meeting of the Canadian Chambre de Commerce Francaise, small and medium-sized businesses will have to amalgamate or disappear.

This was especially true for the countries of Western Europe, where there were 14 times as many businesses as in the United States, serving a population approximately the same size.

Mr. Giscard d'Estaing, director of the European Institute of Business Administration at Fontainebleau, France, said European businessmen in particular will have to concentrate more on management techniques and on research, a field in which U.S. business has spent some $40,000,000.

Markets Fall As Rates Rise

By PHIL FORSYTH-SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the weekend news of an increase in the bank rate, stock markets across Canada took a quiet tumble this week.

The sell-off began Monday after the Bank of Canada announced it had raised the bank rate ½ per cent to 4¾ following the United States federal reserve board's similar increase in the rediscount rate.

But Canadian investors staged an immediate rally the next day and at the week's end many issues had recovered much or all of their losses.

Several analysts in Toronto said they agreed that the increase had been anticipated for more than a month and the market had already largely discounted a tight-money policy to curb inflation. They also said the move must ultimately be interpreted as beneficial to business and the economy as a whole.

EXPLAINED REACTION

This explains the Toronto Stock Exchange's quiet reaction to the central bank's announcement.

However, chartier banks, which bore the initial brunt of the selling-wave, still were down from last week's levels. Toronto-Dominion was off ⅞ to 60¾, Imperial-Commerce ⅝ to 63 and Montreal ¼ to 59¾. Nova Scotia provided the main opposition to the weaker trend and was up 1¼ to 72; Royal, which along with Montreal announced an increase to the statutory limit of six per cent in their prime lending rate, was up ¼ to 72¼.

In the main industrial list it was the oil, gas and paper stocks that lost the most ground. Texaco fell 1⅜ to 51½, Imperial Oil ¼ to 53⅛, Trans-Mountain ½ to 18, Trans-Canada Pipe Line and Westcoast ⅜ each to 37⅛ and 23⅜, MacMillan, Bloedel ⅞ to 26 and Price ½ to 39.

Among other key industrial issues, Molson A dropped 2⅝ to 32, Algoma and Canada Cement 1 each to 59½ and 43, Stelco ½ to 25½, Dofasco ¼ to 26¾, Slater ⅛ to 14½ and Simpsons ⅝ to 28⅜.

RECORD INCREASE

Countering the decline, Seven Arts, which recently announced record earnings and the purchase of profitable film distribution rights, jumped 1¾ to 16. Also Massey-Ferguson, whose final quarterly earnings are soon to be released, gained ⅞ to 35 and Jefferson Lake 1½ to 24½.

Base metals performed much the same as industrials and were marginally softer. Inco slipped 1 to 97, Cominco ¾ to 48¾, Hudson Bay and Rio Algom ½ each to 75½ and 19 and Noranda ⅛ to 51¾. Falconbridge was the group's stronghold, adding 1½ at 109.

On the speculative mining side, O'Brien Gold Mines caused a mid-week whirl of excitement and pushed the volume higher at a hot pace. The company has been the object of a takeover battle.

The Royal Trust Co., on behalf of J. R. Timmins and Co., first bid for 1,500,000 shares of O'Brien at 1.00 a share. Timmins later upped this bid to 1.10 a share after Copperfields Mining Corp., Ltd., offered O'Brien shareholders 1.15 a share for 1,700,000 shares. Copperfields in turn increased its bid to 1.25 last Friday.

SOUGHT QUICK PROFIT

With Timmins and Copperfields competing, speculators hopping in and out after a quick ride to profit and others taking hefty short positions in the stock, O'Brien suddenly shot ahead 85 cents to 2.00 Tuesday, trading was erratic Wednesday when O'Brien touched a high for this year of 2.50 before closing Friday up 60 cents to 1.85.

In other penny mining activity, D'Eldona and the companies that have properties adjacent to D'Eldona's holdings in northern Quebec continued to ease with D'Eldona dropping 18 cents to 1.12, Wilco 12 to 56 cents and Donalda 4½ to 28½ cents. Marbenor captured most of the speculators' thunder Friday leaping 75 cents to 2.65 and Jaye Explorations traded almost 1,000,000 shares Friday to tack on 6½ to 28½ cents.

WAR ONLY LITTLE HELP IN BOOSTING MARKET

CHICAGO (AP)—Scare factors of the kind which send prices soaring broadly and rapidly were rare in the grain futures market in 1965. Prices generally were guided by more realistic influences.

Talk of escalation of the fighting in Viet Nam exerted a mildly bullish influence from time to time but never more than briefly.

For the most part, statistics were the basic price-making considerations and, as usual, were seldom spectacular. Prices of such major grains as wheat and corn varied little from seasonal patterns of other years and for long periods held virtually stationary.

Japanese Plan Big Pulp Mill Near Rocky Mts.

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan has approved a proposal for a $6,000,000 Canadian - Japanese mill to export kraft pulp and paper from British Columbia to Japan and the United States, the Honshu Paper Manufacturing Co. announced today.

The company will be called Canadian Rocky Pulp and Paper Ltd., and will be financed equally by Canadian and Japanese interests. The mill is to be completed by November, 1967.

Honshu said it and Mitsubishi Shoji Kaisha, a leading Japanese trading firm, already had signed an agreement with Creste Brook Timber Ltd. of Canada, and that the new firm will be established in Vancouver.

Honshu said the firm will build a pulp-making plant in an up-country area at the foot of the Rocky Mountains, with an initial capacity of 350 tons of pulp a day. This capacity would be doubled by 1970 or 1971, and by that time a paper factory also will be erected.

VICTORY SIGN is given by United Steelworkers' president Tony Soden who is held aloft by supporters after his union won jurisdictional rights in vote over International Union of Mine, Mill Workers at Sudbury. (CP Wirephoto.)

REAL ESTATE

"FROM THE WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW"
By Shirley Philps

SHIRLEY OF COLONY

"Why More Lady Realtors Prefer Colony Home Sales"

Women who are thinking of entering the Real Estate Profession often ask why lady Realtors prefer Colony Home Sales. One reason of course is that at Colony we sell "homes only," a field in which lady Realtors naturally excell. (Ladies hesitate to get themselves involved in soggy subdivisions, intricate apartment block profit-and-loss statements and lengthy stock reports for businesses.) At some other mixed offices where sales ladies are in a minority (although appreciated as women) they are sometimes not respected as sales ladies, and thus often feel like "second-class citizens." Not so at Colony. Every sales lady is a queen. The office is dedicated to her comfort, to her convenience and to her success. Laughingly folks will ask, "When does the hair-pulling begin at COLONY?" Don't you believe it. NEVER, in all the mixed offices I've worked in, have I seen such a desire to help, such a spirit of co-operation, such a lack of "double-dealing" one to another. Remember too, Real Estate sales ladies are "in and out" all of the time, not confined together all day at office desks, and the woman who survives in the Real Estate profession develops a depth of maturity that transcends mere pettiness. All this, plus the fact salesladies writing an offer and needing information or help can call me at any time night or day, which adds greatly to their self-confidence and to their incomes. Colony is devoted to Ladies and Home Sales—a wonderful combination . . . ask any one of our twenty.

Mine, Mill Challenge Rejected by Workers

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) has retained bargaining rights for 15,000 workers at the International Nickel Co. of Canada plant here with a 2,000-vote jurisdictional victory over the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

Results of three days of balloting were announced Friday night as the Steelworkers maintained their position as sole bargaining agent for Inco workers anywhere in North America.

The vote, supervised by the Ontario government, gave the Steelworkers 8,194 votes to Mine-Mill's 6,099.

It was the second Steel win over Mine-Mill in three years. The Steelworkers unseated the smaller union as Inco agent with a 15-vote victory in 1962 that climaxed a year of violent union struggle and ended 17 years of Mine-Mill jurisdiction here.

The Steelworkers will continue to collect the $1,000,000 in dues which Inco employees contribute annually.

The Steelworkers union has 120,000 members in Canada. Mine-Mill has 10,000.

BRING IN BIG GUNS

The Steelworkers, with nearly $21,000,000 in international assets, brought union President I. W. Abel, CLC President Claude Jodoin and the Ontario Federation of Labor president, David Archer, to Sudbury in their bid to retain support.

Mine-Mill campaigned on the theme that a victory for it would pave the way for immediate start on bargaining for a new agreement with Inco. The Steelworkers are barred by their present agreement from negotiating before next June.

Mine-Mill also offered to surrender the compulsory checkoff in collecting dues in return for the necessary 50 per cent of the vote.

Ninety-nine per cent of eligible Inco workers cast ballots. Under labor law the 600 who failed to vote are considered Steelworker supporters.

Nels Thibeault, president of Mine-Mill Local 598, refused to admit defeat. He said it was "merely a pause in the Mine-Mill effort to return decent union conditions to Sudbury workers."

ANOTHER FIGHT LOOMS

Mr. Thibeault said Mine-Mill will fall back on its stronghold at nearby Falconbridge — the only nickel mine it represents on the continent—while Steelworkers were promising an immediate attempt to win bargaining rights there.

The Steelworkers and Mine-Mill hostility dates back to the aftermath of the 87-day Mine-Mill strike in 1958.

Mine-Mill leadership changed as the left-wing leadership of the local was swept from office and an international struggle opened up inside the union while Steel began its challenge.

The 1961-62 campaign was marred by violence before the Steelworkers squeezed out their 15-vote win. But Mine-Mill rebounded to obtain 7,000 signatures and force the latest vote.

Few Changes Planned In U.S. Oil Import

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson signed Friday a proclamation continuing the oil import program in 1966 almost unchanged from its present form.

One amendment will permit import allocations for Petrochemical firms in the United States and Puerto Rico.

Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall announced the import program plans at a press conference, and Johnson later signed the proclamation at his ranch in Texas.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America raised immediate objections.

In a statement, association president F. All Calvert Jr., said "the changes in the 1966 oil import program do nothing to strengthen the security of the United States as to its vtial supplies of petroleum products."

In response to questions, Udall said the changes will not affect the status of Canada and Venezuela under the oil import program.

But, he said, discussions will continue with Venezuela, which is seeking a means of increasing its exports to the U.S.

The changes in regard to petro-chemicals will open the way for establishment of new producing facilities in Puerto Rico where the Phillips Petroleum Co. already has under way the nucleus of a proposed $500,000,000 petro-chemical operation.

NEW PROGRAM

The new program will become effective Jan. 1 covering imports of petroleum and petroleum products and will shift allocations from a semi-annual to an annual basis.

The oil import control program for residual fuel oil brought into the east coast area operates on a different basis and Udall said it was not involved in any way in the new changes.

Udall said the changes are based on the unanimous recommendation of his department and all other interested departments and agencies.

CN Officer To Join Domtar Ltd.

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Delagrave, CNR vice-president in charge of passenger sales, has accepted a senior management post with Domtar Limited in Montreal, it was learned today.

An informed source said Mr. Delagrave, author of the CNR's recent drive for increased passenger traffic, will leave the railway at the end of 1965 and join Domtar in mid-February, following a six-week vacation in Europe.

Mr. Delagrave could not be reached immediately for comment. Railway spokesmen declined to make any statement and Domtar management would neither confirm nor deny the report.

Bringing car, bus and plane travellers back to the railroad has been Mr. Delagrave's main goal since he joined the CNR's passenger traffic division in 1960.

It was during his tenure that the railway introduced the passenger fare plan known as Red, White and Blue, which replaces fares based on mileage with rates that vary by days, and in accordance with the different travel seasons of the year.

Mr. Delagrave has a non-railway background that includes wartime service as a squadron leader in the RCAF.

Hoffa Puts Trusteeship Over Teamster Division

TORONTO (CP)—The International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) has moved swiftly to bring its strife-torn Local 938 here into line.

A telegram from James Hoffa, the Teamsters' international president, Friday placed the local under the trusteeship of Raymond Greene, Montreal Teamster executive.

Mr. Greene suspended the local executive board, reinstated all but two of the members on a temporary basis and cancelled a membership meeting scheduled for Sunday.

The two board members dropped were Secretary-Treasurer Lloyd Merritt and Business Agent Charles Thibault, leaders of a dissident group.

The rebels accuse the local's president, Ken McDougall, and Vice-President Gordon Newman of misusing union funds and not taking a strong enough stand in contract negotiations.

Mr. Thibault said the trusteeship was an attempt to cover up his charges. He also laid an assault charge against Ed Murphy, one of the local's business agents, after a fight in the local office was broken up by police Friday.

NEGOTIATIONS STALLED

The local, with Ontario branches in Hamilton, Kingston, Windsor and London, is deadlocked in negotiations with 85 trucking firms on behalf of 3,500 of its 6,500 members.

A conciliation board report on the negotiations is expected next week. Mr. McDougall has said a strike is certain but not before Christmas.

Mr. Greene appointed Mr. McDougall temporary business manager of the local during trusteeship. Mr. Newman and five others are to be temporary business agents.

Mr. Greene said he will listen to both sides of the dispute in an attempt to get at its cause.

Mr. Hoffa said in his telegram he was placing the local in trusteeship at the request of five executive board members of the local because dissension in the board prevented the union from serving as an effective bargaining agent.

Mr. McDougall said he has charged Mr. Merritt and Mr. Thibault with violating their oaths of loyalty to the local and the international, abusing fellow members and failing to comply with local bylaws.

Trucking companies have filed damage claims totalling $2,000,000 against union members following a wave of wildcat walkouts across the province during the fall negotiations. One company fired eight men and there are 35 applications to prosecute under the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

Mr. McDougall said a strike is inevitable unless the company actions are withdrawn.

The union seeks a two-year agreement with reduction in the work week to 40 from 48 hours with compensating pay.

Members voted to reject the companies' offer of a reduction to 43 hours over 42 months with a pay increase of 53 cents an hour over the same period.

" 'If the Lord's willing, ah'll do it,' the preacher said.

"But at the end of the day he was short. So the next day they told him he would have to pick 250 pounds.

" 'If the Lord's willing, I'll do it,' the preacher said. Agin he was short.

"Now the head man, he don' like this. And he took out this big, black whip and he giv' it to the preacher pretty good. 'I'm warnin' you,' he tells the preacher, 'there's gonna be more if you're short today. Now, git out there and bring in 300 pounds of cotton.'

"The preacher thought a minute. Then he sed: 'If the damm stuff is in thet field, ah'm gonna' git it!'

"That," said Mr. Champion, "is the way I feel about next year. If the B.C. Lions have got it, I'm gonna git it. Or else."

This was at the weekly luncheon of the Victoria Lions Club, the liveliest group of Lions Champion has associated with in 1965.

Champion is a huge side of beef, about 240 unskinned, defensive coach of the best professional football team west of Calgary. In 1964 his troops performed sufficient feats of assault and battery to justify the title of Headhunters. Last season tney gave off the richest odor this side of a dead mackerel.

Valises Weren't Full of Clothes

Now Champion is on the rubber-chicken circuit, telling circuit service clubs with a lilt in his voice (ha! ha!) what happened to the Lions (ho! ho!). He is proving that people are luckier than coaches; people don't have to relive their agonies out of season.

He had brought, he said, his list of excuses "all nicely typed out" and went right into them . . .

"Our schedule was the first bad thing. Too tough. We had to play all the teams.

"The officiating was—." He looked over the eager faces, spotted an author and decided not to commit any press passes. "I'd rather not say. Things are bad enough.

"We hed too many injuries. Tom Brown, the best linebacker ah've seen, had a pinched nerve. He was restricted to 70 per cent of his mobility. Dick Fouts missed six games, yet he was our only player on the All-Star team." Laughing, "Ah told Dick the other day, 'Good thing you got hurt or you wouldn't have made the All-Stars'."

"Against Regina, we had toah halfbacks huht and Bill Munsey, our fullback, was huht. That game we contributed to the all-time Westehn Conference rushing record by—Mr. George Reed.

"Then there was the beah strike. Some of our guys spent so much time looking for it, they didn't hev' much energy to play. I saw one player bringin' home TWO valises and ah knew he doesn't hav' thet many clothes."

Service clubs as a rule are not hip to athletic patois, but this one was. They rolled with every Champion punch line.

Coaches Should Also Take Knocks

But Champion has chamelon instincts; he can flip-flop into a serious mien.

"Complacency hurt us," he said, unsmiling.

"We had been in two Grey Cups; we had the same personnel. We were fat. Me too.

"Ah don't think it's fair to say that in '64 some of our people played the best they evah had. This year they were average or below average in some cases.

"But ah don't think the players should take all the blame. When the team wins the coaches take the credit. When we lose we should take the knocks."

There were questions. A retired gentleman of the cloth, admitting he watched the Lions whenever he could, said: "Why do we call football a game? I call it warfare."

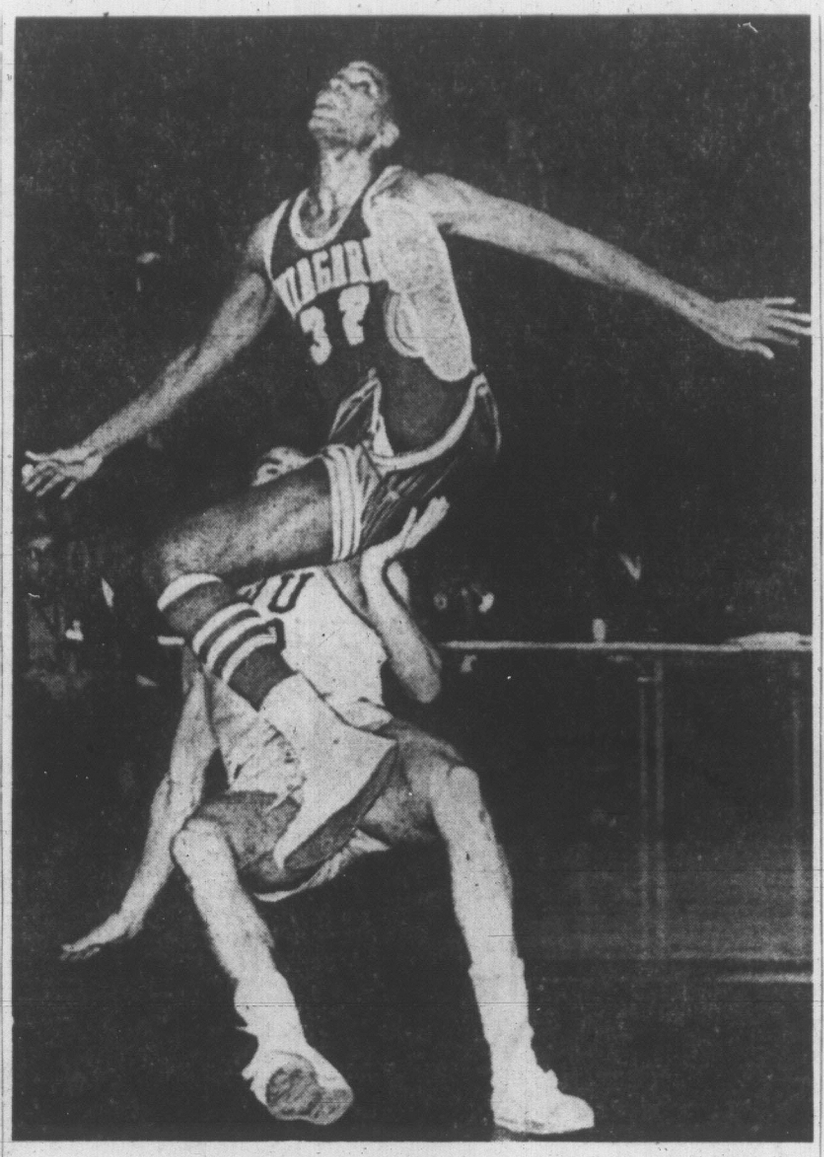

Champion twisted his mouth.

"I think there's some violence in all of us," he said. "But we can't go out on the street and walk up to a big guy and bust him or we might git killed.

"The player out theah on the field, driving hahd and dumping somebody on his butt cleanly, is a reflection of the image we would like to have."

Then he added a postscript. "I've nevah seen too many football players turn into juvenile delinquents. They don't hev' the time or the energy aftah a hard workout."

They clapped. The padre the loudest of them all.

HELPING HAND

It looks as if Marin Erwin of Niagara is getting support from Richie Dyer of New York University, but that's not how it was during basketball game at New York. Erwin is watching his shot drop through basket and Dyer is falling after collision between the two. Erwin was credited with basket and charged with foul for collision that occurred after he fired shot. NYU won game by 103-73 score. (AP Wirephoto.)

Bourbonnais' Play Irks Soviet Coach

Russians Blank Canadians 4-0 Minus Big Guns

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Russia's national hockey team opened its North American tour against its Canadian counterpart here Friday night and found little changed from last season.

The visitors found the flaws in the Canadian defence for a 4-0 victory, but they also discovered their hosts were still using pint-sized Roger Bourbonnais.

Bourbonnais was "the only one of the Canadian team behaving unlike a hockey player," complained Russian coach Antoli Tarasov.

Last year at Colorado Springs the Russians won the hockey tournament, defeating the Canadians handily, and Bourbonnais ran into Russian defenceman Vitaly Davydov, sending him to hospital for 20 days with a broken jaw.

'STILL HUNTING'

"He's still hunting," Tarasov said of the Alberta forward. "such players would be suspended for life in Russia. It's a pity. He's the only one like that on the Canadian team."

Tarasov said he will ask Rev. David Bauer, the Canadian team's adviser, to "try to influence from a Christian standpoint" the behavior of Bourbonnais.

Bourbonnais scoffed at the charges. "But don't think those Russians don't play some games of their own," he said.

"You watch them run interference some time. One guy crosses in front of you and yells back to a guy behind him 'go Joe' and the second player just stands in your way to let the first go through with the puck."

FIRST SETBACK

A crowd of 5,540 watched the defending world champions score three goals in nine minutes of the second period and add another while shorthanded in the third to hand Jackie McLeod's Canadians their first defeat in 18 exhibitions.

And the Russians did it with their top forward line sitting in the stands.

The Canadians, McLeod said later, were tired after leaving Winnipeg early Friday and arriving at London late in the afternoon.

"We were up at six in the morning and had a 2½-hour stopover at Toronto," he said. "We didn't skate that well tonight and I feel it was because the trip tired us."

'DESERVED TO WIN'

"Take nothing away from the Russians. They played well and deserved to win."

The offensive play of the Russian defence and the defensive slowness of Canada were key factors in the game.

Russian defencemen scored two of the four goals with sharp moves and thwarted the Canadian attack time and again with exceptional defensive manoeuvres inside their own blue line.

By contrast, Canadian defencemen showed a weakness in clearing the puck from their own zone.

The Russians survived a hard-checking first period with most of the heavy checking handed out by the Canadians.

They struck quickly for three goals in the second and turned back a strong-skating third period by the Canadians.

WAYNE WAS SHAKY

Canadian goalie Wayne Stephenson appeared shaky on several shots and slow in reacting when two shots went by him.

Defenceman George Faulkner passed the puck to Victor Popupanov and the Russian defenceman slid a shot into the right corner behind Stephenson from 10 feet out at 1:11 of the second period.

Vladimir Brezhnev made it 2-0 five minutes later, moving in from the blue line to take a rink-wide pass from Igor Romishevky and beat Stephenson from 15 feet.

Davydov hiked the Russian lead to 3-0 on a play similar to Brezhnev's. He moved in from the point to snare a pass from Boris Mavorov and his shot trickled through Stephenson's legs. Russia was shorthanded at the time.

The Russian offence showed no need of their three veterans of world and Olympic play who sat out the game. Konstantin Lohtev, Alexander Almftov and Veniamin Alexandrov sat behind the Russian bench making notes of Canadian offensive plays and of Russian defensive mistakes.

"They are not our top line," argued Tarasov. "All our players are the same."

Bustling Bears Solid Threat To Leaf Streak

Something has to change at Memorial Arena tonight or the hard-earned home-ice undefeated streak of Victoria Maple Leafs will go down the drain.

WINNER of South Australian tennis title today was Arthur Ashe (above) of U.S. Ashe defeated Australia's Wimbledon champion Roy Emerson by scores of 7-9, 7-5, 6-0, 6-4 in final.

The thing the Leafs will have to change is the winning habit of Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League. In two interlocking games this week with Western League clubs, the Bears have chalked up two victories and the men of coach Frank Mathers see no reason why the pattern should be broken tonight.

Bears made it two in a row on their western swing Friday at Los Angeles when defenceman Paul Popeil fired his first goal of the season with 36 seconds remaining to clip the Blades 3-2.

In another interlocking battle, Vancouver Canucks suffered their fourth straight defeat when they were downed 4-2 by the Bisons at Buffalo.

STRING AT 15

Leafs, who finished last season with three straight victories at home, have added 10 wins and two ties this season to run their unbeaten string at home to 15 games, seven shy of the club record.

They have also won six of nine games on the road to fashion a six-point lead in the WHL and will be trying tonight for their third successive victory over visiting AHL clubs.

The Bears indicated Friday night they might not be impressed by Victoria's fine record as they handed the Blades their first defeat since goalie Ed Johnston joined the club.

The Hershey athletes still had their hands full before tripping the Blades before more than 6,000 fans.

CONACHER SCORES

Wayne Rivers and Pete Conacher counted for the Bears and Leo Labine and Brian Smith replied for Los Angeles before Popeil smoked a 50-foot shot behind Johnston to win it for Hershey.

Alain Caron scored his 17th and 18th goals of the season to sink the Canucks at Buffalo.

Gerry Ouelette notched a second-period tally for the Bisons and Pat Hannigan fired the clincher in the final minute with Vancouver goalie Gilles Villemure off the ice for an extra attacker.

Bob Kabel and Bruce Carmichael scored for the Canucks.

Club president E. K. Emerson said in a statement that "certain differences that existed between coach Clair and assistant coach Bill Smyth were resolved . . . to the satisfaction of every one."

He did not elaborate.

Sugar Steals the Show From King of Welters

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson stole the show from welterweight champion Emile Griffith without throwing a punch.

Griffith retained his world title Friday night with a lopsided 15-round decision over Manuel Gonzalez, a hitless wonder from Odessa, Tex., and said he wants a shot at middleweight king Dick Tiger.

Long before the unanimous verdict was announced, many of the 12,146 fans who paid $72,502 strolled out of Madison Square Garden to the tune of Let Me Call You Sweetheart, as sung by fans in the $3 seats.

'GO HOME, MANNY'

They also sang Deep in the Heart of Texas and yelled for Manny to go home.

But the farewell tribute to Sugar Ray, 45, former welterweight and five-time middleweight champion, was a rousing success.

The Garden brought in four of Robinson's middleweight title opponents, England's Randy Turpin, Gene Fullmer, Bobo Olson and Carmen Basilio, for the occasion. Sugar Ray and the four other former champions all stepped into the ring with robes over their ring togs.

"To stand here in the middle of the ring for the last time is not goodbye but farewell to a career," Robinson said.

Gonzalez, a one-time cotton picker, kept on his bicycle and rarely punched as Griffith chased him all over the ring, occasionally catching him with left hooks and right jabs.

Gonzalez won a disputed split decision over Griffith in a non-title 10-rounder in Houston, Tex., Jan. 26. The Garden fans must have wondered how he even made it close the first time.

COULD EARN $45,000

The officials voted for Griffith this way: Referee Art Mercante 9-5-1 in rounds; Judge Al Berl 11-3-1 and Judge Tony Rissi 12-3. The Associated Press had Griffith 15-0.

Griffith, in a record 12th welterweight title bout, was a 3½-to-1 favorite. He weighed 146¼ pounds to 146 for Gonzalez. The champ has a record of 48-7, Gonzalez 37-13-6.

Including regional television and radio receipts, Griffith could earn about $45,000 on his 45 per cent and Gonzalez $15,000 on his 15 per cent.

"It's a lot better than picking cotton," said Manny.

EVEN CASS SAYS RAY THE GREATEST

NEW YORK (AP)—"He's the greatest fighter there ever was—and that's something for me to say."

Cassius Clay said that and more Friday night. The champion stepped out of character and laid the praise on someone else—the man he says has always been his idol and the fighter he still patterns himself after.

"When I was a little kid I watched Sugar Ray Robinson on the TV, and when I started fightin' I copied his moves, and I still do. When I go into the ring now he's on my mind."

"I drove all the way from Chicago, started at 3 in the morning to be here," Clay said at a private party marking Robinson's retirement.

"He's still so pretty. He may be slowed up a little, got a little winded and took a couple of punches—but they didn't muss his hair up. And he still was goin' 10 rounds.

"Why, at 55—or 45, that is—goin' 10 rounds, even gettin' up in the mornin' for road work is somethin'. Let alone winnin'.

"I'm here to say he is the greatest."

Wisconsin Aims Shots at Braves

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Lawyers for the state of Wisconsin have reached for a double-barrelled shotgun they hope will keep the Braves married to Milwaukee for at least another year or force the National League to cough up a replacement franchise.

The lawyers asked a circuit court Friday for an injunction to prevent the Braves playing league home games anywhere but in Milwaukee.

The plea for a temporary restraining order also asks the court to order the National League to produce expansion plans by Dec. 31 so major league baseball can be played in Milwaukee in 1966.

The action came after the Braves asked the court to dismiss Wisconsin's anti-trust action against the Atlanta-bound franchise and the league on grounds that the state is seeking "extra-territorial application of its laws."

The court set next Friday as the time for the Braves and the league to argue against the injunction bid.

Meanwhile, in Chicago the group holding the Atlanta franchise held a quick stockholders meeting before being threatened by a Milwaukee contingent with a $2,000,000 suit for mismanagement.

BURST ON SCENE

The meeting in which the Braves' 15-member board of directors was re-elected took only 17 minutes, but before vice-president Thomas A. Ryenolds, a Chicago lawyer, could pack his briefcase the Milwaukee group burst on the scene.

Dominic Frinzi, Milwaukee lawyer, shouted at Reynolds:

"I just want you to know I will file a minority stockholders' suit against the individual board members for $2,000,000 for mismanagement.

"We're not a bunch of bush-leaguers. We had a first-rate club in Milwaukee but second-rate management."

Wakeham Trails In Peruvian Open

LIMA (AP) — Miguel Sala of Colombia shot a second-round 73 Friday and took the halfway lead in the Peruvian open golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 144.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg was in seventh place with 75-74—149. Bill Wakeham of Victoria shot a 76 and was 16th with 156.

Herbert Boys in Front; Palmer, Nicklaus Gain

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Brothers Jay and Lionel Hebert took a one-stroke lead in the $125,000 PGA four-ball championship Friday as they carded a 66 for a 54-hole total of 196—20 under par.

The teams of Bobby Nichols and R. H. Sikes, Gay Brewer and Butch Baird, and another brother combination—Jacky and Buster Cupit—were tied for second at 197.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus put together a round of 65 and moved to within two strokes of the lead. Five other teams were tied with them.

Jay Hebert holed putts of 16, eight, five and four feet for four of his team's seven birdies.

Nicklaus and Palmer made five birdies and an eagle. The eagle was on the par-five 12th hole when Nicklaus holed a four-foot putt. Nicklaus blasted out of a bunker on the 10th hole and into the cup 25 feet away for one of the birdies.

Teams tied with Palmer and Nicklaus are Don January-Paul Harney, Bob Shave-John Berry, Paul Bondeson-Larry Mowry, Bert Yancey-Dudley Wysong, Tommy Aaron-Jack Rule.

Saanichton Hoop

Three basketball games are carded tonight at Saanichton Agricultural Hall.

Saanichton pre-midget girls will face Brentwood at 7, Saanichton pre-midget boys will play Sooke at 7:45 and a midget boys' game between Saanichton "A" and "B" teams is scheduled for 8:30.

Scots Like Cup Games

Four Victoria and District Soccer League teams step out Sunday in search of berths in the Jackson Cup final.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Automobile mechanic Ed Scott had his bowling swing in high gear during ninth week of Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. He earned men's fivepin award by scattering pins for fine 325-232-348—905 series in B.C. Hydro League at Town and Country Lanes. Ed, who coaches Babe Ruth baseball team in summer months, is now eligible for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloff in May.

Suspensions, Kayo Aftermath of Brawl

The chaps in Ottawa want the three branches of the services welded into one, but they may have some difficulty squeezing Army and Navy hockey teams into the same melting pot.

Especially after Friday's outbreak of hostilities at the Sports Centre.

The smoke is still clearing after one of the most riotous outbreaks in the five-year history of the Esquimalt Hockey League.

Nine players were tagged with game misconducts (and automatic one-game suspensions). One player was knocked unconscious. And, just for the record, Queen's Own Rifles won the slugfest, 12-5, over Navy.

The fracas erupted at 16:30 of the third period.

Navy's Gary Anderson, carrying the puck, was hooked by diminutive Tony Zeller. Anderson turned and started swinging.

BRIGADES CHARGE

The Army charged in to help Zeller and the Navy promptly shuffled its unit into the fray.

In the midst of the melee, about 10 feet from the boards and directly in front of the scorer's bench, stood Navy scoring ace Ray Gregoire.

Army's Red Parkins charged into the fray. Gregoire went sailing and was kayoed when the back of his head hit the boards. The Navy player was carried off the ice but revived later in the dressing room.

Referees Red Smith and Hank Hinkel tagged Parkins, Wayne Primeau, Len Desjardins and George Hurst, all of Army; and Navy's Gregoire, Anderson, Dave Davidson, Glen Bennett and Hardy Crowe with game misconducts.

MAJOR FOR ANDERSON

Anderson also was assessed a major for fighting while Zeller escaped without a penalty.

All nine players receiving the game misconducts will automatically sit out the next game.

Desjardins was perhaps the best player on the ice when combatants chose to play hockey. He scored three times and set up two Army goals.

Bob Buie scored twice for the out-classed (in a territorial sense) Navy team.

LIVERPOOL WINS

Late Goal Spree Topples Arsenal

LONDON (AP)—Liverpool whipped in three goals in the second half today for a 4-2 victory over Arsenal and thus retained its lead at the top of the English Soccer League standings by three points over Burnley.

A crowd of 44,000 turned out at Liverpool for the visit of Arsenal and at half-time the score was 1-1 — with the home fans finding little to cheer about.

But Liverpool stormed into the attack in the second half, scored goals through centre forward Ian St. John, right half Geoff Strong and inside right Roger Hunt.

Arsenal got a consolation goal four minutes from time through Tommy Baldwin.

STILL PRESSING

Burnley kept up its challenge for the first division championship — the one that takes the winner into the money-spinning European Cup of champions—by winning 5-2 at Fulham.

Leeds United, Tottenham Hotspur and West Bromwich Albion are bracketed in third place with 25 points.

The teams now are approaching the halfway mark in the championship.

Burnley centre-forward Willie Irvine scored three goals in Burnley's 5-2 win at Fulham.

There rarely seemed any danger of Fulham, now bottom of the First Division, seriously worrying Burnley. Halfback Brian O'Neill and left half Brian Miller got Burnley's other goals.

FIGHT RESULTS

Government Sorry About Extra Zero

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government collected about $850,000 for its supervisory services from this year's record pari-mutuel betting handle of $169,926,335 at thoroughbred race meetings.

The Canadian Press, in a cross-Canada survey on race-track betting, erroneously reported the federal collection as $8,500,000.

ON BOWLING LANES

Holiday Tourneys To Keep 'Em Busy

Although most city bowling leagues will have a break in their schedules for the Christmas season, pin-busters will have plenty to keep them busy.

They can go chasing prizes in several holiday handicap tournaments.

At Mayfair Lanes, for instance, there will be men's, women's and mixed doubles in both tenpins and fivepins.

Mayfair will run the tenpin events from Dec. 18 to Jan. 2.

In fivepins, women's doubles will be rolled Dec. 20 and 21 at 10 a.m., men's doubles Dec. 21 and 22 at 7 p.m., and mixed doubles Dec. 28 and 29 at 7 and 9 p.m.

Aurora Lanes will run three tenpin tourneys from Dec. 18 to Jan. 2. The events will be mixed doubles, men's doubles and a men's eight-game singles.

Gibson's Recreations will stage a mixed doubles fivepin turkey shoot Dec. 27 and 29, with shifts at 7 and 9 p.m., and a women's turkey shoot next Monday through Friday at 1:30.

Also carded at Gibson's is a three-division family doubles contest for Youth Bowling Council members. Bowling will be over three games in bantam, junior and senior divisions.

There will also be other holiday events and details may be obtained from the lanes.

COLTS FACE GREEN BAY . . . . . . IN KEY CLASH

Willies Give Shula the Shakes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don Shula has a healthy respect for Green Bay Packers' defence, Willie Davis and Willie Wood in particular, and looks for another bruising head-knocker Sunday when his Baltimore Colts meet the Packers in the National Football League's game of the year.

Baltimore, 9-2-1, and Green Bay, 9-3, will be fighting for first place in the Western Division on this next-to-last Sunday of the season.

"Just look where the ball is and you'll find Willie Davis and Willie Wood," said the Baltimore coach. "Green Bay has the finest defence in the league, real pressure defence. Forget the yards other teams have run against them, look at the touchdowns scored — nine on the ground and only seven in the air in 12 games."

Respectful as he is of the Packers' defence, Shula is confident young Gary Cuozzo can do the job as a replacement for injured Johnny Unitas at quarterback.

"Everything rides on this game," said Shula. "All the hard work of the season and all the sweat is at stake. If we win, it's all worthwhile. Our guys realize how important it is."

While the Colts and Packers are banging heads, Cleveland Browns, already set for the Jan. 2 league championship game as Eastern Division title-holders, play the Rams at Los Angeles.

Elsewhere, the NFL schedule has San Francisco 49ers at Chicago Bears, Minnesota Vikings at Detroit Lions, New York Giants at Washington Redskins and Philadelphia Eagles at Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday.

San Diego Chargers are favored to wrap up another Western Division title in the American Football League Sunday by defeating Houston Oilers.

The Chargers, with a season record of 7-2-3, can claim their fifth division title in six years by dumping the injury-ridden Oilers in Houston. The Oilers are 4-8 for the season.

Oakland Raiders, with a mathematical shot at the Western title should the Chargers stumble, entertains New York Jets Sunday. Buffalo Bills, with the Eastern Division crown locked up, host Kansas City Chiefs and division tail-enders Boston Patriots and Denver Broncos collide at Denver in other games.

The Baltimore-Green Bay game will be televised Sunday at 11 a.m. on channels 2, 6, 7 and 12, followed by the Los Angeles-Cleveland game on 7 and 12 at 1 p.m.

Kentucky Passer In Ranks of Rich

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Rick Norton, Kentucky's strong-armed quarterback, reportedly has become the second richest rookie in professional football.

Miami Dolphins of the American Football League announced Friday they had signed Norton, their No. 1 draft choice, to direct their first team to be fielded next year.

Neither Norton nor Dolphin president Joe Robbie would discuss the price tag, but both Miami papers said it was $300,000 over four years.

Only Joe Namath, Alabama quarterback who signed with New York Jets for $400,000, got more.

KNEE IN CAST

Norton's right knee was still in a cast from an operation to repair torn ligaments. But he said the cast could come off any time.

Joe Thomas, executive assistant to Robbie, said Norton "can throw the long ball better than any of them. He's a better long passer than Namath too."

National Football League's Cleveland Browns had drafted Norton as their No. 2 choice.

Norton, 6-foot-2, 195 pounds, completed 302 of 573 passes for 24 touchdowns and 4,514 yards during three seasons with Kentucky.

Sports in Action To Jump With U.S. Parachutist Aces

He steps out into the thin air more than a mile above the earth and goes into an ethereal ballet as he hurdles downward at 120 miles an hour. This is the brand of sportsman featured on NBC Sports in Action's presentation of the National Parachuting Championships, tonight at 5:30 on Channel 5.

Parachuting is one of the fastest growing of the jet age sports, and the 75 men and women finalists who qualified for the ninth national championships at Orange, Mass., represents the cream of nearly 8,000 sporting 'chutists who had competed in regional meets throughout the country.

But, while the daredevil jumpers, shooting for the points that go with being able to hit a figurative pinpoint on the ground in the accuracy trials, or those that come with the nonchalance of style in the precipitous free-fall event, are enough to challenge the imagination of any viewer, "NBC Sports In Action" coverage of their performances is designed to add an even more exciting dimension.

Series' producer Stuart Schulberg explains: "Parachuting is one of those 'new' sports that have come into their own since the end of World War II. Surfboarding and spearfishing, which incidentally we will be covering in color as the season goes on, are examples of the same genre.

"But parachuting is unique among all sports in that it can't really be appreciated except on television. Looking up from the ground, even the most rabid parachuting enthusiast will see only a speck in the sky. In our coverage, you're literally side-by-side with the jumper."

The key to this unique coverage is cameraman Ralph White of Los Angeles. With a 16-mm. color camera mounted in his helmet, he jumps with the contestants and records in slow motion the mid-air performances of the contenders for championship honors.

One of the highlights of the Dec. 11 program is a conversation between host Jim Simpson and White on the techniques and potential dangers of parachuting photography.

Among the leading American 'chutists competing in the national championships are Sgt. Ray Duffy of the U.S. Army parachute team; Tim Saltonstall of Ithaca, N.Y., grandson of Senator Leverett Saltonstall; Ray Johnson of Warren, Ohio, and Hector Nunez of Los Angeles.

Outstanding among the women jumpers are Susan Clements, a housewife from Oakland, Calif.; Maxine Hartman, a New York free lance writer, and Karen Roach, a secretary at the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

The weekly KVOS-TV public affairs program Channel 12 Special will present a sobering examination of Alcohol and the Driver, Sunday at 9 p.m.

Produced especially for the pre-holiday period, the program was video taped in sections over a 2½-hour period in a "human experiment" before the cameras. Captain DeWitt Whitman of the State Patrol's technical department in Olympia, Wash., will conduct the experiment, using the patrol's latest testing and analysis facilities. The victim, who will appear voluntarily, will be put through certain tests in a sober state, then will drink certain quantities of liquor at given times, followed by more tests in the 2½-hour period.

Alcohol and the Driver will not employ screeching noises and bloody pictures to frighten anyone, but will attempt to simply document the effect of alcohol on a person's ability to think, react and perform. The often controversial Breatholizer, a machine used to measure blood alcohol, will be used and explained in the program.

Duayne Trecker is host and narrator.

The New Morality

"Challenge" will discuss "New Morality or Immorality" Sunday at 6 p.m. over Channel 4.

In the light of the current rush to entertainment spots which feature topless go-go girls, the panel will probe the deeper meanings of this trend. Up for examination will be the apparent changing of moral standards and a move to more "liberal" allowances.

This change, which has been labelled as the "new morality," is alarming to the traditionists, who believe the standards for moral and immoral behavior do not change.

Yuletide Opera

"Amahl and the Night Visitors," Gian Carlo Menotti's Yuletide opera, will have its 16th presentation on the NBC television network, Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

The cast is headed by Kurt Yaghjian as Amahl and Martha King as the mother. The Three Kings are played by John McCollum as King Caspar, Willis Patterson as King Balthasar and Richard Cross as King Melchior. The role of the page is sung by Julian Patrick. Herbert Grossman is the conductor.

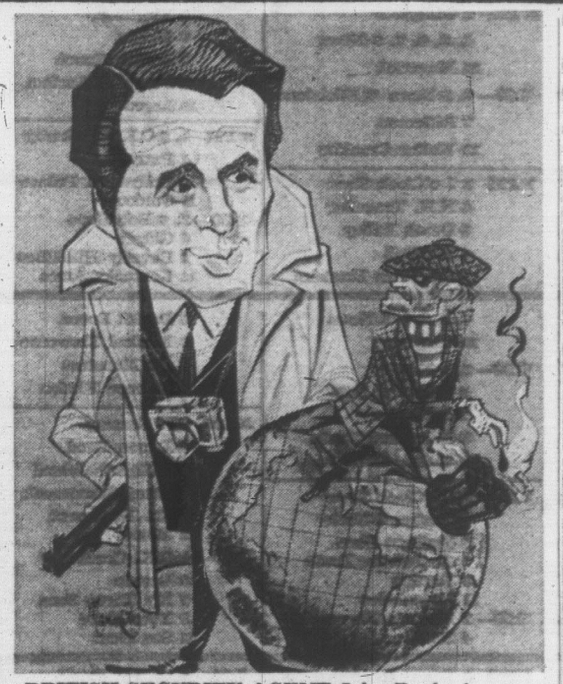

This opera, the first to be commissioned especially for television by the National Broadcasting Company, was given its world premiere on NBC in the production by the NBC Opera Company on Christmas Eve, 1951. It has been presented every year in the Christmas season since then, and also was performed at Easter in 1952. Since its first showing, it has been hailed by music and television critics as a masterpiece. It has won almost every television award.

Wild Kingdom

Marlin Perkins and Jim Fowler come face to face with some of the strange things of the wilderness that seem to defy logical explanation in "Mysteries of the Wild" on "Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom" color series, Sunday at 1 p.m. on Channel 5.

In some of the most remarkable scenes ever captured on film, Perkins and Fowler explore such natural mysteries as the unexplained force which causes the grunions to swim ashore each year at exactly the same place and time to lay their eggs.

What enables the trap-door spider to perceive its prey from beneath its "trap-door" tunnel and to leap out at precisely the exact moment? How does the small ferret outwit and kill the deadly king cobra? Why does the rare lyre bird of Australia present his beautiful "fan dance" for his mate, and why is it so seldom witnessed by man?

BRITISH SECURITY AGENT John Drake is portrayed by Patrick McGoohan in the Secret Agent series, tonight at 8:30 on Channel 7. The agent's assignments lead him into dangerous situations all over the world. Tonight, Drake travels to Lisbon, Portugal.

Other weekend viewing highlights are listed in order of appearance as follows:

TONIGHT

7:00: Channel 7: America. A film tour of Wyoming.

9:30: Channel 4: Hollywood Palace. Hostess Caterina Valente presents Bill Cosby, Bill Dana and others.

10:00: Channel 2: Jazz Scene, U.S.A. Host Oscar Brown Jr. and Lou Rawls discuss the jazz singer.

10:30: Channel 4: ABC Scope. For All the World's Children, a report on the work of UNICEF.

SUNDAY

8:00: Channel 7: Lamp Unto My Feet. Problems in translating the Bible are examined by the experts.

ELSA LANCHESTER

Headmistress 'Tolerates' Her Pupils

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Elsa Lanchester's role as the head mistress of a girl's school on a new television series has convinced her she was right in not having any children of her own.

"Working with 120 girls on the show makes me thankful that Charles and I never had any youngsters," she said with startling frankness.

"Oh, the children are not so bad, but from the moment a child is born the difficult period begins—and endures for 20 years or more."

Miss Lanchester, the widow of Charles Laughton, is a woman of great wit and charm. She is never at a loss for words, and on the subject of children she has a great many words indeed.

"I haven't had an opportunity to know the girls on the series," she said during a lunch break at Universal Studios where she costars in "The John Forsythe Show."

"I took the part because I need a family, and I wanted to see people every day," she explained. "I love to come to the studio every day with a script under my arm. It reminds me of being a school girl again myself.

"Charles, you see, was a larger than life kind of man. His impact on the outside world was so great people still speak of him all the time. And I live with that.

"It was absolutely necessary that I create a new life for myself, an active, busy life.

LIFE IS FINE

"This new family life is fine, but I'm grateful we didn't have youngsters of our own. We traveled so much and both worked for so many years we wouldn't have been able to devote the proper time to them.

"And once a man has children he must work and scrape around to provide the best sort of life for them. Those are difficult years that confine ambitions and hopes in the hearts of people."

As a mother figure on the NBC-TV series, the young females seek out Miss Lanchester for advice.

"One little girl said she was going to watch me to learn as much as she could about acting," Miss Lanchester laughed.

"I act instinctively. I don't believe in teaching acting or going to an acting school. The only way to learn to act is to stand at the window of life and absorb everything you see.

"The littlest ones on the show are marvelous at remembering their lines. But I must admit I don't seek them out.

"In my life I've done my part to deaccelerate the population explosion. And I can recall even as a youngster myself that I didn't want to have any offspring.

"But I hope people won't mistake my attitude toward children for dislike. I don't dislike them. I'm just terribly neutral about the whole subject."

How the President Lives

Documentary Series Brings Intimate Study Monday 7 p.m. Ch. 5

"Seven Days in the Life of the President," an intimate study of Lyndon B. Johnson during one hectic week of crises and decisions, will be telecast Monday at 7 p.m. on Channel 5's Something Different series.

One of a new series of "March of Time" documentaries created by David L. Wolper Productions in association with Time-Life, the hour-long special focuses on the awesome burdens of the president and concentrates on how he directs his administration toward the accomplishment of his projected goals.

A fast-moving mobile camera crew headed by Alan Landsburg, producer-director, trailed the chief executive's daily movements, shooting candid unstaged meetings with aides and high-echelon policy makers.

Landsburg had access to the President's historic West Wing offices and to other important rooms and corridors of the White House.

Visits of Secretary of Defence Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other cabinet officials are covered, as are talks with congressional leaders such as Senators Mike Mansfield and Russell Long.

The program bares the President's relationships with congressmen, a critical White House press corps and an admiring public.

Excerpts from several of his speeches are heard, and a voice-over commentary for the special is supplied by Mr. Jonhson.

The special takes a searching look at the President's preoccupation with politics and the techniques of power.

The camera views the "Johnson style" in action; his boundless energy, force and volubility also are recorded on film.

It takes a close-up look at a man of contrasts, the personal complexity of LBJ. He is tough, sensitive, unreasonable, irascible; and he is humble, sentimental, and gifted with warm, honesty and a rugged charm.

Leonard Bernstein

Leonard Bernstein turns the spotlight on "The Sound of an Orchestra" when he conducts and narrates the second of this season's New York Philharmonic Young People's Concerts Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

Bernst in points out that a great orchestra should not have its own personal sound, piece after piece.

"The sound of a great orchestra is one that can change on a dime from one composer's style to another—from Haydn to Beethoven to Debussy to Mahler," he says.

For his program, taped in Philharmonic Hall in New York's Lincoln Center, Bernstein features the Largo Movement from the Symphony No. 88 by Joseph Haydn; the movement of "Iberia" by Claude Debussy; the Royal March from "The Story of a Soldier" by Igor Stravinsky and the Hoedown from "Rodeo" by Aaron Copland.

"The core of all our devotion and service to music," says Bernstein, "is to re-create the sound of a composer . . . to make the kind of sounds we believe he heard in his mind when he wrote the music."

Comedy Special

Jack Benny, Janet Leigh, Nancy Wilson and special guest Bing Crosby will join Bob Hope when "Chrysler Presents a Bob Hope Comedy Special" Wednesday at 8:30 on Channels 2 and 6 and 9 p.m. Channel 5.

Hope will play a trio of comedy characters, ranging from an unconventional Santa Claus to a politically minded movie star. Music for the program will be provided by Les Brown and his Band.

Musical highlights will include Bing Crosby's rendition of the Christmas song "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and Nancy Wilson singing "This Dream" and "I'll Only Miss Him."

Hope will appear in a comedy sketch with Bing Crosby as a tenant who finds himself less than welcome in Bing's Palm Springs home when Bing finds a buyer for the mansion.

Janet Leigh will portray movie star Linda Luscious who is married to movie star Rodney Heartbinder, a man with great political ambitions.

Hope will appear as Santa Claus, complete with a squad of "elves" and some highly unusual reindeer in a North Pole setting, which Jack Benny plays a Scrooge-type prison escapee, who decides to take over the Santa Claus racket.

Yuletide Classic

"Mr. Magoo's Christmas Carol," television's first animated cartoon version of Charles Dickens' Yuletide classic, will be presented in color Friday, at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

Jim Backus stars as the voice of Mr. Magoo, who portrays Ebenezer ("Bah, Humbug!") Scrooge, the man who hates Christmas.

This Barbara Chain adaptation of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" is a faithful rendering of the classic, retaining the spirit, the seriousness and the humor Dickens intended to convey. The production also includes special original music and lyrics composed by Jule Styne and Bob Merrill.

In addition to Backus, a notable cast was assembled for the full-hour special originally colorcast in 1962 and repeated in 1963 and 1964.

Amazon Adventure

"Northwest Traveler" boards the launch "The Helper" for a 20-day, 150-mile trip down the Amazon to carry on medical and dental work among the natives in "Amazon Adventure" Wednesday, at 7 p.m., over Channel 4.

EVICTED in the middle of the night by landlord Bing Crosby, is Bob Hope, during a comedy sketch on the Bob Hope Comedy Special, Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6, and 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

As the launch stops at each village displaying a white flag on a pole along the river, viewers will get a first hand look at life on the banks of this ancient and famous river. Houses built on stilts, women washing clothes on the banks and grass skirt clad natives give indication that the way of life along the Amazon has changed little with the centuries.

Highlights of "Amazon Adventure," which was filmed by motion picture photoyist Lovell M. Groves of Longview, Washington, include: a jungle school where some must sit on the ground, a blowgun demonstration, a jungle walk and confrontation with a 14-foot Anaconda snake, and witnessing of the long hours the medical team spends helping the poor and backwrad natives.

Creator and host of the Channel 4 adventure series, George Carlson, will interview Groves on his exciting journey down the Amazon, where it would take 15 days for the people in the area to paddle for medical help if it were not for these special missions.

Next year's licence plates are out as a Christmas gift for motorists in B.C.

The plates don't go on sale until Jan. 1 and the signature of the vehicle owner must be on the renewal form.

Crew Rescued From Freighter

ST. JUST, England (Reuters) The German tug Atlantic today made slow but steady progress toward the northern French port of Brest, towing the crippled Greek freighter Costantis after rescuing the ship's crew, which refused to stay aboard.

The tug-freighter combination was reported meeting only a moderate sea and expecting to reach Brest about noon Sunday.

The stern of the freighter, stricken Thursday when it sprung a leak en route from Bremen to New York, was awash and its bow out of the water. Holds were flooded.

Early today the Atlantic took off the last of the Costantis' 26 crew members in a rubber dinghy connected to a lifeline.

Three members of the Costantis's crew were washed overboard Thursday night. One, the second officer, was rescued but another was drowned and the third is missing.

Woman, 64, Locked Up 44 Years

CERAMI, Sicily (AP) — Police have arrested and charged a couple Thursday with enslaving a woman relative by locking her up 44 years in a barn with their animals.

Gaetano Giordano, 70, and his wife, Francesca, 67, were jailed. Giordano's sister, Giuseppa, 64, stepped outdoors Wednesday for the first time since she was 20 years old.

Acting on a tip, police broke into an isolated barn and found the emaciated woman crouching in straw and filth with four cows, a donkey and a flock of chickens.

Police said Giordano and his wife told them the woman was mentally defective. She was put under hospital treatment for malnutrition.

The tiny, bent woman, her hair wispy and white, can say only that she is called "beppa," the Italian nickname for Giuseppa. She stares in amazement at anything she does not recognize from the rural setting of pre-1920.

Children Die In Fire

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP)—Three children of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Weinrauch died Friday in a fire in their parents' trailer in this city 120 miles southeast of Regina. Douglas, 5; his brother, Lloyd, 4, and a sister, Debby, 2, were alone in the trailer about 200 yards from the restaurant in which their mother was working.

PUBLIC PROBE into alleged election irregularities in Forestry Minister Sauve's Magdalen Islands riding has been demanded by Yukon Tory MP Erik Nielsen. "The government should have acted by now," Nielsen said.

India Gets Food

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India and the United States signed an agreement Friday for the shipment of 1.5 million tons of American food grains to drought-stricken India to help meet its present food crisis.

New High-Speed Bomber Given Go-Ahead by LBJ

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson gave the go-ahead Friday for a new high-speed bomber to cost an estimated $1,750,000,000 by the time 210 of them are in operation by 1971.

To be known as the FB-111, it will be a modification of the F-111, the controversial fighter once called the TFX.

The U.S. defence department's civilian and military chiefs conferred with Johnson for more than three hours at his ranch near Johnson City. Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara later told a press conference here about plans for the new bomber.

McNamara said the FB-111 will fly twice as fast as the latest model of the B-52, have equal range and far greater capacity to penetrate enemy territory. The latest B-52 has a speed of about 650 miles an hour and 9,000-mile range.

He told of plans for the new bomber when asked for his comment on criticism by members of Congress and others of his decision to retire 425 older B-52s over the next few years.

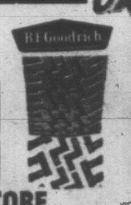

He said the first of the new bombers will be in operation in 1968 with all to be ready by 1971.

McNamara said the FB-111 would be capable of both strategic and tactical missions and equipped to carry either nuclear or conventional bombs. He placed its load capacity at 50 high-explosive bombs weighing 750 pounds each.

Arthur Mayse

On my desk today, I have a hardy and challenging young magazine produced in heart's-blood, sweat and acid by a University of Victoria undergraduate crew.

Its name is tryste, and for an off-campus price of 25 cents, it offers what I'm firmly convinced is the most stimulating intellectual hotfoot available in this city.

Although bedevilled by a skinny budget and the occasional necessity of studying for examinations, tryste's staff of 14 tackles large projects with arrogant assurance.

For their featured article, the editors cajoled and I expect bullied nine Victoria-based artists, art critics and instructors into a three-hour bout of shop talk which may well be unique of its kind.

The dialogue—a stilted term which by no means fits the discussion—was then taped and ruthlessly edited.

To anyone even casually interested in modern art, this distillation is worth the price of the magazine alone.

It is, however, backed up by several wonderfully sadistic cartoons, a capsule short story by an unidentified student author who has come a long way in his craft, and a tongue-in-cheek book review which pleased me immensely.

There's more, but those samples must suffice.

One warning: tryste is not for traditionalists, and these buy it at their own risk!

Most novel Christmas gift suggestion so far to hand comes from Canadian Red Cross Society, which would like nothing better from 1200 or more of its Victoria friends than a highly-individualized present of a pint of blood apiece.

With the period of stepped-up wassail and consequent erratic driving, it's grimly inevitable that a number of citizens are going to need varying quantities of blood to replace accident induced leakage.

Monday through Thursday or next week, Victoria Red Cross transfusion service hopes to tap the vital flow of donors at Fort Street headquarters and various temporary clinics.

Piercing deeper into the subject, I learn that the average adult has 12 to 13 pints of blood in his tank, and that type percentages for each hundred donors average out like this:

Forty-six have O-type blood; 42, A; 9, B; and three, AB type.

The familiar blood bottle in which the transfusion service stores our vital juice against a ume of need will soon be replaced by a plastic bag. This move will do away with the danger of breakage, and the new containers will occupy less space in the refrigerated vans which transport donations to Red Cross depots.

To conclude this pitch, it just could be that the gift of blood becomes a mere loan. It isn't probable, but I'm told it's possible that the sometime donor in vital need of a transfusion could get his own blood back.

McPherson Playhouse proposes to end its splendid program of noon concerts for this year on Friday, Dec. 17, with a treat which I hope not to miss.

This will be a carol service by Uplands School Choir, a group of boys and girls which has quietly been garnering festival and other honors to itself. Not the least of these is the taping of a performance for distribution by Children's Library, to points as far distant as Samoa.

Teacher-choir leader Mrs. Lorna Griffith will conduct, and two outstanding Victoria soloists will contribute their voices to the concert. These are Mrs. Peggy Walton Packard and Mrs. Erika Kurth.

Concert will start at 12 noon, and end at 1, which should make it a natural for weary Christmas shoppers. If, next Friday, you happen to be one of these, why not limp across Centennial Square to the Mac, pay 35 cents admission, and sit easy for an hour of carols by the most angelic voices we'll hear this happy season?

Police Press City Search For Pair of Armed Thieves

Silk-Stocking Bandit Gets $20 From Store

By DESMOND BILL

City police today are pressing the search for two bandits who held up stores in Victoria Friday.

Police picked up suspects within an hour after each holdup but let them go after questioning.

Two frightened women were threatened by the gunmen but one got mad and called the bandit's bluff. The other woman was robbed.

The first holdup occured downtown in the afternoon when a man walked into Indian Craft Shoppe, 905 Government, shortly before 3 p.m.

Saleswoman Dorothy Hart said she "didn't like his looks. He wore tight off-white pants and a black quilted jacket and he had a cigarette hanging out the side of his mouth."

She asked if she could help him and he asked for a piece of paper. Mrs. Hart thought he wanted to write down a description of some merchandise.

'THIS IS HOLDUP'

But he went to one side and printed a note on the paper, then handed it to her.

It read, "This is a holdup. Don't try to call police. I've got a gun on you."

Mrs. Hart said she has often wondered what she would do if someone tried to rob the store. But she said she cannot account for what she did do when it happened.

She waved the bandit to the front of the store where a woman customer was browsing through the postcards on a rack. She told the bandit, "I haven't much money here. Come up to the front."

He followed her to the end of the counter near the door and she leaned over the counter to him.

"Now git," she shouted at him.

Said Mrs. Hart, "I guess he thought I really meant it. I repeated it. 'Git.' I was shaking; really terrified. He looked at me and opened the door. He looked again and then ran off."

CALL HIS BLUFF

Mrs. Hart did not think the bandit actually had a gun.

"He had his right hand in his pocket but it didn't look like he had a gun. I decided I could call his bluff."

Mrs. Hart said the bandit took the note with him when he ran out. She immediately telephoned police, who picked up a suspect but let him go within minutes.

The second holdup took place shortly after 9 p.m. at Barnes' Grocery, 1611 Bay Street, when a man whose face was covered with a silk stocking robbed Miss Edith Barnes of about $20.

Miss Barnes said she was alone in the store when the thief entered a few minutes after the last customer had left.

Miss Barnes said it was just like the movies. The man walked up to the counter and told her, "Stick 'em up."

She raised her hands over her head.

She asked him, "What do you want?"

"The money in that cash register."

'WANT IT ALL'

She gave him some of it but he said, "I want it all."

She handed it over.

Miss Barnes said the man appeared to have a gun that he partly concealed by pulling the sleeve of his Indian sweater over it. She said she could see the shiny end of the gun barrel.

As soon as the gunman left Miss Barnes locked all the doors to the store and the living quarters behind it and telephoned police. Within a half-hour they picked up a suspect on the parking lot of a Douglas Street hotel.

GOOD EXPLANATION

The man wore an Indian sweater and a tam, he had a toy gun in his car and a woman's stocking.

Under questioning he admitted being at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, only two blocks from the scene of the holdup, shortly before 9 p.m.

But police said the man had a good explanation for the articles in his possession and could account for all his movements in the crucial period. And Miss Barnes did not identify him in a lineup at the police station.

She said "stocking or no stocking I'd recognize him if I ever saw him."

GABRIOLA MAN DIES IN MISHAP

A 42-year-old Gabriola Island man died at the wheel of his car early today.

Merville Edgar was on his way home when he lost control of the car.

It flipped over and came to rest in a ditch beside the island's main road.

Residents in a nearby house found Edgar trapped in the car.

By the time a doctor arrived, Edgar was dead.

An inquiry will be held by Nanaimo coroner Russ Inkster.

Gabriola is three miles east of Nanaimo.

'Compulsory Rule Mocks University Freedom Idea'

By BOB DONAHUE

A decision is expected soon on a submission by University of Victoria students asking for non-compulsory attendance at lectures.

The matter has been sent to the university senate.

"It's the principle of the thing," said student president Paul Williamson.

●

"Compulsory attendance at lectures is too much like high school and it mocks the idea of freedom in a university.

"It doesn't mean that students are going to stop attending lectures altogether, but it does mean that if a student can pass a course without attending all lectures he won't fail because of the attendance rule."

●

At the present time the rules of the university state that students must attend 7/8 of the lectures in a course.

However, the rules are rarely applied because attendance is seldom taken by professors.

"This is something we inherited from the University of B.C.," said Mr. Williamson, "and we want to get rid of it."

ROCK-FILL BREAKWATER built by federal government at Oak Bay Marina may be extended past southern tip of Mary Tod Island (background) to provide further protection for pleasure craft in tricky Oak Bay waters. The proposal, being considered by council, would leave a channel for small boats between the breakwater and the island. Total cost of the extension is estimated at $200,000. Ottawa would pay half. ACCUSED CALLED 'LUCKY'

Nicholas Lupkosky was lucky he wasn't charged with assaulting a police officer, Magistrate William Ostler told him in central court today.

Lupkosky, address unknown, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance downtown early this morning and was fined $150.

Court was told he was placed on a $500 bond when convicted of wilful damage in May.

Police said Lupkosky was shouting at a crosswalk on Yates St. and struck one of the arresting officers on the mouth trying to break free.

"You are heading toward being a street rowdy," Magistrate Ostler told him.

"You are lucky the crown did not charge you with assaulting a police officer which would have meant jail."

Thieves Get $12

A break-in overnight at Hocking and Forbes sporting goods, 770 Yates, netted thieves only $12, city police said today.

The window in a rear door was smashed to gain entry.

REPORT READY

Council Gets High-Rise Bid

The controversial high-rise apartment question in Cadboro Bay will come before Saanich council at its meeting Monday.

On the agenda is the report of the Advisory Planning Commission on the application to rezone 10 acres off Haro Road near the university "for high-rise apartment and cluster-type complex apartment use."

Council can accept or reject the recommendation of the commission. It is thought likely that a public hearing will be called. The planning commission's recommendation will not be disclosed until the council meeting.

The application for rezoning is from Sherwood Oaks Estates and Bay Meadows Estates. Principals in the companies are realtor Byron Price and lawyer Robert Price.

A similar application two years ago was narrowly defeated at council. The Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association has again protested the move for high-rise apartments as an encroachment on a single-family dwelling area.

The meeting will be the first in the new council chamber apart from the formal opening last Monday.

Thirty-five items are listed for attention on the agenda circulated today.

Naden Honors Retiring Reeve

Ceremonial divisions were held Friday at HMCS Naden to honor Esquimalt's retiring Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

The reeve, a former navy commander, has served 20 years on Esquimalt council—14 of them as chief magistrate.

The ceremony was attended by Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer, Pacific Coast.

It was followed by a reception in the Naden wardroom.

Ask The Times

Q. Is O Canada officially our national anthem? If so, when did it become the national anthem? B.D.D.

A. The national songs of Canada have tended to be O Canada, originally a "chant national" of French-speaking Canadians; The Maple Leaf Forever, formerly used widely by English-speaking Canadians, and God Save the Queen.

The music for O Canada was written in 1880 by Calixa Lavallee, a resident of Vercheres.

Present and mostly widely accepted words for the song were written in 1908 by R. Stanley Weir, a Montreal exchequer court judge.

O Canada was first adopted as a national song by the Association of Canadian Clubs and other national bodies in 1921, says Encyclopedia Canadiana.

SURPLUS STALL RICHER BY 750 CANS OF FOOD

The Free Food Stall is richer by about 750 cans of food thanks to youngsters who attended a show at the Odean Theatre this morning.

Admission to the two-hour showing of cartoons and comedies, sponsored by the 700 Block Yates Merchants Association, was one or more cans of food.

Over 700 children attended, some bringing an extra can or two.

The canned food show is the 12th annual held to benefit Mrs. E. E. Harper's Free Food Stall, which provides food for needy Victoria families.

SMALL BIRDS UP TO 75 CENTS

Gobbler Prices Higher

Turkey prices are expected to be a few cents higher this Christmas than last year.

Small turkeys, generally the most popular, were quoted by one retailer today at 73 to 75 cents per pound for eight to 10 pound size. This is for fresh Vancouver Island birds.

Medium turkeys (14 or 20 pounds) were quoted at 65 to 70 cents per pound while those between 24 and 35 pounds were 55 to 58 cents per pound.

Most turkeys bought by Greater Victorians are brought in principally from Vancouver and the Prairies.

One retailer said there once were 100 breeders on Vancouver Island but only 10 to 14 now.

The more popular frozen, eviscerated turkeys were quoted at prices a little less than fresh birds.

One wholesaler gave these prices: six to 10 pounds, 49 cents per pound; 10 to 16 pounds, 49 cents; 16 to 20 pounds, 46 cents, and 22 pounds up, 44 cents.

Retail prices will vary but generally are expected to be 10 cents above the wholesale price.

Pioneer's Daughter Mrs. Anker, 77, Dies

Mrs. Edith Evelyn Anker, daughter of a pioneer Victoria family, died in St. Joseph's Hospital early today at the age of 77.

Born in Victoria, she was the wife of Reginald Charles Anker, who survived her at their home at 1258 Balmoral Road.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Creed, came to Victoria in the early 1890s and settled in the vicinity of Fernwood and Pandora Avenue.

Mrs. Anker is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Stanley Cornish and Mrs. Ian MacDonald; her sister, Mrs. Albert Jordan; her brother, John Creed, and four grandchildren, all living in Victoria.

Rev. Angus Cameron of Lundevra will conduct funeral services at McCall's main chapel, 1400 Vancouver Street, Tuesday at 10:30 a.m., to be followed by cremation.

THINGS AREN'T WHAT THEY SEEM to the camera sometimes. Here at first glance is a field of blooms and spear grass. But it's really an array of turkeys, chins tucked in, tail feathers erect and a baleful look in their eyes. The gobbler gathering was at a Langford turkey farm. Birds have been invited to Christmas dinners all over district. Those who "haven't got a thing to wear" have been promised adequate dressing. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

These Mittens Stay When Children Play

By Penny Saver

Do you remember those long cords that our mothers used to knit to our mittens so that we would not lose them? Granted, we did not lose them, but my mother has told me many times that I used to come wandering in with white hands, mittens dangling from my cuffs. Thinking about it now, perhaps my mother overestimated my size, and made the cord much too long.

In one shop, I found pairs of mittens with attached cords selling for 89 cents to $1.49 the pair. These warm woollens come in shades of pink, blue, navy blue, and brown.

Thermal-lined mitts, selling for 98 cents the pair, are available in red, grey, and blue. My nephew, who frequents Alberta slopes, claims from a skier's standpoint that nothing can top them. They are water-proof and elasticized at the wrist and forearm.

When youngsters come trooping in after a hard day at play, they more often than not just peel off their boots, and wander about in their stocking feet. Slippers, consisting of knitted socks and a leather sole, sell in this store from $1.29 to $1.49.

The colors include yellow and white, white, grey, red and blue, and many others. Sizes, including half sizes, are from 5 to 6.

An item that every child will adore is a pyjama bag, in the form of an animal. A baby lamb, with a blue tail and ribbon, sells for $5.95. These are made of soft orlon and are completely washable. The zipper is concealed underneath, so that it resembles a stuffed toy.

A pink puppy with flopping ears, selling for the same price, is also an attractive pyjama bag.

A lovable stuffed donkey sells for $3.85. It has a golden coat, and a black mane and tail. In a sitting position, this pet will grace any child's bed. Made of orlon, it is completely washable.

OAPO WORKER

An Elderly Picketer Becomes Bride Today

A wedding of interest to many of Victoria's senior citizens took place in the side chapel of St. Andrew's Cathedral this afternoon when Petronella Irene Gunterman became the bride of James Maunsey Lawrance. Both widowed, the newlyweds are 75 and 82 respectively.

The snowy-white hair of the bride was flattered with a hand-painted pansy headpiece which she had made herself and trimmed with tulle. It toned with her mauve gown, also made by herself, which featured sleeves of lace. Fr. W. H. Bulloch officiated at the ceremony.

The principals are both members of the Silver Threads and Old Age Pensioners' Organization No. 5.

The groom is well-known, both in Victoria and other Vancouver Island points, as well as Arrow Lake where he formerly lived.

His bride has lived in Victoria for the past 3½ years. She comes from Ganges, Salt Spring Island, where she was prominent in OAPO work, having helped to build up Branch No. 32 and serving as president for three years. Forced to retire through ill health, she was honored by being made honorary president.

She made headlines during the recent postal strike by picketing the main post office and fighting for delivery of pension cheques.

The couple plans to live at the Chandler Hotel.

On the Party Line

Decisions, decisions! Miss Julie Pelland, right, suggests a string of silver tinsel as fireplace decoration while, below, her sister Sue argues the merits of a wreath with Terry Mann. This will form part of the decor of a party to be given by the sisters in their Capital Heights home on December 21. Holding up her end of the bargain with Julie is Miss Elaine Mellor.

As soon as the last paper is written, University of Victoria students will have an event-packed weekend in store for them. Friday, December 17, a semi-formal dance will be held in the Crystal Garden for Uvic students only, with music by The Pharoahs, Jack Carmichael and the Ambassadors. The Coachmen will play for a dance on Saturday night for students in the Old Club Sirocco. Sunday, students will tour the city singing carols. Among their stops will be Government House, and deans' residences. Adding to the decorations in the university are Miss Linda Tomczak, bottom left, and clockwise, Harry Ford, Louis Capson, Margaret Newell, convener for the events; Mike McMartin, Barbara Hall and Kevin McCullough.

Newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Conconi discuss the music planned for the New Year's Eve party of the Victoria Motor Sport Club. Mr. Conconi is convening the event, being held in Surfside 66, which will feature a buffet dinner and plenty of dancing. More than 150 members and their guests are planning to attend the affair.

Enter the holiday season and Victoria's younger set is ready and waiting for it.

Christmas is the time for fun, laughter and renewing of old friendships and what better way to do it than with a party.

From as early as Dec. 1, the phone lines and mails have been crowded with arrangements and invitations to dances, parties and other events planned to celebrate the holiday.

Although the beginning of December heralds the start of examinations, university students are ready to forget term papers and textbooks for formal frocks and festive decorations as soon as the last buzzer sounds.

Clubs find the season ideal for wrapping up the year's work in a package of fun. Even though the season has barely begun, social calendars are becoming more crowded every day with invitations to every type of affair imaginable—"come-as-you-are" parties, "open house" and formal functions.

The younger set is pouring all its energy into making this a Christmas to remember and you can bet it will succeed.

BILL HALKETT

"Informal" is how John Thies, centre, and his co-host Peter Brown describe the party they are having on December 23. There are more than 50 guests expected to attend the event in the San Pedro Road home of Mr. Thies. The Misses Penny Clark, left, and Eleanor Colwell joke with the men about some of the decorations John and Peter are planning to display.

Six-year-old Krishna Bains gazes admiringly as her mother, Mrs. K. S. Bains models the sari she is planning to wear when she and her husband entertain at a cocktail party on December 21. Mrs. E. Brady offers a few feminine observations. The Bains have sent 30 invitations for the affair in their Holmes Road home.

Even the young men of Victoria are caught up in the whirl of planning parties for the holiday season. This intent "stag line" are members of the planning committee for the Boxing Day dance of the Old Boys' Association of Glenlyon Preparatory School for Boys. Left to right, they are Mr. David Marshall, Mr. Ian Reid, Mr. Matthew Wade, Mr. Andrew Wade and Mr. Christopher Denny. The dance will be semi-formal and staged in the main ballroom of the Crystal Garden. There will be 350 guests and Len Acres' orchestra will play for dancing. (Irving Strickland photo.)

Gala gowns for the festive season . . .

With all the festive doings between now and the New Year you'll probably want a festive new dress . . . if for no other reason than to put you in the right spirit . . . make you look, and feel, gay and glamorous . . In your quest for such a gown, do make Miss Frith's your first port of call . . . their collection of ball gowns, hostess gowns and after-five dresses is, without exaggeration, exciting! . . . There are brocades, chiffons, velvets, peau de soie . . . lames, brocades and crepes . . . as elaborate . . . or as simple . . . as suits your fancy . . . and covering a wide price range starting at around $30 . . . We want to say a special word for the separates . . . which so many women seem to be looking for this season . . . shell tops glittering with sequins or sparkly beads . . . to wear with long black crepe skirts for formal occasions . . . Short skirts fill the bill beautifully for cocktail parties or other festive Yuletide get-togethers . . . Most of the short after-five frocks have sleeves . . . the Spanish influence is to the fore in black crepe dresses with long, full sheer sleeves of chiffon, silk, organdy or lace . . . One with a trumpet flared skirt is very Oo-la-la! Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., EV 3-4912.

Free hair and scalp analysis . . .

Hair problems? . . . Tresses too dry, too oily, coming out in handfuls . . . thinning on top, shedding dandruff on your shoulders . . . breaking at the ends whenever you wield a comb? . . . Most of us women seem to have one or another of these worrisome conditions from time to time . . . and the main problem is, we often don't know WHY . . . Well, here's your chance to find out . . . for free . . . and get expert advice on how to correct the problem . . . Next Tuesday, December 14th, a hair expert from Vancouver will be on hand at the House of Glamour . . . along with a Capilano-de-Paris machine which has an uncanny ability to show up the hair shaft and reveal just what's wrong with your hair . . . and why! . . . Armed with this knowledge, you can start doing something definite about it . . . You don't need an appointment . . . just go in to the House of Glamour anytime between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. . . . the whole process takes only 10 to 15 minutes . . . a pleasant respite while Christmas shopping . . . and it doesn't cost you anything . . . Gems to rival the rainbow . . .

There's nothing like a piece of good jewelry to bring sparkle to a woman's eyes on Christmas morning . . . (and having in mind the jade and gold cuff links, and a couple of very unusual gold rings we saw in Little & Taylor's this week . . . we'll even extend this statement to include men, too!) . . . Amethysts, aquamarines, turquoise, jade . . . our own B.C. jade, as well as Oriental . . . Emeralds, rubies, topaz and garnets . . . gems in every shade of the rainbow in fact . . . Exquisitely carved cameo brooches and pendants are new revivals of old favorites . . . A natural piece of polished amber hanging from a slender gold chain makes a beautiful pendant . . . Another pendant and earring set we like is smoky topaz set in gold . . . Cultured pearls at L & T are of the finest . . . they import them direct from Japan and match and make them up to suit your taste . . . Right now there's a beautiful collection of pearl-set brooches, earrings and necklets . . . Some copies of Italian rings . . . very renaissance . . . set with tiny jewels . . . are truly lovely . . . for the woman who appreciates something different . . . Little & Taylor Jewelers Ltd., 1209 Douglas St., 385-4431.

IN STEP WITH STYLE — By NONA DAMASKE

Perfume Is Santa's Best Friend

Nothing to wear? . . . try a new fragrance and your present wardrobe will have an entirely new sparkle.

I was fortunate enough to be in Beverly Hills when Paris dress designer Yves St. Laurent was introducing a new perfume at Magnins, Wilshire Boulevard. The new fragrance "Y" is a combination of sprigs of oak moss, jasmine and rose of Bulgaria. Monsieur St. Laurent, a slender young man, who wears a modified Beatle-type haircut has created "Y" to match his "Mondrian Look." This look, which he says is "seductive" rather than "elegant", was the theme throughout Magnins during St. Laurent's visit. His designs were spotlighted in every department.

More perfume is sold during December than in any other month and most of it is bought as a Christmas gift.

CHOOSE WITH CARE

A little thought should be given to a gift of fragrance. It takes extreme care, patience, knowledge, to choose a suitable scent. There are decided categories of perfume, and buying the best known, most expensive is not the answer. The perfume must suit the chemistry and character of the women who will wear it. There are seven types of fragrances . . . single floral, floral bouquet, modern blend, oriental blend, woody-leafy-mossy blend, spicy and fruit blend. You must decide which type is most suited to you or to your gift recipient.

There is the rare woman who chooses a particular scent and keeps it for her own year after year . . . this woman presents no gift problem. It takes a positive woman with decided fashion feelings to choose and wear only one perfume. A man may say a particular perfume reminds him of a certain woman but you may be sure he was attracted to her for a myriad of other reasons!

The average woman enjoys a collection of scents . . . she likes to consider the season, time of day or type of function to be attended.

Scent signatures are often an influence in gift purchases. Can't you imagine a young modern being all agog on Christmas morning upon receiving "Parfum A GOGO" by Hattie Carnegie?

A man who proposed marriage in a horse-drawn buggy atop Mount Royal in Montreal may present his bride with "Caleche" by Hermes.

A girl of "Caline" may help along a budding romance . . . it means "Cuddly Girl" in French.

"Nuit de Noel" (Christmas Night) by Bellodgia is a seasonal choice for a perfume gift.

If a man is impressed by a woman's voice on the telephone and wants to meet her he could send a gift of Helena Rubinstein's "Vis a Vis" (face to face).

If you want to tell her that she has hit you in the heart you could give her the new "Caron Derringer" a carved gold container loaded with shots of scent.

An independent woman may choose "Ma Griffe" (strictly me) by Carven. "Mouchoir de Monsieur" takes its place among the gift packages but I hope it is meant as a man's gift as the translation comes out . . . gentleman's handkerchief.

If you have a friend whom you think is a bit "far out" you could choose "Eccentric" by Maggy Rouff.

I have never met the well-known California designer Mr. Blackwell but I would assume he has a rather large ego . . . he has concocted a perfume which he has named "MR. BLACKWELL."

You can tell almost any story with perfume . . . if this is to be your Christmas gift . . . give it some thought.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CHEESE OLIVE LASAGNE

Half cup ripe olives, ½ clove garlic, finely chopped; 1 cup chopped onion, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 can (1 lb. 13 oz.) solid pack tomatoes, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, ¼ cup thinly sliced celery, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon chili powder, ⅛ teaspoon black pepper, 6 ozs. noodles (about 1 quart, ½-inch wide), boiling salted water, 1 pint dry curd cottage cheese or rinsed and drained creamed cottage cheese, 1 cup shredded Canadian cheese.

Cut olives into coarse pieces. Cook garlic and onion in oil until tender-crisp; remove from pan. Blend flour and ½ cup liquid from tomatoes. Bring tomatoes to a boil; stir in flour mixture and boil two minutes longer, stirring constantly. Stir in garlic, onion, green pepper, celery and seasonings; simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Meanwhile, cook noodles in boiling salted water 10 minutes, or until tender; drain. Turn into greased 9-inch square baking dish. Spoon cottage cheese over noodles. Stir olives into tomato mixture and pour over cottage cheese. Top with Canadian cheese.

Bake uncovered in a 350-degree (moderate) oven 20 minutes. Makes six to eight servings.

Lidgate-Wescott Vows Heard This Afternoon

Petal-point sleeves and a rounded neckline highlighted the floor-length gown of white peau de soie worn by Wendy Lynne Wescott this afternoon when she became the bride of Donald Murray Lidgate. White gardenias and pearls held her four-tier scalloped veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

In Oak Bay United Church, Rev. A. Calder heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Wescott, 1415 Simon Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Lidgate, 485 Fraser Street. Mr. Wescott gave his daughter in marriage.

Matron of honor Mrs. Thomas Harper wore a floor-length gown of blue peau de soie, styled with a bell-shaped skirt. Her headpiece was a bow of the same material as her dress.

Bridesmaid Miss Gay Wescott, the bride's sister, wore a gown identical to the matron of honor's dress, in rose-pink peau de soie. Both carried bouquets of pink and white carnations. Jewelry was black diamond necklaces, gifts of the bride.

Robert A. Cato was best man at the ceremony and guests were ushered by Nelson Morey.

Claire Potter proposed the toast to his niece at the reception in the Club Tango, where the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake which was flanked with pink roses and candles.

A cherry red suit and black accessories, complemented with a corsage of cherry red orchids, was the bride's choice for travelling on honeymoon to Seattle and Portland.

When they return, the couple will live at 845 Burdett Street.

RUBY AND DIAMONDS

Bride Wears Grandmother's Ring

Her grandmother's ruby and diamond ring was "something old" for Fay Helen Brabazon this afternoon when she became the bride of John Macdougall Piper in St. Mary's Anglican Church. Her gown of snow-white French velvet featured a full skirt. A slight watteau train extended from two bridal bows at the back waistline. The bodice was styled with a bateau neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her veil, trimmed with mantilla lace, misted from a rosette of seed pearls and crystals. She carried a white Bible, topped with feathered carnations and freesia.

Canon Hywel J. Jones officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Brabazon, 2131 Newton Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Piper, 2076 Brighton Avenue. Mr. Brabazon gave his daughter in marriage.

The choir boys sang "Praise My Soul" as the wedding party entered the church. They also sang "Christ is Made the Sure Foundation."

Floor-length gowns of emerald green peau de soie, styled with bell-shaped skirts, were worn by the bride's attendants, matron of honor Mrs. G. Eacott, maid of honor Miss Judy McLeod, and bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth Piper, sister of the groom. They wore white maribou headpieces and carried white fur muffs, trimmed with holly.

Jack Howes was best man and guests were ushered by Pat Brabazon, the bride's brother, and Larry McCann.

At the reception in the Georgian Lounge of the Empress Hotel, the bride and groom cut a three-tier wedding cake that was topped with frosted bells. P. Delane, Vancouver, proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to the mainland, the new Mrs. Piper chose a three-piece suit of blue-green tweed, with black accessories.

The couple will make their home at Prince Rupert.

DEAR ABBY ...

Not Necessarily So

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After 12 years of marriage, Fenwick told me he wanted a divorce. (I knew he'd been running around on me, but then, nobody is perfect.) He said he was "in love" with a woman he'd met at work. (She is 44 and divorced. Fenwick is 36!) I told him I wanted to meet her, and if I thought she was good enough for him, I'd sign the papers. Well, I met her, and she was worse than I had expected. I just calmly told Fenwick that I wouldn't sign any papers to free him so he could marry that. I didn't stop him from seeing her. I just let the affair burn itself out. In six months it was dead as a dodo. Now Fenwick is thanking me for being so wise and sensible. Maybe other women with the same problem can use my formula.

NOT SO DUMB.

DEAR NOT: What will cure some patients will kill others. All generalizations are worthless, including this one.

DEAR ABBY: I have been meaning to write to you for over a year about my husband's sister. (Let's call her Nellie.) Well, Nellie has been having trouble with her husband and she's driving us crazy with telephone calls night and day asking what she should do. It seems her husband wants a divorce because of another woman, and Nellie refuses to give him one. The whole story is only her side of it. No one has heard her husband's side of it. Anyway, Nellie tells her troubles to everyone who will listen, and she asks for advice. It's disgusting. We told her a year ago that she was foolish for trying to hang on to a man who didn't want her, but she got hysterical. I suggested she talk to her clergyman. She did, and he told her to let her husband go. We want to help her. What should we do?

TIED HANDS.

DEAR TIED: Nellie doesn't really want "advice." She is searching for someone (anyone!) who will support her decision to hang on to her husband. She needs an impartial counsellor. But even he can't help if she refuses to listen.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder how many thousands of women have had the experience of marrying for "love," only to discover that they were unable to enjoy love-making? Perhaps a few words from a woman who has suffered from "frigidity," and overcame it, would encourage them.

My husband and I were so compatible in other ways, we naturally assumed that we would have a compatible sex life. We didn't. Our sex life was an unhappy limbo. After 15 years of failure, I secretly wondered if I had married the wrong man. He felt humiliated and I felt resentful and "cheated." Frustration drove me to a marriage counsellor.

The thing that is least understood about "frigidity" is that all the love and good intentions in the world are not enough to get to the root of the problem if it is rooted in ignorance and misinformation. My sessions with the counsellor cost me only $3 each. (At the Family and Children's Service, fees are based on ability to pay.) In my case, it wasn't necessary for my husband to come in, which helped enormously.

Swallow your pride, girls. You have nothing to lose but your insomnia.

"BLESSED."

Vote Over Again? Second Town Goofs

The provincial government plans to validate illegal jump-the-gun elections held by two British Columbia municipalities.

But there's a chance that both Invermere and Masset will have to vote all over again, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Friday.

B.C. chuckled at Invermere's slip Friday. Then Masset confessed to the same error.

Invernere held its election Thursday, Masset last Saturday. Neither council apparently was aware of 1964 Municipal Act chaiges which require all B.C. organized areas to vote on the same day, today, except Vancouver, which legally voted Thursday.

Mr. Campbell said if a defeated candidate in either community was to challenge the election, a new election might be required.

PARENTS TO MEET GAGLARDI

40 to Protest 'Killer' Highway

Forty anxious parents will make the journey from Campbell River to Victoria Monday to see Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi.

The busload of mothers is making the trip to try and stir up action over a "killer section" of highway in their home town.

They will present the minister with a 2,500-name petition calling for construction of a secondary highway on the 30-mile stretch between Courtenay and Campbell River.

The single-lane highway has been the scene of two fatal accidents in the last six months.

Both were seven-year-old school children.

Driver of the delegation's bus will be Ken Bordian. His daughter Gloria was one of the highway's victims.

Also among the group will be his wife Gloria.

While three or four of the group enter the minister's office, accompanied by their MLA, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, others will carry placards along the Legislative Building's corridors.

The visit to the capital climaxes weeks of parading along the highway by the worried parents.

They claim the existing highway is insufficient for the heavy flow of up-Island traffic.

Children have to cross the highway daily on their way to and from school.

Talks Breakdown 'Temporary'

DUNCAN — Business agent Fernie Viala said today he is sure the breakdown in wage revision talks between the IWA and Forest Industrial Relations is temporary.

Mr. Viala said: "Talks should resume next week, probably Thursday."

Weldon Jubenville, president of Duncan local 1-80 of the IWA, alleged Friday: "John Billings, FIR spokesman, stomped out of a meeting held with IWA negotiaters in his office.

"Industry stalling tactics are taxing IWA members' patience to the breaking point," he added.

Group Eyes 12 Acres In S. End

NORTH COWICHAN—Municipal recreation commission will ask council at its next meeting to buy 12 acres of land on Sherman Road.

Chairman Dennis Hogan said Friday the land could be the site of a second recreation complex in North Cowichan.

The Sherman Road site, just outside the city of Duncan, would cater to the south end of the municipality.

Reeve Donald Morton said three of the acres could be used for a curling rink.

The remaining nine acres could be held until Duncan and the unorganized areas decided what their joint recreational plans were.

It was Reeve Morton who suggested the Sherman Road site to the commission.

Municipal voters today could decide the fate of the proposed ice skating arena at Fullers Lake Park near Chemainus.

Three opposition candidates, Robert Waddy for reeve, and Stan Dyke and Neil Dorning for council, are sworn to change the site.

The centennial project bylaw is not due to be voted on until February.

ACT INDEPENDENTLY

In a Friday statement, Reeve Morton said: "The objective of the recreation commission is to ensure facilities for all citizens.

"This can best be done by a group of public spirited people like yourselves who can act independently of local politics.

"I'm sorry to say the local press has not allowed this to be the case."

James H. Lawson, a commission member, agreed.

He said: "Instead of assisting the commission the local press is causing dissension between north and south.

UNHEALTHY SITUATION

"This unhealthy situation must not be allowed to persist."

Reeve Morton added it was always understood the commission when it is ready, will take over planning all recreational work in the municipality.

In 1966 there is a provisional budget of $28,000 for recreation.

Mr. Hogan, in reference to the Sherman Road suggestion, said: "It shows concrete evidence we are striving to provide recreational facilities for all sections of the municipality."

He referred to the act as "a horrible symptom of the times."

Wyatt admitted causing $74 worth of damage to a local motel unit.

He received a 30-day concurrent sentence for supplying liquor to a minor.

NEGROES UPSET

Violence Feared As Three Freed

By REX THOMAS

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—The acquittal of three white men charged with the civil rights killing of a white Boston minister left Selma faced with the threat of renewed racial strife.

A spokesman for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said the verdicts returned by an all-white jury after 95 minutes deliberation Friday probably will touch off "an increase in demonstrations, especially in Selma."

"The (Negro) people of Selma are pretty upset about this," Rev. Andrew Young, executive secretary of Dr. King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said in Atlanta.

"It just means that any Negro or civil rights worker can be killed a block away from the heart of town, and those responsible for it probably will be acquitted."

Rev. James J. Reeb, 38, a Unitarian minister and father of four children, was attacked along with two other white clergymen the night of last March 9 on a street corner one block from Selma's main thoroughfare, Broad Street.

The Boston clergyman, who had come to Alabama to join the struggle for Negro voting rights, was clubbed to the ground, and died two days later in hospital with a massive brain injury. His two companions also were roughed up by a gang of white men but escaped with slight injury.

Charged with first - degree murder were a novelty company manager, Elmer L. Cook 42; an auto mechanic, Namon O'Neal Hoggle, 31, and his brother, William Stanley Hoggle, 37, a salesman.

A fourth white man still faces federal charges of civil rights conspiracy growing out of the Reeb killing.

R. B. Kelley, a Selma television repairman, was arrested on a state charge of killing Mr. Reeb but a grand jury refused to indict him. He was called as a witness against the other three Thursday but invoked the constitution's fifth amendment against self-incrimination.

The charges filed by the justice department still must be submitted to a federal grand jury, and government attorneys apparently waited for the outcome of the trial in state court before proceeding further with their prosecution.

Kenya May Balk At Break

NAIROBI (AP) — Kenya's President Jomo Kenyatta said Friday that because of conflicting views of various African countries the severance of diplomatic relations with Britain over the Rhodesia issue "would not be effective and could in fact be abortive."

Kenyatta told Parliament that under the circumstances his government has decided to consult more fully with Kenya's East African neighbors, Zambia, to "determine the best action to take."

The Kenya leader said he was particularly concerned that the Zambian government has expressed doubts about the wisdom of breaking diplomatic relations with Britain.

A recent meeting of the Organization of African Unity in Addis Ababa decided that all 35 African states should sever relations with Britain Dec. 15 unless Britain crushed the Rhodesian rebellion by then.

Kenya is the first country to indicate it would not automatically follow the OAU line.

Accountant 'Stumbled' And Caused a Revolution!

A Vancouver chartered accountant, who stumbled on a speck of an island in the Caribbean four years ago, is working a revolution in the winter travel habits of people in the Pacific Northwest.

Hawaii, Mexico, Arizona or California. Those have been the traditional vacation lands for rain-drenched and winter-weary citizens of British Columbia, Alberta and the north west states.

Now they've got another destination: a coral limestone island south of Cuba and west of Jamaica called Grand Cayman Island.

At the height of the season, for $455 at Grand Cayman's Galleon Beach Hotel, or $425 at the Coral Caymanian Beach Club, the tourists will get a champagne return flight, hotel room and breakfast for two weeks, a fishing tour to Rum Point, and a Saturday night in exciting New Orleans with hotel and breakfast provided.

"We ran our first flight to the Island on Jan. 10, 1964, and they have been increasingly popular ever since," said the man who started it all, chartered accountant Norman Cowan.

●

Cowan first went to Grand Cayman with his wife on a holiday in January, 1962. He had researched the Island ahead of time and decided it was a pleasant, quiet place to spend a week recovering from the exertions of touring in Mexico, British Honduras, and Jamaica.

They found that the Island was indeed a delightful spot. And when he heard that the hotel had been for sale, Cowan pricked up his ears.

He was in the apartment hotel business himself, having assembled half a dozen prime apartment properties in Vancouver's West End. He had a large interest in the Simon Fraser Hotel in Prince George, and was building the Kimbrook Motor Hotel in Kimberley.

Cowan began negotiations with the London owner of the Galleon Beach Hotel, but it wasn't until September, 1963, after several trips to Grand Cayman and New York, that the deal was closed.

●

On one of those trips, in a chance meeting on the beach, a shareholder of the Coral Caymanian Beach Club, a newly-built, smaller hotel nearby, suggested to Cowan that he should make an offer for his place, too.

The eventual result was that in late 1963, Cowan, with the help of his bankers, had put together, at a cost of about $700,000, the operating end of facilities designed for the new concepts of easy and economical travel for the masses.

Hotel records showed that when Cowan bought the hotels, only four people from British Columbia had ever been to the Galleon Beach Hotel in Grand Cayman—the Cowans and one other couple!

●

Elgin Hotels has since grown bigger. The chain has added the Malaspina Hotel in Nanaimo and the Mt. Rogers Motor Hotel in Revelstoke, which burned down in May, 1965, but which was fully insured and will be rebuilt.

It is expected that the Air Transport Board will be making decisions soon on regulations covering inclusive tours.

VIA AFGHAN POST

11 Bottom-Numbing Hours Into History

By CONRAD FINK

KABUL (AP) — Come along through the romantic Khyber Pass to Afghanistan. Retrace the historic steps of Alexander the Great, Aryan Armies, Persian warriors and the Hun hordes.

The cost is 20 rupees ($4.40) and 11 bottom-numbing hours in a jolting, bouncing bus.

Although earlier adventurers walked and fought their way through the Khyber, we can take the Afghan Post, the "ultimate" in modern bus travel for this 199-mile journey from Peshawar, Pakistan, through the mountains to Kabul, capital of Afghanistan.

Our guide and protector is Shamuddin the Great, a swaggering, brash descendant of a famous line of mountain fighters. Shamuddin, sadly, is just a bus driver—but what a bus driver!

The journey begins in a dirty back-street bazaar in Peshawar, where the sparkling blue and white bus is prepared for a departure supposedly set for 9 a.m.

SURROUNDED BY FANS

At 10, Shamuddin the Great arrives, surrounded by a ragtag crowd of awe-struck boys whose only wish is that they, too, can grow up to drive through the Khyber pass.

We are 32 passengers.

At 10:30, only 1½ hours late, Shamuddin heads the Afghan Post out the Peshawar city gate. No one questions his tardiness for in this part of the world, people ask each other what day it is, not what time it is.

TALKS AND DRIVES

Shamuddin finds his pace—a cracking 18.9 miles an hour—and begins to talk. He waves one grm and sometimes two all the while.

Dust rises to choke and stifle. Hot winds sweep across the road. The sun beats down.

Two apparitions in the distance, distorted by heat waves, turn out to be donkey drivers tugging at one ornery beast that refuses to budge from the centre of the road.

Then the jolt: Shamuddin, deftly twisting the wheel, shaves the donkey as close as a donkey can be shaved, and heads onward. Strange curses follow us.

Up, up we go, around the snaking turn of the Khyber road as it climbs through the mountains.

Here, embedded in rock, is a plaque marking the death spot of a British regiment that 30 years ago fought the warlike tribesmen who still roam the pass. Then another plaque, and another. Here men have fought since history began, struggling for a route between central and south Asia.

Back to reality as The Indian trader, wise in local ways, walks up and down the aisle collecting one rupee (23 cents) from each traveller.

APPEASE POLICE

"It will make the police check easier," he explains.

And it does. A bored glance is all we draw from wilted policemen counting their rupee windfall.

But not even the Indian can always save the Afghan Post from policemen higher in the hills. One checkpoint becomes an inquisition; luggage and passengers alike are about to be searched for contraband.

It's easy to tell when the fix is on with customs inspections in the Khyber. They don't open trunks anymore. They just give them knowing kicks.

As we moved westward the road improves and the Afghan Post picks up speed.

It is clear we have reached Afghanistan, ancient, landlocked kingdom and the recipient of more than $300,000,000 in U.S. and Soviet aid. But in Afghanistan, not even foreign aid keeps roads open, and the Afghan Post must detour.

The road is rough beyond belief. Tired babies howl louder. Afghan ladies mumble behind their veils. The Moslem pilgrims shout louder to be heard.

At last, the lights of Kabul are sighted.

Shamuddin the Great, erudite envy of all, turns to his American passenger and shouts that well known Khyber cry of victory:

"Happy Christmas!"

CLIMATE CHANGING

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The climate of northern New Zealand seems to be changing from temperate to sub-tropical, says a prominent conchologist, Dr. A. W. B. Powell.

Dr. Powell suspects that a new warm stream of water flowing from the western Pacific, perhaps caused by an alteration in the contour of the ocean floor, is responsible for the change.

MUSH TO FUNFEST IN NORTH

Alaskans, "in the good old days", had two main sources of recreation in the wintertime — sled dog racing (called mushing) and celebrating.

Not surprisingly, in a state that calls itself the Last Frontier, it is still the good old days as far as Alaskans are concerned and they still entertain themselves and their winter visitors by dog mushing and putting on winter funfests all over the 49th State.

Northland communities have scheduled dozens of races and at least five celebrations for the months of 1966. The races vary from mostly Eskimo contests at Wainwright on the coast of the Arctic Ocean (Jan. 1) and the Bethel Dog Team Derby (Feb. 11-13) to the Alaska State Championship Dog Races at Soldotna and Kenai (Mar. 5-6), the World Championship Sled Dog Races at Anchorage (during the Fur Rendezvous celebration Feb. 18-27), events at Nenana and Tok in March and April, and the race with the biggest purse of all, the North American Championship Sled Dog Derby, at Fairbanks late in March.

The celebrations, which themselves usually contain major races as a feature of each festival, also schedule dances, parades, art and industrial exhibits, Eskimo and Indian dancing, midways, and beard-growing contests.

Ancient Art, Culture To Greet Horse Year

HONOLULU—The moon Year of the Horse will be greeted here by a pretty Narcissus Queen, a sequined lion dancing the streets, firecrackers and Oriental pageantry galore.

These hijinks are all part of the 17th annual Narcissus Festival in Honolulu Dec. 29 through Jan. 29, an attraction of top interest to Hawaii visitors.

The brilliantly-costumed Narcissus Queen, chosen from dozens of competing Chinese-American beauties, appears at all major festival events. They include a gala Narcissus Ball at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, a nine-course mandarin dinner at a Chinese restaurant, classic Chinese entertainments, elaborate oriental fashion shows and exhibits of ancient Chinese art and culture.

Stellar performer of two Night in Chinatown celebrations will be a frisky cloth lion manipulated by relays of Chinese athletes. It will cavort in front of downtown Chinese shops, restaurants and business establishments, spurred on by oriental gongs, exploding firecrackers and thousans of Island merry-makers.

TOURISM FAST BECOMING BIG BUSINESS IN NORTH

Americans Take Stranglehold in Frontier

By JOHN McLEAN

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—The brightly-colored brochure on expensive heavy paper was produced in the United States. The winter address for the owners is in a southwestern state. But the map that pinpoints the isolated fishing lodge is of Canada's Northwest Territories.

The brochure is only one of many available at any tourist bureau. They make it evident that Americans are fast taking a stranglehold on the newest industry in the frontier territories of the Canadian North.

Still in its infancy, tourism is already becoming big business in the land of the Arctic Circle. Ten years ago fewer than 100 tourists visited the North-west Territories. In 1964 the figure was 5,000. This year officials estimate the total will exceed 6,000.

When it is considered that 10,000,000 Americans made long-term visits to Canada last year, this may not seem like much. But those who go North undoubtedly left more money behind per head than the less-adventurous tourist.

A conducted fishing trip in the Far North, complete with air travel from Edmonton, boats, guides, food and shelter, costs about $100 a day a person.

The big camp operators, most of them Americans, offer mattresses, showers, steak dinners and fast - freeze service for trophy fish.

The brochures that beckon the tourist to this vast wilderness of trout lakes and big game are packed with the stock phrases: "This is the 'dream fishing' lake you've heard about and always wanted to try."

But the pictures of 40 - pound lake trout tell the story better and John and Jeanne Branson of Parker, Ariz., realized this when they packed 20 photos of ecstatic anglers and scenic views of Great Bear Lake into their folder.

It takes a man with plenty of gumption to open up a fishing camp thousands of miles from civilization and even farther from the customers.

But so far, except for a few local interests, most of the risk capital has come from the United States, put up by men like Walter E. Pierce of Lemont, Ill., who came north to lure the fishermen to his Great Slave Lake Lodge.

What's more, the advertising is aimed more at Americans than Canadians. Kermit Goar of Williston, N.D., has put out a brochure on his lodge on Great Slave that doesn't include a single Canadian.

Holding up the big trout are visitors from Arcadia, Calif., Oklahoma City, Big Rapids, Mich., Glendive, Mont., and Tyler, Tex. Grinning over one 28-pounder is Abe Saperstein, long-time manager of the Harlem Globetrotters basketball team.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie may not have known it when he paddled down the river that bears his name but he was apparently blazing a trail that would someday be followed by a camp operator from Milwaukee interested in catering to the sporting instincts of the Arkansas traveller.

Too Little Time Can Be a Mistake

MANILA, Philippines — One two-week vacation is hardly enough time to visit 7,107 different Philippine Islands. Take two months or two years and you still couldn't do it, and probably would't want to. Even in the Philippines, one island begins to resemble another, if you've seen enough of them, but so do cities.

Thousands of visitors to Manila find it an exciting, unusual city, and many regret having too little time to explore it. But many forget that, as a city, it represents only a small part of the color, fascination and adventure to be found in these islands. And to miss seeing at last some of the other attractions of the Philippines is a mistake.

RICH HISTORY

Especially in the southern islands, life in the "barrio," a Spanish word meaning province or district, has been the mainstay of Filipino culture and folkways. It is in the countryside that the islands' rich history and traditions are still to be found.

During the "summer" in the south, from January through May, a tropical atmosphere envelops the traveller, and he finds it the best time of year to visit the south.

In sleepy villages of Cebu, Sunday markets in church plazas on the outskirts of Davao and long afternoons on the inviting beaches near Zamboanga, experiences are found which have no equal.

Three areas are the focal points for a southern islands tour: Davao, Zamboanga and Cebu. The first two are on Mindanao, the second largest island in the 1,000-mile long Philippine chain. Abut two hours by air from Manila on big Luzon island to the north, Davao City on Mindanao has an atmosphere like that of an Old West boomtown. Its Muslim-Christian population contains members of the most colorful tribes in the Philippines and the streets often resemble a carnival midway.

In the Davao area a visit to Talomo Beach is unforgettable, especially at sundown when, across the water of the curving bay, Mt. Apo (Philippines' highest) is outlined by the setting red tropical sun.

But for the best guitars in the Philippines, and for a tour of one of the most interesting parts of the southern islands, one should visit Cebu. It's 350 miles from Manila and an hour's flight brings the traveler over Cebu City with a spectacular view of old cathedrals, modern government buildings and the nearby island of Mactan where Magellan, in the service of Spain was killed by a native lance.

'Experiences of the Past Can Be a Challenge for Future'

Victoria's Seventh-day Adventist Church—the oldest Adventist Church in Western Canada—is 75 years old today.

Early in the century, the congregation built a church at Graham Street, near Hillside, where it worshipped until 1949. The present building at Pandora and Vancouver, was constructed in 1949.

Speaking at an anniversary service this morning, Pastor A. M. Spenst recalled that the church operated a private school in the basement of the old building on Graham Street.

In 1949 the school was moved to a new building at Hillside and Gosworth. Today it teaches nine grades and is known as Hill Memorial.

"The experiences of the past can be a challenge to the Christian for the future," he said.

Mrs. R. O. Berry was soloist at the service.

BISHOP RANKILOR SAYS:

Give God Equal Time With Santa

Bishop D. A. G. Rankilor is Primus of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada. Educated in England, at Gloucester, Sheffield, and at Philadelphia Reformed Episcopal Seminary, he is a member of the Governor-General's Family Conference and the Canadian Centennial Commission for 1967. He has been rector of the historic Church of Our Lord on Humboldt Street since 1957.

The magic of the Christmas festival fills the air! Many are deeply concerned that 20th century commercialism has turned this sacred festival into a secular circus. This may be true for some, not for all. For many, no amount of commercialism will ever take Christ's place in their inn at Christmastime.

Rankilor

Nevertheless we are faced with an ever rising flood of "unholy holiness" which turns Santa Claus into God in a million store windows, and is content to leave God lying in a manger, surrounded by wax models and mechanical wise men, ceaselessly bowing their heads, and who, St. Matthews shows, never belonged there in the first place.

We contend with whole symphonies of sacred songs and carols, blaring at us from a million microphones, psychologically supposed to instil in us something called the spirit of Christmas. So the whole glorious gift of a generous God is reduced to the level of a price-tag (with convenient payments) and this becomes our 20th century conception of Christmas.

All honor to those who campaign to put Christ back into Christmas! But how we do this is the important issue! England's Cromwell tried to do it by making all Christmas celebrations illegal. He succeeded only in making a funeral of a sacred festival. I have said that for many of us Christ has never left our Christmas. That is the big trouble. For many of us He never does! As Christians we cannot leave this Christ child in His manager all His life long, and all of ours too, He left the cradle, grew to manhood, and walked to His cross Easter morning. That is the Christ whom Christians should put back into Christmas!

If our concern, as it should be, is the crass, crude commercialization of a sacred festival, we should also remember that the genius of Christianity is its ability to take a pagan feast and lift it up to the glorious heights of God's centuries old plan and purpose for us men, namely, "Unto you is born this day a Saviour,"—and what the Christian Gospel did centuries ago it can still do today.

If for some Christmas is so commercialized that its meaning is lost, do not despair. At least if people didn't care about the Christ Child at all, God would not be given even a commercialized Christmas. If we are giving God equal time with Santa Claus, at least we are doing something, and there are always those, that magnificent minority, who will still hear the music of God's Eternal Christmas Carol in their hearts and homes this Christmas. "Unto you is born this day, a Saviour."

By all means, let us celebrate a joyous and Merry Christmas, this holiday time. But we must take time to make this a Holy Day in our respective churches, as well as a holiday—let us give God equal time with Santa Claus at Christmastime.

Up With the Birds For Christmas Sermon

REV. DR. JAMES
. . . preach at 5 a.m.

Rev. Dr. F. E. (Howey) James, formerly of Victoria, will preach at 5 a.m. on Christmas Day.

That is when they start celebrating Christmas in Kingston, Jamaica. Dr. James has been in charge of a Methodist mission church there since last January.

"I'm told the church will be packed at that early hour," he writes.

Minister at Metropolitan United Church, Victoria, from 1952 to 1964, Dr. James travels all over the island conducting services.

"The Sunday services in my own church at Kingston begin at 7:30 and continue until noon. Very often I preach four times during the morning.

"We shall miss the Canadian Yule season in Victoria. The mid-day temperature here seldom goes below 80 degrees and the bloom of the giant poinsettias will take the place of the traditional Christmas tree.

"But the spiritual significance of Christmas is the same everywhere."

Dr. and Mrs. James plan to return to their home in Victoria after a two-year term in Jamaica.

Born in Ireland, Dr. James came to Canada more than 50 years ago and held appointments in Toronto and Calgary before coming here.

He retired from Metropolitan church in June, 1964.

900 Expected Sunday At Witness Assembly

Jehovah's Witnesses of the southern Vancouver Island circuit are holding their fall assembly in the Sanscha Hall, Sidney, this weekend.

A peak attendance of 900 is expected Sunday at 3 p.m. when Reginald Arnett, district supervisor, will give a public address on What does the Resurrection of the Dead mean to you and yours?

Theme of the assembly is Increasing Our Praise to Jehovah.

A baptism service is being held today at which many Witnesses will symbolize their dedication to Jehovah by water immersion.

"The general public is welcome at all our weekend sessions," said Pastor Clifford Roberts of Victoria.

As a preliminary to the assembly, Witnesses met in the Shelbourne Street Kingdom Hall Thursday evening to view a two-hour color film showing the activities of Jehovah's Witnesses in many countries of the world.

'Hindu Spirit Hard to Crack'

BOMBAY (CP) — China's aggressive stance in the Himalayas is causing deep concern among Hindu religious leaders.

According to ancient mythology, the Himalayan mountains are the home of Lord Shiva, one of the gods in the Hindu trinity. There are many famous Hindu temples all along the 2,500-mile frontier between India and China.

Hindu monks have thought up a novel way to protest Peking's presence in the Himalayas and symbolize India's determination to resist further aggression.

A group of seven monks propose to stay on in the 11,000-foot-high Badrinath temple throughout the winter. This will pose endurance problems of the first magnitude. The vigil-keepers have ignored warnings of heavy snowfalls, avalanches and marauding Himalayan bears.

Swami Anand, 65-year-old leader of the group, said: "Come what may, we will not come down from Badrinath before the end of next April."

"China must realize that she must leave the Himalayas, every inch of which is sacred Hindu territory," he said, claiming that according to ancient scriptures the whole of Tibet was once Hindu country.

China has dug-in positions less than 40 miles from Badrinath. The Indians have also heavily fortified the passes in the area.

Swami Anand said that three years ago a Peking radio broadcast claimed that Barinath fell within Chinese jurisdiction.

"The Reds want to demoralize us," he said. "We must show that the Hindu spirit is hard to crack."

The Indian government recently has protested several times to Peking over Chinese incursions over the Indian border.

Much Remains to Be Done To End East-West Schism

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The chief Sees of the Roman Catholic and Orthodox churches are moving closer together than at any time in the last 900 years. But both realize much remains to be done.

Four days ago a joint statement erasing the basic stumbling block—the mutual Catholic-Orthodox excommunications of 1054—was issued by Pope Paul and Patriarch Athenagoras, spiritual leader of the 150,000,000 Orthodox.

Their action committed "to oblivion," in the words of the statement, excommunications levelled at each other by Pope Leo IX and Patriarch Michael Caerularius during a time of ill feeling between Western and Eastern Christianity.

The psychological beginnings of the great East-West split have been removed. But there still are doctrinal and sacramental differences that have grown into traditions of each side.

Metropolitan Melition of Heliopolis, head of the mission Athenagoras sent from Istanbul to Vatican City for the ceremony, told Pope Paul:

"While there remain differences in doctrine, in the canonical (church law) order and in cult, and while sacramental communion has not yet been achieved, the fundamental premise — fraternal charity—for a successive solution of differences has nevertheless been officially and ecclesiastically established today between the first two Sees of West and East."

Metropolitan Melition addressed the pontiff as "You, first bishop of Christendom," and called Athenagoras "Your brother the bishop of Constantinople, the second in rank."

The jurisdictional differences between the "first" and the "second" bishops are great in themselves. The Pope is supreme in his church, both in spirit and authority. Athenagoras is spiritual head of all the Orthodox but not jurisdictional leader.

Orthodoxy has about 20 independent churches and the chief patriarch of each is supreme in the jurisdiction of each. Thus Athenagoras could not speak for all the Orthodox, in the joint statement, except in spirit.

MATTER OF TIME

Many Orthodox are said to believe reunion is only a matter of time. Amazing to both sides is how far attitudes have changed. The pan-Orthodox conference on Rhodes nearly broke up in 1963 over the question of whether to send observers to the Vatican ecumenical council. But each fall more and more of the independent churches sent observers and the initial suspicion of Rome's motives began to melt.

Rev. Christophe Dumont of Paris, a consultant on Orthodox affairs for the Vatican's Christian unity secretariat, said of the shrinking schism:

"Many differences must be overcome concerning points of doctrine, and especially concerning the theological foundation and extension of authority of Roman Catholic bishops in the universal church."

Education Dept. Rehires Pair

The department of education has rehired a former deputy minister and a former superintendent to handle an over-accumulation of work.

An order-in-council Friday authorized the rehiring of Harold Campbell, former deputy, and Alexander Turnbull, former superintendent, as teacher certification and credential evaluation specialists.

Dr. Neil Perry, deputy minister of education, said: "We have fallen behind in this work and we are attempting to clean it up. It is a very temporary business," he said.

City Symphony At Midnight Mass

The Pastoral Mass in F Major by Anton Diabelli will be presented in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church on Haultain Street at midnight on Christmas Eve.

The performance will be given by the full church choir, accompanied by members of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, and directed by Albert Richter.

Northern Conditions 'Worst in the World'

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal report says health conditions among the native people of the Canadian north "are still among the worst in the world."

Average lifespan of a native woman in the Northwest Territories was 21, against 63 for an outside Canadian. For a man in the Territories, it was 26. For another Canadian male, nearly 60.

The report contained a profile on health among the poor. It was distributed at a federal-provincial conference on poverty and opportunity here. It said Canadians in low income groups have more disabling illnesses and less health care than other groups. The children of the poor suffered particularly from ill health and died more often from illness.

But the problem was at its worst among Canadian Indians and Eskimos. Eskimo mortality rates were three times the national average.

Whoopers Check In

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Forty-four rare whooping cranes have checked in for the winter at Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, the Texas parks and wildlife department reported Friday. The figure is two more than the number which left last spring for Canadian mating grounds.

Acoustic Test For Endeavour

The oceanographic research ship CNAV Endeavour will undergo an acoustics test in American waters Monday.

The research ship will test her echo-sounding equipment over the U.S. Navy's underwater acoustics range.

It is loated in Carr Inlet near Tacoma.

The test will measure the ship's vibration at various underwater depths and enable scientists to get more accurate readings.

The short cruise will be the Endeavour's last outing until the new year.

DEADLINE MET

Mercy Flight Fails

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — A mercy flight that was carried out with clockwork precision met its deadline Friday but the frantic efforts to save the life of a 58-year-old Duck Bay, Man., fisherman, failed.

John Lysack, Dauphin Hospital administrator, said Fred McNichol died about two hours after the mercy flight had been completed.

Mr. McNichol was rushed 65 miles from Duck Bay to Dauphin by taxi Friday morning in critical condition with gas gangrene—an infection with a high mortality rate. Mr. Lysack said the hospital found its supply of serum needed for treatment was limited.

He called Bill Bowen, the local civil defence co-ordinator, and relayed the hospital's urgent need for additional serum. It was 2 p.m. and he said it was needed in two hours.

Through the combined efforts of Mr. Bowen, provincial civil defence officials, the RCAF and the provincial health department, the serum was delivered 15 minutes before the deadline.

Mr. Lysack said it was administered to Mr. McNichol but the infection had advanced too far to be arrested.

HOMES and GARDENS

RAISED IN ENGLAND

Pair of Pears In Same Family

By JACK BEASTALL

A reader remarks on the similarity between the Bartlett pear and the Williams pear which is so popular in England. This is no coincidence for they are one and the same pear masquerading under two names.

Jack

The original was raised in 1770 in England by a schoolmaster named Stair who lived near the city of Reading. It was named Bon Chretien probably after a Frenchman of the day, for the French and Belgians have always been deeply interested in pears.

WILLIAMS BY NAME

The pear was widely distributed by a nurseryman, Williams by name, as Williams' Bon Chretien. Popular with gardeners right from its introduction, it was not long before Williams' pear was a household name, and a name that is still used in place of the true name.

Around the early 1800s Bartlett's in New Jersey was a leading U.S. nursery which distributed many European introductions.

Bartlett heard of this wonderful new pear, secured a stock and sold it under the name of Bartlett's Bon Chretien.

Here again, Bartlett's pear became widely known on this continent and it is doubtful if the name of Bon Chretien was mentioned by any who grew it.

EAT OUR FILL

I can remember a gigantic tree of Williams' pear in my father's garden when I was a tender seven years of age.

The crop was so prolific that we boys were allowed to climb the heavy boughs and eat our fill since these early pears are only good for a few weeks.

Another reader asks if the English practice of sowing sweet pea seed in November is practical here.

It is, providing you have a well drained soil in a sunny border at the foot of a wall or fence facing souh.

A previous neighbor of ours sowed the seed every November and proudly presented a large bouquet of excellent blossoms, the following Mother's Day, the second Sunday in May.

But it is useless to try this early sowing unless you have the right soil and aspect.

SMALL PEA POTS

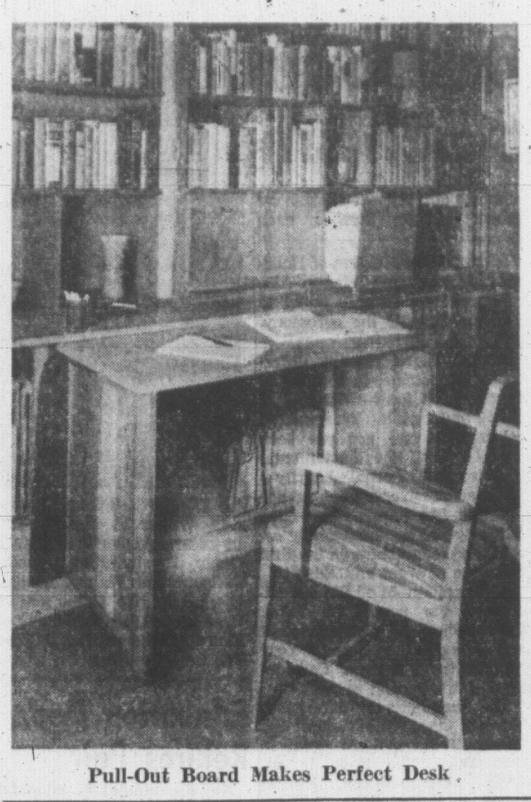

A more general practice here is to sow the seed in small pea pots either now or in February, and grow the plants in a coldframe for setting out in late April or May.

The pea pots are placed closely together in a shallow wooden box and filled with a mixture of soil, sand, and compost or peat moss, all put through a screen.

It is wise to put the peat pots in water for a day before filling. This prevents them drawing the moisture from the soil and leaving it too dry.

Seeds of sweet peas should never be soaked before planting, nor should the pots be watered before germination has taken place, because the large seeds are capable of absorbing sufficient moisture to cause rot and this is the reason many gardeners have poor results.

The mixture must be well moistened before going into the pots, in which case no water will be needed until the shoots appear.

Pull-Out Board Makes Perfect Desk

Flick of the Wrist And Presto! A Desk

By PAULINE GRAVES

For those who want a desk in their home, but say they have no space for one, here is an idea.

The same principle applies here as cutting boards that pull out from kitchen cabinets.

From a bookcase wall in the family room—it could be the living room or bedroom — a board is pulled out to function as a desk top.

To keep it steady, doors to the cabinet underneath are opened, and support the board firmly on each side.

When this was planned, careful measurements insured the doors fitting exactly under the board.

Base cabinets of the bookcase wall are 18 inches deep, from front to back, with 10-inch shelves above, creating an eight-inch counter along the length of the unit.

The pull out board matches the 18-inch depth because it slips under the counter and is the full depth of the cabinet.

Instead of drawers down the side; typical of most desks, three wooden boxes fill one section of the lower shelves.

They serve as shallow file drawers, and several other areas of the shelves are compartmentalized.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

(Q.) Why is my potted azalea losing its leaves? I kept it outdoors all summer but since bringing it in the leaves have continued to drop. Mrs. T. J., Victoria.

(A.) The azalea should have been repotted into a peaty soil either in May or when it was brought indoors in September. From then on, spraying daily with tepid water and supplying enough water to the roots are two essentials. The plant should now be full of buds and coming into bloom.

(Q.) I wish to plant some shrubs with bright berries in a ten-foot high sloping rockery. Are there any which will keep their leaves in winter? T. B. S., Duncan.

(A.) If the area is large enough there is Cotoneaster saldam with clusters of bright red berries and fairly large evergreen leaves—a wide trailing plant; a pyracantha with shiny evergreen leaves and orange-red berries is Pyracantha coccinea variety lalandei. This can be planted at the foot of the slope and trained upwards to cover about 10 feet of space.

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

The potted bulbs for Christmas bloom need a steady heat and regular watering to bring them along. Place in sunlight whenever possible.

Sponge smooth-leaved pot plants with damp cloth to remove dust film. Then wipe with dry cloth.

Check dahlia and other roots in storage. They should be firm and dry on the surface.

Renovate or lay out garden paths, taking off the turf or weed for composting and filling in with sawdust or shavings topped with gravel.

Clean to walk on all year.

Dry wood ashes from fireplace or from incinerator should be stored in cans for use around certain plants in spring.

Dig sufficient leeks and parsnips for a week or so to avoid frequent tramping on wet soil.

Wash and clean off the mud from the vegetables in a pail of tepid water outdoors.

★ ★ ★

Exception To Every Rule

Since daffodils come into leaf and flower very early, you can plant them under deciduous trees.

Hyacinths are those globular bulbs with purplish or whitish skins that are so popular as highly perfumed pot plants indoors.

They are the tenderest of the Big Three.

An exception to the rule of buying the largest bulbs of the named variety you choose, small hyacinths for the garden produce more graceful and less formal flowers than the largest exhibition sizes (which are best for forcing indoors in pots).

While blue is very popular, you could also try some of the mauves, salmons and reds.

Set the bulbs in protected areas (near a foundation wall for instance) about six inches deep, on loose, well-drained soil that has had some bone meal and wood ashes mixed in.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GLADDING — Horace Wyndiatte, December 12, 1961.
Five Aprils ago
You buried your face in the lilac blooms
That were drenched with raindrops then . . .
I'm remembering your smile . . . as you turned to me . . .
Saying . . . "Spring may not come for me again" . . .
—"Sweet dreams, Hon." Always your Mary.

HALL—In loving memory of my dear husband, Arthur, who passed away December 12, 1963.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife Alice, brother and sisters.

RITCHIE — In loving memory of Harry L. Ritchie, who passed away suddenly on Wednesday, December 11, 1964.
A year today, you passed away.
Free from all earth's cares and fears;
God thought it best, and gave you rest;
In memory your name oft appears.
—Grace Ritchie.

RITCHIE — In loving memory of our dear mom, Mrs. Bertha Ritchie, Dec. 24, 1962, also our step father, Harry Ritchie, Dec. 11, 1964.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps them near.
—Sadly missed by Doreen, Stan, Ada, Wallie and Bill.

TANNOCK—In cherished memory of a dearly loved Mother and Nana, Mrs. Florence L. Tannock, who was taken from us December 11, 1960.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today;
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
We think of Mom in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
—Ever remembered by daughter and son-in-law Allan, Barbara, grandchildren Ricky, Kim and Lesley.

WINTER — In loving memory of Rosaline Ellen Winter, who passed away Dec. 12, 1964.
In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name;
Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death just the same.
—Sadly missed by husband George, sons and daughters and grandchildren.

A rambling old home in the beautiful country — with all of the peaceful amenities that go with it ... that is the dream of the intelligent family. Phooey on the subdivision box, with all the noise and worn out plastic toys. 4853 Cherry Tree Bend is the answer to an Englishmans dream. GARY OUT IN FRONT

And Daddy Remains In the Background

Well-known pop group, Gary Lewis and the Playboys, will make their first Canadian appearance in Victoria on Dec. 27.

The concert will be staged at Memorial Arena and begins at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the performance are already on sale at the Arena box office.

The concert is being promoted by Northwest Concert Agency, a Vancouver firm.

Gary and his group will play a second concert in Vancouver, Dec. 29.

The group will be preceded by Russ Simpson and The Night Trains, a combo composed of nine musicians and three singers.

Gary and the Playboys will occupy Memorial Arena stage for about 45 minutes.

This is longer than the Vancouver concerts by The Beatles and The Rolling Stones, promoter Ben Greaves said.

STARTED IN 1964

The group, with Gary as lead vocalist and drummer got its start in the summer of 1964 at Disneyland.

And they did it without the help of Gary's dad, well-known comic Jerry Lewis.

They were well received at the amusement park and spent the rest of the summer entertaining there.

It was only at the summer's end park officials learned they had signed the son of the famed comedian.

Gary received his first set of drums at 14 but took only a passing interest in them.

DRAMA SCHOOL

But last year he suddenly took an interest in them and began practising in earnest after drama school classes.

He was soon joined by friends from school and the neighborhood and the group was formed.

Then came the Disneyland job, a record for Liberty Records and Gary Lewis and the Playboys were on their way.

They cut their first commercial record, This Diamond Ring, in February and it sold 500,000 copies.

Count Me In and Save Your Heart for Me enjoyed similar success and the group now has disc sales reaching more than 2.5 million.

The group has had several TV guest shots including two appearances on the Ed Sullivan Show and Hullabaloos plus a performance on Shindig.

The group has recently returned from a tour of England and continental Europe.

And all the while daddy Jerry—who owns property near Sidney—has remained in the background.

ONLY YOU CAN DO THIS

Place three empty glasses on the table — as shown, 1, at right. Now take one glass in each hand (any two) and turn them over. Repeat. Then repeat again, and as a result have all three glasses upright, figure 2.

Did your rearrangement work in three moves, as described?

In turning the glasses, first turn the one that is mouth up with one that is mouth down. Do this a second time, turning a mouth up with a mouth down; then turn the two that are mouth down to make them mouth up. By following this rule you can do the trick in three rapid moves.

When someone else wants to try it, arrange the glasses so that the center one is mouth down and the end glasses are mouth up. From this position it is impossible to bring all three mouths up in three moves by turning two glasses on each move.

INDIAN HAS WHISKERS NOW

Good puzzles never die, that's why old ones like this crop up from time to time, as interesting as ever:

An Indian paddling upstream in a canoe, notices a log floating downstream. From that point on he rows for a half an hour. Then deciding suddenly he wants that log, turns around and rows downstream. After an hour he catches the log and notes that it is now six miles past the point where he first passed the log.

Accepting as fact that he rows at the same rate of speed all the time, what is the rate of the stream—and what is wrong with this problem?

Think this over a bit before answering.

Answer: Apparently the log covered six miles in one and a half hours and the stream's rate is four miles an hour. But it shouldn't take the man an hour to catch up with the log if it took him only half an hour to separate him from it. If he maintains the same pace continuously, he should catch up with it a half hour after he turned around.

SPELLBINDER!

Score 10 points for using all letters in the word below to form two complete words:

LAMINATE

Then score two points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters. Try to score at least 50 points.

One possible answer: Nail, mate.

SO YOU THINK YOU'RE SMART

One of the following statements in untrue. You are asked to decide which one. If you don't know, take a guess . . .

1. U. S. Grant is buried in Grant's Tomb.

2. Robinson Crusoe had a pal named Friday.

3. The moon orbits earth from east to west.

Answer: No. 3 is untrue. The moon's orbit is from west to east—if you don't believe it, look it up.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Political upheavals are soon reflected in the stamp issues of the country concerned, so no doubt Rhodesia is already busy on a provisional series (probably consisting of surcharges on the regular issue to proclaim its independent status.

Britain has foreseen this move, and, according to press reports, has announced that any mail from Rhodesia franked with such issues will be treated as if it were unpaid, and will accordingly be subject to postage-due charges.

Seeing that the situation in the country is so uncertain we may expect quite a few philatelic oddities to appear before order is restored.

★ ★ ★

The forthcoming royal visit to the West Indies will be commemorated with an omnibus set of stamps for the thirteen Caribbean Crown Colonies (including British Guiana, but not Br. Honduras). Jamaica, being self-governing, will no doubt have its own set. Two stamps are planned for each colony, the average face value for the pairs being about 25c in Canadian money.

★ ★ ★

A new complication for collectors of current British Colonials has made its appearance in the form of still another type of watermark.

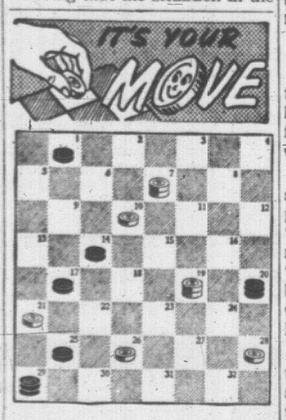

When the first Elizabethan stamps appeared they were all printed on paper showing "Crown and Script C.A." watermark. Some time later the "Crown and Block C.A." paper began to be substituted, the watermark being upright in relation to the stamps.

Now it has been announced that this will be replaced, in some instances at least, with the watermark showing sideways on the sheets.

One of the first countries to be affected will be Barbados, where reprinting of the 1, 4, 15, 25 and 50 cents values will show the altered type of watermark. They will make their appearance sometime in the early spring.

At the Harmer Rook sale in New York three weeks ago, the U.S. 50c Zeppelin Air Mail in a superb plate block of six brought $200. Last fall a Victoria dealer sold a similar item to a local collector (who must now be congratulating himself) for $85!

This checker contest is anybody's game, with both sides having spread themselves thin. But White moves first and his strategy prevails in six moves. How does White nail down the win?

Long-time checker champ Millard Hopper, who originates these problems for our page, gives his solution below No fair peeking.

Solution: White 10—6, Black 1—10, White 25—21, Black 30—27, White 19—23, Black 27—18, White 26—22, Black 17—26, White 31—17, Black 14—21, White 7—14—23—30.

DOOR-TO-DOOR NUMBER TALLY

After you've solved this one, try it on your friends:

How many nines are required to number a row of houses (on both sides of a street) from 1 to 100 inclusive?

It's surprising how many will get the wrong total the first time.

If you don't feel up to counting, guess.

Answer: The total number of nines is twenty.

FRAUD CASE

'Total Stranger' Loaned Sum of $9,973

A service station operator told in central court Friday how he lent $9,973 to a total stranger and received in return cheques totalling $1,700,000.

Reg Graves, 2200 Quadra, was testifying at preliminary hearing of fraud charges against a middle-aged woman, Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place.

Magistrate J. A. Byers indicated he will formally commit Mrs. Naylor Tuesday for trial on all four counts against her.

Mr. Graves said Mrs. Naylor approached him at his business Aug. 4, 1964, and told him he was highly recommended to her by a mutual acquaintance.

TOOK IOU

He said, "She asked me: 'Will you lend me $150 and I'll give you back $250'" on Aug. 6. Mr. Graves said he took an IOU from Mrs. Naylor for $250.

Crown Prosecutor Wally Anderson asked Mr. Graves why he made the loan. He replied, "She just asked me to help her out."

Asked Mr. Anderson, "If I came in to your place today would you do this for me?"

Mr. Graves answered, "Not now, sir."

MORE MONEY

Mr. Graves continued, "She was back every other day . . . to get more money . . . I gave it to her."

Mr. Anderson again asked why he gave money to Mrs. Naylor. Mr. Graves replied, "She said she needed it for some reason she didn't tell me what."

He said Mrs. Naylor gave him a cheque for $1,000 that was to cover what she owed him "and a little bit more besides." He said he never tried to cash any cheques because he had "a sneaking hunch" there would not be enough money in Mrs. Naylor's account to cover.

Mr. Graves testified that he continued to give Mrs. Naylor cash and cheques up to June of this year.

He agreed with Mr. Anderson that "she dropped around, picked up the money and you never asked what it was for."

'NEVER REPAID'

He said that he was "never repaid one penny: not five cents."

But, he said, Mrs. Naylor gave him cheques, at various times, for such sums as $200,000, $400,000, $30,000 and $450,000. The total of the cheques he received, entered as exhibits in the case, is $1,655,645.

Mr. Graves said Mrs. Naylor told him she was going to inherit $999,000 from a "railway estate in Seattle."

Mrs. Doreen Finn, 386 Obed, who said she met Mrs. Naylor a year ago for the first time, gave evidence of loaning the accused a total of $600 of which about $40 has been repaid.

She said Mrs. Naylor "kept asking me to hold off cashing the cheques because the estate was delayed."

Mrs. Finn said that after Mrs. Naylor was arrested and let out on bail, Mrs. Naylor telephoned her and said "The inheritance is no lie. She said she would be around in a week to repay me."

Mrs. Diane Pilotte, 504 Selkirk, said she borrowed money from a bank to loan $1,000 to Mrs. Naylor. Said Mrs. Pilotte, "She wanted the money to get her rings out of hock. . . I felt very sorry for her . . . she was worried her marriage would break up if she did not get the rings back."

Mrs. Pilotte said that when she asked for repayment, Mrs. Naylor insisted on writing her a cheque for $10,000. Mrs. Pilotte said she did not want $10,000 and made Mrs. Naylor write a cheque for $1,000 only.

Jake Spelt, 870 Royal Oak, testified he made Mrs. Naylor a loan of $500 and in return was given a post-dated cheque for $1,000. He said Mrs. Naylor told him she was going to inherit an estate.

She later asked him to delay cashing the cheque and replaced the first one with one written out for $2,000. This too was later replaced with another cheque for $6,000 "the increase to make up for the delay."

Mr. Speelt said he was later given cheques by Mrs. Naylor for $10,000, $30,000 and $50,000. He said she then gave him a cheque for $100,000 and eventually one for $200,000.

Crown Prosecutor Anderson asked him if the escalation had not surprised him.

Replied the witness, "Nothing surprised me by this stage."

WILLIAM TELL MODERN-STYLE ENDS IN DEATH

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—A five-year-old girl who dared her father to shoot a tangerine off her head died early today from a gunshot wound in the forehead, police said.

Officers said Eugene K. van Denburgh, 34, a laborer, told investigators he was examining his new .22-calibre rifle when his daughter, Elizabeth Marie, said:

"Daddy, I'll bet you can't shoot this off my head like William Tell."

Detectives said the girl placed the tangerine on her head and stood about 15 feet away in front of a wooden fence.

When police arrived, they said, the girl was on the ground bleeding from a bullet wound. Van Denburg was booked on investigation of murder.

FROGS HOLD DANCE PARTY ON PILOT

PARIS (Reuters) — Thousands of frogs got loose in a Belgian airliner Friday, causing chaos in the cockpit.

The two-ton live cargo broke free in mid-air and slithered into the cockpit. The frogs leaped around the pilot as he came in to land. Most of them were rounded up later.

Mechanic Would Not Drive Car

Two policemen said Friday night that a car involved in a fatal accident last Sunday should not have been on the road and two auto mechanics said they would not drive it.

They were giving evidence at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Annie Bradley, a 78-year-old Irishwoman who, for the past 18 months, has lived with her daughter in Oak Bay.

Mrs. Bradley died of haemorrhaging and shock caused by multiple injuries, said Royal Jubilee Hospital pathologist Dr. Ross McNeely.

She was struck by a car driven by Barry Neff, 551 View Royal, as she crossed Pandora Street after leaving church service Sunday night.

'NOT SAFE'

Constable Doug Wilson, who examined Neff's car after the accident, said it was "not safe to be on the highway."

Robert Jones, an auto mechanic who inspected the vehicle, said "I myself would not drive that car."

He itemized what was wrong with it; steering that was worn and loose; tires smooth; a brake lining soaked with oil; no windscreen wipers; one headlight that was dim and another held on by tape; and a driver's door that would not stay shut.

William Bridgewood, another mechanic who examined the 26-year-old Neff's vehicle, said he would not test it on the road after having checked it in his shop.

BRAKES ADEQUATE

Both men did agree however that the brakes on the car were adequate to stop it.

Cons. Wilson said that in his opinion anyone driving the Neff car without windshield wipers in the rain and darkness of last Sunday night would be "lucky to see more than a few feet out of the car."

A 15-year-old girl who left the Victoria Gospel Hall only a few feet behind Mrs. Bradley said she saw the Neff car come along at a speed she estimated to be about 30 m.p.h.

Miss M. B. Wallace said she did not see the actual impact when the car hit Mrs. Bradley and her son-in-law, R. N. Grubb, 1865 St. Ann.

THROWN OFF

But, she said, she saw the two victims "on top of the hood of the car. It had slowed down; just about stopped. Mr. Grubb was thrown off. Mrs. Bradley just dropped."

Miss Wallace said both pedestrians stepped out on the road from between two cars.

Mr. Grubb is still in hospital and coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre adjourned the inquest to Jan. 12 when it will continue at the Law Courts.

Power Fails At NORAD Island Base

A power failure at Port Hardy this week knocked out a secondary air attack warning system — but North American security was ont weakened.

North American Air Defence (NORAD) officials at McChord Air Force Base, Tacoma, told the Times that over-lapping protective systems maintained constant guard during the breakdown.

A power loss Tuesday crippled a Port Hardy microwave station which is part of a secondary system set up to warn of approaching aircraft.

However it was only out of service for 14 minutes.

The NORAD spokesmen said the primary continental warning system was unaffected. At the same time a protective warning shield was maintained by airborne radar aircraft stationed over the ocean and by alternate land based radar installations.

The Port Hardy power failure was reported by United States wire services when it was reported to President Lyndon Johnson at Austin, Texas. It was attributed to officials of the Federal Power Commission at San Francisco.

82nd Year, No. 155 ★★★ VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1965 —116 PAGES PRICE: 10 CENTS WEEKEND 14 CENTS

POLLING SCENE in Victoria's only voting station at Victoria Ballroom showed many residents turning out in the early morning. This was the picture at 10 a.m. There are 21 booths in action until 8 p.m. Voting was up over the last mayoralty contest in 1961, officials said, and weather was co-operating. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

Record Civic Vote Likely

Several Issues Hike Interest

Victoria and district residents appeared to be taking a lively interest in civic afairs after voting began this morning.

Encouraged by good weather they were trooping to the polls in what may prove to be record numbers in some areas.

No one can know until counting of ballots begins tonight what is the catalyst firing the enthusiasm of the voters — hospital tax, the fight for municipal office or other issues.

But in Victoria and Oak Bay mainly, returning officers and polling clerks were being rushed in an almost unparalleled manner.

By 11 a.m. in Victoria 2,533 persons had cast ballots. This compared with only 1,761 in the last mayoralty contest four years ago. (In 1963 the mayor was named by acclamation.)

The increase is 43 per cent.

The 21 polling booths were almost constantly in use. Outside the Victoria Ballroom, the city's only polling station, parking was at a premium. Police were on the job keeping cars moving and expecting a long day of headaches.

In Victoria's 1964 aldermanic elections 3,657 voted—just 18.61 per cent of the registered voters.

In 1961, the last mayoralty contest, 10,004 voted which was 49.1 per cent of those registered.

Early Oak Bay Vote 'Double'

Poll clerks reported a large number of problems engendered by voters who complained they were not on the list to vote—but in most cases this applied to new tenant electors who had not registered. Many of them were confused by the enumeration for the federal election in November.

At Oak Bay by 11 a.m. 900 people had voted—almost double the number who had appeared at the same time last year.

Returning officer Ted Hart said, "I've never seen anything like it. You can't get in the building."

He's been involved in Oak Bay elections since 1936. He expects a record to be set.

Oak Bay has more contention than any other municipality or unorganized area in the district. As well as the hospital tax referendum which every other area but Sidney is voting upon, Oak Bay has a referendum on fluoridation.

There are 8,931 eligible voters in Oak Bay. Last year 3,507 voted—39.6 per cent of the electorate.

In Saanich returning officer Gordon Hayward reported the turnout of voters was light in the first few hours but said this is a pattern. Most people in Saanich tend to vote later in the day.

But even with a light vote, all the polling booths were busy.

"Voters are spending more time in the booths—up to five minutes—because there are so many ballots."

He asked voters to come to the polls as early as possible to avoid a jam up in later hours.

The 27,334 voters of Saanich must pick five of 12 candidates for council, more for school board, and consider five bylaws or referendums.

Retiring Reeve First In Line

Voting in Esquimalt before noon was reported steady and improved over the 1963 vote in the number of ballots cast. By 10:30 a.m. 322 persons had voted. (Reeve A. C. Wurtele was first in line, with Mrs. Wurtele.)

Last year the number who had voted at about the same time was 93. In the last reeveship contest in 1963 it was 175.

At Central Saanich, returning officer Fred Durant said the vote appeared "heavier than usual". Reports from North Saanich and Sidney were delayed — apparently no one had time to answer a phone.

Returning officer for Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, Sooke areas, F. J. Willway said voting was moderate, but he too looked forward to a heavy day.

RAMPAGING RIVERS

52 U.K. Counties Inundated

LONDON (CP)—At least 17 of England's 52 counties were inundated today as rivers swelled by 24 hours of wind-driven rain overflowed their banks.

In the Welsh border country the Severn River, Britain's longest, was more than 17 feet above normal and reported still rising.

Warnings of dangerously high tides came from England's east coast, hit by disastrous floods in 1953.

In London, a flood alert was cancelled along the Thames early today when the morning high tide failed to reach Friday's high water mark.

The Thames at Westminster reached its highest level for 31 years Friday. Then the water reached within six inches of the top of the parapet fringing the House of Commons terrace. Boards and sandbags were made ready.

In the Thames Estuary waves lapped the 21-foot high danger mark more than an hour before high tide.

When the tide receded at St. Helier Harbor, Jersey, the body of Paula Huet, 18, was found in an auto. It was believed the auto was blown into the harbor by the gale.

MAN BELIEVED MISSING

No trace could be found of a man believed to have fallen into a swollen brook at Matlock, Derbyshire.

In Yorkshire, floods brought chaos and threatened to leave more than 10,000 persons jobless for Christmas. Nine thousand were sent home at the giant steel works of Steel Peach and Tozer Ltd., Rotherham, after floods forced the plant to close. Production losses mounted to £200,000 ($600,000).

Another 2,000 workers were sent home when flood waters prevented them getting to the General Electric Co., plant in Mexborough.

At Beverley, the River Hull burst emergency dams and

BLASTOFF TIME 6:54 A.M.

Great Chase in Space Starts Sunday Morning

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — With their final redezvous rehearsal a success on earth, astronauts Water Shirra and Thomas Stafford today prepared for blastoff Sunday on man's great chase in space.

Things were moving so well toward the 9:54 a.m. EST (6:54 a.m. PST) launch that the Gemini 6 pilots were expected to take the afternoon off after attending the final pre-launch decision making session.

Forcasters continued to predict near-perfect weather for Sunday and engineers kept up the steady stream of "go" reports for the busy launch pad that only a week ago felt the scorching blastoff of Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell.

Shirra and Stafford spent four hours Friday in a Gemini 7. They carried the simulation through the last big manoeuvre but stopped their make-believe flight about 50 miles away from their imaginary target.

VERY PLEASED

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr., who will be on hand in the Gemini nerve centre in Houston for the real thing, reported he was "very pleased" with the rendezvous exercise.

TORONTO (CP)—The blast off of Gemini 6 from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday will be covered by CBC-TV from 9 to 10:30 a.m. EST (6 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. PST) the CBC said today.

The blastoff, expected at 6:54 a.m. will hurl astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford into a 100,000-mile chase of Gemini 7 for a rendezvous in space.

If the blastoff is delayed the CBC will begin one hour and a half later, the time it takes Gemini 7 to orbit the earth.

"Everything went very well," said astronaut Alan Shepard at the cape. "No problems."

The powerful Titan 2 rocket and its 19-foot Gemini 6 pursuit ship were undergoing final checks today before the start of the final countdown at 3:20 a.m. EST Sunday.

Technicians planned to start fueling the booster a few hours early tonight to make sure it will be ready for an on-time liftoff. A delay of only 100 seconds would push the rendezvous try back from the fourth orbit of Gemini 6 to the fifth.

Officials explained that for every 100-second delay in the launch Gemini 7 would move so far ahead that it would take an extra orbit for Gemini 6 to catch it. If the shot were more than 300 seconds late, Schirra and Stafford would delay the meeting until Monday when they would be in better range of tracking stations.

But if everything goes as planned, Gemini 6 will approach Gemini 7 at 12:34 p.m., five hours and 40 minutes after launch. It would be a space "first" for the United States and bring it one step closer to sending men to the moon.

Gemini 6 will start out at least 1,200 miles behind Gemini 7. For most of the delicate rendezvous manoeuvres, Schirra and Stafford will be relying on radar information and tracking data fed into their own computer.

SPACE MEETING

But when Gemini 6 finally matches the perfect 185-mile circular path of Borman and Lovell in the darkness over the Indian Ocean, the pilots will finish the space meeting by "eyeballing" in on the blinking tail lights of Gemini 7.

If Schirra chooses, he may guide his capsule to within inches of its twin. All four astronauts should be able to see and photograph each other in RUSHED to hospital Friday in Nice, France, was Somerset Maugham, 91. The famed British author, seriously ill for some time, had lapsed into a coma, according to his secretary, Alan Searle. Maugham has long since given up serious writing, spending the last few years at his villa on the French Riviera.

$270,000 Gem Theft In Britain

LONDON (CP)—Two gunmen and an attractive blonde woman handcuffed the owners of a jewelry shop in London's fashionable Mayfair quarter today and made off with gems valued at £90,000 ($270,000). The jewelers were Bermans on North Audley Street. Last month thieves escaped with at least £500,000 of jewelry from a Regent Street shop.

Cong Building Up For Saigon Fight

SAIGON (CP)—A major battle with a battalion of Viet Cong forces appears to be developing close to Saigon, military authorities said here today.

An American spokesman said a multi-battalion force of South Vietnamese troops came under heavy fire from .50-calibre machine-guns and mortars in Go Cong province only 35 miles southwest of the capital.

Aircraft were called in to support the government forces and flew 29 missions, destroying 47 buildings and damaging 29 others the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, there was only sporadic contact today after five days of heavy fighting between Viet Cong guerrillas and South Vietnamese and American troops in the remote Quang Tin province, 355 miles northeast of Saigon.

An official report in the capital said U.S. marines overran heavily fortified Viet Cong positions Friday night and reported killing 74 Viet Cong and capturing 24.

The South Vietnamese were said to have suffered heavily.

TB CRIPPLES HUSBAND

Quiet Dignity Hides Woman's Suffering

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

The woman looked utterly worn out.

On her shoulders she carried a long stick with about 100 fish tied to it.

With a weary smile, she admitted that the load of fish was heavy indeed.

But on her face was written the quiet dignity which many Koreans use to hide their suffering.

The woman's fish were worth 20 to 30 Won each, about 10 cents.

Every two or three days she goes to the country to peddle her fish from Mokpo harbor, and barters it for grain she gets at the village markets.

Her face is well-known in the country," her husband said, "and the fishermen trust her with their wares."

Her husband, a gentle intelligent man, has had tuberculosis for three years.

He is among 400,000 Koreans, a large percentage of them under 25, who are racked with the disease.

Before he got TB, the man had been an engineer for 10 years in an oil company and a shoemaker for another 10 years.

Now he was wholly dependent on his wife, and worried because she had to work so hard.

Although he was obviously in great pain most of the time, he could still express gratitude for the help he and his wife had received through Canada's Unitarian Service Committee.

Besides food and medical attention given the man by the USC, he and his wife had also been "less cold this past winter," he said, thanks to USC help.

By this he meant the flattened out cardboard boxes, packing cases for USC clothing contributions from Canada which were insulating the couple's shack.

In unexpected ways as well as with gifts of food and medical aid, the USC is able to help needy persons overseas.

Your contributions to the Times-sponsored Children of Asia Fund give hope to this couple and others like them everywhere USC aid goes.

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques should be made payable to the Children of Asia Fund.

Contributions are also being received at the main branch of the Bank of Monteral, Douglas and Yates.

A list of donors is published daily in the Times.

NOTHING TO EAT but a cold potato is what faces this little Korean girl for many days in a row. Her mother, whose leg was crushed in a railway accident, sells greens in the marketplace. Both depend on milk and barley, provided by the USC through Times-sponsored Children of Asia Fund, to keep them alive.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

On my desk today, I have a hardy and challenging young magazine produced in heart's-blood, sweat and acid by a University of Victoria undergraduate crew.

Its name is tryste, and for an off-campus price of 25 cents, it offers what I'm firmly convinced is the most stimulating intellectual hotfoot available in this city.

Although bedevilled by a skinny budget and the occasional necessity of studying for examinations, tryste's staff of 14 tackles large projects with arrogant assurance.

For their featured article, the editors cajoled and I expect bullied nine Victoria-based artists, art critics and instructors into a three-hour bout of shop talk which may well be unique of its kind.

The dialogue—a stilted term which by no means fits the discussion—was then taped and ruthlessly edited.

To anyone even casually interested in modern art, this distillation is worth the price of the magazine alone.

It is, however, backed up by several wonderfully sadistic cartoons, a capsule short story by an unidentified student author who has come a long way in his craft, and a tongue-in-cheek book review which pleased me immensely.

There's more, but those samples must suffice.

One warning: tryste is not for traditionalists, and these buy it at their own risk!

Most novel Christmas gift suggestion so far to hand comes from Canadian Red Cross Society, which would like nothing better from 1200 or more of its Victoria friends than a highly-individualized present of a pint of blood apiece.

With the period of stepped-up wassail and consequent erratic driving, it's grimly inevitable that a number of citizens are going to need varying quantities of blood to replace accident induced leakage.

Monday through Thursday of next week, Victoria Red Cross transfusion service hopes to tap the vital flow of donors at Fort Street headquarters and various temporary clinics.

Piercing deeper into the subject, I learn that the average adult has 12 to 13 pints of blood in his tank, and that type percentages for each hundred donors average out like this:

Forty-six have O-type blood; 42, A; 9, B; and three, AB type.

The familiar blood bottle in which the transfusion service stores our vital juice against a time of need will soon be replaced by a plastic bag. This move will do away with the danger of breakage, and the new containers will occupy less space in the refrigerated vans which transport donations to Red Cross depots.

To conclude this pitch, it just could be that the gift of blood becomes a mere loan. It isn't probable, but I'm told it's possible that the sometime donor in vital need of a transfusion could get his own blood back.

McPherson Playhouse proposes to end its splendid program of noon concerts for this year on Friday, Dec. 17, with a treat which I hope not to miss.

This will be a carol service by Uplands School Choir, a group of boys and girls which has quietly been garnering festival and other honors to itself. Not the least of these is the taping of a performance for distribution by Children's Library, to points as far distant as Samoa.

Teacher-choir leader Mrs. Lorna Griffith will conduct, and two outstanding Victoria soloists will contribute their voices to the concert. These are Mrs. Peggy Walton Packard and Mrs. Erika Kurth.

Concert will start at 12 noon, and end at 1, which should make it a natural for weary Christmas shoppers. If, next Friday, you happen to be one of these, why not limp across Centennial Square to the Mac, pay 35 cents admission, and sit easy for an hour of carols by the most angelic voices we'll hear this happy season?

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

HMC Ships Yukon and Sussexvale arrive in port at noon Friday; Beacon Hill arrives 3:30 p.m. Tuesday; Oriole returns 4 p.m. Sunday; St. Anthony arrives 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Police Press City Search For Pair of Armed Thieves

Silk-Stocking Bandit Gets $20 From Store

By DESMOND BILL

City police today are pressing the search for two bandits who held up stores in Victoria Friday.

Police picked up suspects within an hour after each holdup but let them go after questioning.

Two frightened women were threatened by the gunmen but one got mad and called the bandit's bluff. The other woman was robbed.

The first holdup occured downtown in the afternoon when a man walked into Indian Craft Shoppe, 905 Government, shortly before 3 p.m.

Saleswoman Dorothy Hart said she "didn't like his looks. He wore tight off-white pants and a black quilted jacket and he had a cigarette hanging out the side of his mouth."

She asked if she could help him and he asked for a piece of paper. Mrs. Hart thought he wanted to write down a description of some merchandise.

'THIS IS HOLDUP'

But he went to one side and printed a note on the paper, then handed it to her.

It read, "This is a holdup. Don't try to call police. I've got a gun on you."

Mrs. Hart said she has often wondered what she would do if someone tried to rob the store. But she said she cannot account for what she did do when it happened.

She waved the bandit to the front of the store where a woman customer was browsing through the postcards on a rack. She told the bandit, "I haven't much money here. Come up to the front."

He followed her to the end of the counter near the door and she leaned over the counter to him.

"Now git," she shouted at him.

Said Mrs. Hart, "I guess he thought I really meant it. I repeated it. 'Git.' I was shaking; really terrified. He looked at me and opened the door. He looked again and then ran off."

CALL HIS BLUFF

Mrs. Hart did not think the bandit actually had a gun.

"He had his right hand in his pocket but it didn't look like he had a gun. I decided I could call his bluff."

Mrs. Hart said the bandit took the note with him when he ran out. She immediately telephoned police, who picked up a suspect but let him go within minutes.

The second holdup took place shortly after 9 p.m. at Barnes' Grocery, 1611 Bay Street, when a man whose face was covered with a silk stocking robbed Miss Edith Barnes of about $20.

Miss Barnes said she was alone in the store when the thief entered a few minutes after the last customer had left.

Miss Barnes said it was just like the movies. The man walked up to the counter and told her, "Stick 'em up."

She raised her hands over her head.

She asked him, "What do you want?"

"The money in that cash register."

'WANT IT ALL'

She gave him some of it but he said, "I want it all."

She handed it over.

Miss Barnes said the man appeared to have a gun that he partly concealed by pulling the sleeve of his Indian sweater over it. She said she could see the shiny end of the gun barrel.

As soon as the gunman left Miss Barnes locked all the doors to the store and the living quarters behind it and telephoned police. Within a half-hour they picked up a suspect on the parking lot of a Douglas Street hotel.

GOOD EXPLANATION

The man wore an Indian sweater and a tam, he had a toy gun in his car and a woman's stocking.

Under questioning he admitted being at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, only two blocks from the scene of the holdup, shortly before 9 p.m.

But police said the man had a good explanation for the articles in his possession and could account for all his movements in the crucial period. And Miss Barnes did not identify him in a lineup at the police station.

She said "stocking or no stocking I'd recognize him if I ever saw him."

GABRIOLA MAN DIES IN MISHAP

A 42-year-old Gabriola Island man died at the wheel of his car early today.

Merville Edgar was on his way home when he lost control of the car.

It flipped over and came to rest in a ditch beside the island's main road.

Residents in a nearby house found Edgar trapped in the car.

By the time a doctor arrived, Edgar was dead.

An inquiry will be held by Nanaimo coroner Russ Inkster.

'Compulsory Rule Mocks University Freedom Idea'

By BOB DONAHUE

A decision is expected soon on a submission by University of Victoria students asking for non-compulsory attendance at lectures.

The matter has been sent to the university senate.

"It's the principle of the thing," said student president Paul Williamson.

●

"Compulsory attendance at lectures is too much like high school and it mocks the idea of freedom in a university.

"It doesn't mean that students are going to stop attending lectures altogether, but it does mean that if a student can pass a course without attending all lectures he won't fail because of the attendance rule."

●

At the present time the rules of the university state that students must attend 7/8 of the lectures in a course.

However, the rules are rarely applied because attendance is seldom taken by professors.

"This is something we inherited from the University of B.C.," said Mr. Williamson, "and we want to get rid of it."

ROCK-FILL BREAKWATER built by federal government at Oak Bay Marina may be extended past southern tip of Mary Tod Island (background) to provide further protection for pleasure craft in tricky Oak Bay waters. The proposal, being considered by council, would leave a channel for small boats between the breakwater and the island. Total cost of the extension is estimated at $200,000. Ottawa would pay half. ACCUSED CALLED 'LUCKY'

Nicholas Lupkosky was lucky he wasn't charged with assaulting a police officer, Magistrate William Ostler told him in central court today.

Lupkosky, address unknown, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance downtown early this morning and was fined $150.

Court was told he was placed on a $500 bond when convicted of wilful damage in May.

Police said Lupkosky was shouting at a crosswalk on Yates St. and struck one of the arresting officers on the mouth trying to break free.

"You are heading toward being a street rowdy," Magistrate Ostler told him.

"You are lucky the crown did not charge you with assaulting a police officer which would have meant jail."

Thieves Get $12

A break-in overnight at Hocking and Forbes sporting goods, 770 Yates, netted thieves only $12, city police said today.

The window in a rear door was smashed to gain entry.

REPORT READY

Council Gets High-Rise Bid

The controversial high-rise apartment question in Cadboro Bay will come before Saanich council at its meeting Monday.

On the agenda is the report of the Advisory Planning Commission on the application to rezone 10 acres off Haro Road near the university "for high rise apartment and cluster-type complex apartment use."

Council can accept or reject the recommendation of the commission. It is thought likely that a public hearing will be called. The planning commission's recommendation will not be disclosed until the council meeting.

The application for rezoning is from Sherwood Oaks Estates and Bay Meadows Estates. Principals in the companies are realtor Byron Price and lawyer Robert Price.

A similar application two years ago was narrowly defeated at council. The Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association has again protested the move for high-rise apartments as an encroachment on a single-family dwelling area.

The meeting will be the first in the new council chamber apart from the formal opening last Monday.

Thirty-five items are listed for attention on the agenda circulated today.

Naden Honors Retiring Reeve

Ceremonial divisions were held Friday at HMCS Naden to honor Esquimalt's retiring Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

The reeve, a former navy commander, has served 20 years on Esquimalt council—14 of them as chief magistrate.

The ceremony was attended by Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer, Pacific Coast.

It was followed by a reception in the Naden wardroom.

Ask The Times

Q. Is O Canada officially our national anthem? If so, when did it become the national anthem? B.D.D.

A. The national songs of Canada have tended to be O Canada, originally a "chant national" of French-speaking Canadians; The Maple Leaf Forever, formerly used widely by English-speaking Canadians, and God Save the Queen.

The music for O Canada was written in 1880 by Calixa Lavallee, a resident of Vercheres.

Present and mostly widely-accepted words for the song were written in 1908 by R. Stanley Weir, a Montreal exchequer court judge.

O Canada was first adopted as a national song by the Association of Canadian Clubs and other national bodies in 1921, says Encyclopedia Canadiana.

SURPLUS STALL RICHER BY 750 CANS OF FOOD

The Free Food Stall is richer by about 750 cans of food thanks to youngsters who attended a show at the Odean Theatre this morning.

Admission to the two-hour showing of cartoons and comedies, sponsored by the 700 Block Yates Merchants Association, was one or more cans of food.

Over 700 children attended, some bringing them an extra can or two.

The canned food show is the 12th annual held to benefit Mrs. E. E. Harper's Free Food Stall, which provides food for needy Victoria families.

SMALL BIRDS UP TO 75 CENTS

Gobbler Prices Higher

Turkey prices are expected to be a few cents higher this Christmas than last year.

Small turkeys, generally the most popular, were quoted by one retailer today at 73 to 75 cents per pound for eight to 10 pound size. This is for fresh Vancouver Island birds

Medium turkeys (14 ot 20 pounds) were quoted at 65 to 70 cents per pound while those between 24 and 35 pounds were 55 to 58 cents per pound.

Most turkeys bought by Greater Victorians are brought in principally from Vancouver and the Prairies.

One retailer said there once were 100 breeders on Vancouver Island but only 10 to 14 now.

The more popular frozen, eviscerated turkeys were quoted at prices a little less than fresh birds.

One wholesaler gave these prices: six to 10 pounds, 49 cents per pound; 10 to 16 pounds, 49 cents; 16 to 20 pounds, 46 cents, and 22 pounds up 44 cents.

Retail prices will vary but generally are expected to be 10 cents above the wholesale price.

Pioneer's Daughter Mrs. Anker, 77, Dies

Mrs. Edith Evelyn Anker, daughter of a pioneer Victoria family, died in St. Joseph's Hospital early today at the age of 77.

Born in Victoria, she was the wife of Reginald Charles Anker, who survived her at their home at 1258 Balmoral Road.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Creed, came to Victoria in the early 1890s and settled in the vicinity of Fernwood and Pandora Avenue.

Mrs. Anker is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Stanley Cornish and Mrs. Ian MacDonald; her sister, Mrs. Albert Jordan; her brother, John Creed, and four grandchildren, all living in Victoria.

Rev. Angus Cameron of Lundevra will conduct funeral services at McCall's main chapel, 1400 Vancouver Street, Tuesday at 10:30 a.m., to be followed by cremation.

THINGS AREN'T WHAT THEY SEEM to the camera sometimes. Here at first glance is a field of blooms and spear grass. But it's really an array of turkeys, chins tucked in, tail feathers erect and a baleful look in their eyes. The gobbler gathering was at a Langford turkey farm. Birds have been invited to Christmas dinners all over district. Those who "haven't got a thing to wear" have been promised adequate dressing. (Times Photo by Irving Strickland.)

Space Meet Signals 'Go'

Blastoff Set Early Sunday

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—With their final rendezvous rehearsal a success on earth, astronauts Walter Shirra and Thomas Stafford today prepared for blastoff Sunday on man's great chase in space.

Things were moving so well toward the 9:54 a.m. EST (6:54 a.m. PST) launch that the Gemini 6 pilots were expected to take the afternoon off after attending the final pre-launch decision making session.

Forecasters continued to predict near-perfect weather for Sunday and engineers kept up the steady stream of "go" reports for the busy launch pad that only a week ago felt the scorching blastoff of Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell.

Shirra and Stafford spent four hours Friday in a Gemini test. They carried the simulation through the last big manoeuvre but stopped their make-believe flight about 50 miles away from their imaginary target.

VERY PLEASED

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr., who will be on hand in the Gemini nerve centre in Houston for the real thing, reported he was "very pleased" with the rendezvous exercise.

"Everything went very well," said astronaut Alan Shepard at the cape. "No problems."

The powerful Titan 2 rocket and its 19-foot Gemini 6 pursuit ship were undergoing final checks today before the start of the final countdown at 3:20 a.m. EST Sunday.

Technicians planned to start fueling the booster a few hours early tonight to make sure it will be ready for an on-time liftoff. A delay of only 100 seconds would push the rendezvous try back from the fourth orbit of Gemini 6 to the fifth.

Officials explained that for every 100-second delay in the launch, Gemini 7 would move so far ahead that it would take an extra orbit for Gemini 6 to catch it. If the shot were more than 300 seconds late, Schirra and Stafford would delay the meeting until Monday when they would be in better range of tracking stations.

But if everything goes as planned, Gemini 6 will approach Gemini 7 at 12:34 p.m., five hours and 40 minutes after launch. It would be a space "first" for the United States and bring it one step closer to sending men to the moon.

Gemini 6 will start out at least 1,200 miles behind Gemini 7. For most of the delicate rendezvous manoeuvres, Schirra and Stafford will be relying on radar information and tracking data fed into their own computer.

SPACE MEETING

But when Gemini 6 finally matches the perfect 185-mile circular path of Borman and Lovell in the darkness over the Indian Ocean, the pilots will finish the space meeting by "eyeballing" in on the blinking tail lights of Gemini 7.

If Schirra chooses, he may guide his capsule to within inches of its twin. All four astronauts should be able to see and photograph each other in TORONTO (CP)—The blast off of Gemini 6 from Cape Kennedy, Fla., Sunday will be covered by CBC-TV from 9 to 10:30 a.m. EST (6 a.m. to 7:30 a.m. PST) the CBC said today.

The blastoff, expected at 6:54 a.m. will hurl astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford into a 100,000-mile chase of Gemini 7 for a rendezvous in space.

If the blastoff is delayed the CBC will begin one hour and a half later, the time it takes Gemini 7 to orbit the earth.

Record Civic Vote Likely

Victoria and district residents appeared to be taking a lively interest in civic affairs after voting began this morning.

Encouraged by good weather in the morning and still determined when rain fell, they were trooping to the polls in what may prove to be record numbers in some areas.

No one can know until counting of ballots begins tonight what is the catalyst firing the enthusiasm of the voters — hospital tax, the fight for municipal office or other issues.

But in Victoria and Oak Bay mainly, returning officers and polling clerks were being rushed in an almost unparalleled manner.

By 11 a.m. in Victoria 2,533 persons had cast ballots. This compared with only 1,761 in the last mayoralty contest four years ago. (In 1963 the mayor was named by acclamation.)

The increase is 43 per cent.

The 21 polling booths were almost constantly in use. Outside the Victoria Ballroom, the city's only polling station, parking was at a premium. Police were on the job keeping cars moving and expecting a long day of headaches.

In Victoria's 1964 aldermanic elections 3,657 voted—just 18.61 per cent of the registered voters.

In 1961, the last mayoralty contest, 10,004 voted which was 49.1 per cent of those registered.

PHONE TIMES FOR RESULTS

With the intense interest in the municipal voting in the Greater Victoria region today the Times tonight will provide a special telephone service on the results. Polls close at 8 p.m. and first results should be starting about 8:15. Phone number 382-3131.

Early Oak Bay Vote 'Double'

Poll clerks reported a large number of problems engendered by voters who complained they were not on the list to vote—but in most cases this applied to new tenant electors who had not registered. Many of them were confused by the enumeration for the federal election in November.

At Oak Bay by 11 a.m. 900 people had voted—almost double the number who had appeared at the same time last year.

Returning officer Ted Hart said, "I've never seen anything like it. You can't get in the building."

He's been involved in Oak Bay elections since 1936. He expects a record to be set.

Oak Bay has more contention than any other municipality or unorganized area in the district. As well as the hospital tax referendum which every other area but Sidney is voting upon, Oak Bay has a referendum on fluoridation.

There are 8,931 eligible voters in Oak Bay. Last year 3,507 voted—39.6 per cent of the electorate.

In Saanich returning officer Gordon Hayward reported the turnout of voters was light in the first few hours but said this is a pattern. Most people in Saanich tend to vote later in the day.

But even with a light vote, all the polling booths were busy.

"Voters are spending more time in the booths—up to five minutes—because there are so many ballots."

He asked voters to come to the polls as early as possible to avoid a jam up in later hours.

The 27,334 voters of Saanich must pick five of 12 candidates for council, more for school board, and consider five bylaws or referendums.

Retiring Reeve First In Line

Voting in Esquimalt before noon was reported steady and improved over the 1963 vote in the number of ballots cast. By 10:30 a.m. 322 persons had voted. (Reeve A. C. Wurtele was first in line, with Mrs. Wurtele.)

Last year the number who had voted at about the same time was 93. In the last reeveship contest in 1963 it was 175.

At Central Saanich, returning officer Fred Durant said the vote appeared "heavier than usual". Reports from North Saanich and Sidney were delayed — apparently no one had time to answer a phone.

Returning officer for Langford, Colwood, Metchosin, Sooke areas, F. J. Willway said voting was moderate, but he too looked forward to a heavy day.

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China said tonight that Peking is ready for any war that might be "forced" upon the Chinese people by the United States. It repeated an earlier warning that "the war will have no boundaries."

RUSHED to hospital Friday in Nice, France, was Somerset Maugham, 91. The famed British author, seriously ill for some time, had lapsed into a coma, according to his secretary, Alan Searle. Maugham has long since given up serious writing, spending the last few years at his villa on the French Riviera.

Viet Cong Build Up For Fight

SAIGON (CP)—A major battle with a battalion of Viet Cong forces appears to be developing close to Saigon, military authorities said here today.

An American spokesman said a multi-battalion force of South Vietnamese troops came under heavy fire from .50-calibre machine-guns and mortars in Go Cong province only 35 miles southwest of the capital.

Aircraft were called in to support the government forces and flew 29 missions, destroying 47 buildings and damaging 29 others the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, there was only sporadic contact today after five days of heavy fighting between Viet Cong guerrillas and South Vietnamese and American troops in the remote Quang Tin province, 355 miles northeast of Saigon.

An official report in the capital said U.S. marines overran heavily fortified Viet Cong positions Friday night and reported killing 74 Viet Cong and capturing 24.

The South Vietnamese were said to have suffered heavily.

$270,000 Gem Theft In Britain

LONDON (CP)—Two gunmen and an attractive blonde woman handcuffed the owners of a jewelry shop in London's fashionable Mayfair quarter today and made off with gems valued at £90,000 ($270,000). The jewelers were Bermans on North Audley Street. Last month thieves escaped with at least £500,000 of jewelry from a Regent Street shop.

RAMPAGING RIVERS

52 U.K. Counties Inundated

LONDON (CP)—At least 17 of England's 52 counties were inundated today as rivers swelled by 24 hours of wind-driven rain overflowed their banks.

In the Welsh border country the Severn River, Britain's longest, was more than 17 feet above normal and reported still rising.

Warnings of dangerously high tides came from England's east coast, hit by disastrous floods in 1953.

In London, a flood alert was cancelled along the Thames early today when the morning high tide failed to reach Friday's high water mark.

The Thames at Westminster reached its highest level for 31 years Friday. Then the water reached within six inches of the top of the parapet fringing the House of Commons terrace. Boards and sandbags were made ready.

In the Thames Estuary waves lapped the 21-foot high danger mark more than an hour before high tide.

When the tide receded at St. Helier Harbor, Jersey, the body of Paula Huet, 18, was found in an auto. It was believed the auto was blown into the harbor by the gale.

MAN BELIEVED MISSING

No trace could be found of a man believed to have fallen into a swollen brook at Matlock, Derbyshire.

In Yorkshire, floods brought chaos and threatened to leave more than 10,000 persons jobless for Christmas. Nine thousand were sent home at the giant steel works of Steel Peach and Tozer Ltd., Rotherham, after floods forced the plant to close. Production losses mounted to £200,000 ($600,000).

Another 2,000 workers were sent home when flood waters prevented them getting to the General Electric Co., plant in Mexborough.

Red Wings Win

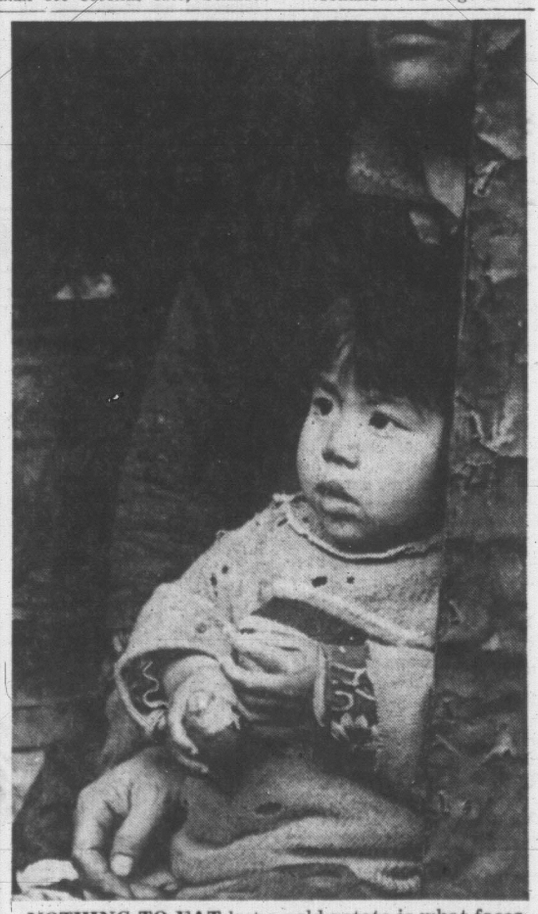

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Detroit Red Wings stretched their winning streak to six games this afternoon with a 4-2 victory over New York that left the Rangers still winless under new coach Emile Francis.

Ab McDonald scored a goal and an assist and Floyd Smith, Alex Delvecchio and Gordie Howe also tallied for the Red Wings while Harry Howell and Rod Gilbert scored for the Rangers.

A crowd of 12,189 at Madison Square Garden saw Delvecchio score the key goal of the game at 6:01 of the third period. The Red Wings were leading 2-1 but were short-handed because of a penalty to Doug Barkley. Delvecchio broke up the New York power play and after a series of passes among Howe and Gary Bergman, he pivoted at the left corner of the net to beat Ed Giacomin.

U.K. Diplomats In Walkout

PEKING (Peking) — Four British diplomats walked out of a formal reception here tonight in protest against remarks on Rhodesia in a speech by Chinese Communist Vice-Premier Ulanfu. Ulanfu accused United States and British "imperialists" of conniving at and supporting Rhodesia's seizure of independence aimed at oppressing and enslaving the Rhodesian African people and menacing surrounding independent African countries.

TB CRIPPLES HUSBAND

Quiet Dignity Hides Woman's Suffering

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

The woman looked utterly worn out.

On her shoulders she carried a long stick with about 100 fish tied to it.

With a weary smile, she admitted that the load of fish was heavy indeed.

But on her face was written the quiet dignity which many Koreans use to hide their suffering.

The woman's fish were worth 20 to 30 Won each, about 10 cents.

Every two or three days she goes to the country to peddle her fish from Mokpo harbor, and barters it for grain she gets at the village markets.

Her face is well-known in the country," her husband said, "and the fishermen trust her with their wares."

Her husband, a gentle intelligent man, has had tuberculosis for three years.

He is among 400,000 Koreans, a large percentage of them under 25, who are racked with the disease.

Before he got TB, the man had been an engineer for 10 years in an oil company and a shoemaker for another 10 years.

Now he was wholly dependent on his wife, and worried because she had to work so hard.

Although he was obviously in great pain most of the time, he could still express gratitude for the help he and his wife had received through Canada's Unitarian Service Committee.

Besides food and medical attention given the man by the USC, he and his wife had also been "less cold this past winter," he said, thanks to USC help.

By this he meant the flattened out cardboard boxes, packing cases for USC clothing contributions from Canada which were insulating the couple's shack.

In unexpected ways as well as with gifts of food and medical aid, the USC is able to help needy persons overseas.

Your contributions to the Times-sponsored Children of Asia Fund give hope to this couple and others like them everywhere USC aid goes.

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques should be made payable to the Children of Asia Fund.

Contributions are also being received at the main branch of the Bank of Monteral, Douglas and Yates.

A list of donors is published daily in the Times.

MAJOR WIN FOR CANADA ON FINANCE CRISIS IN UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada scored a major victory in the United Nations Friday with the overwhelming approval of a resolution calling for voluntary contributions to meet the UN's financial crisis over peacekeeping operations.

The Canadian resolution, co-sponsored by 18 other nations, was adopted by an 88-to-1 vote, with three abstentions, after the Soviet Union, France, the United States and Britain threw their weight behind the proposal.

The almost unanimous approval of the proposal, which also urges that the question of peacekeeping be returned for study to the 33-member UN special committee on peacekeeping, immediately deadlocked the committee on what to do with an Irish draft before it.

The Irish proposal was met with strong disapproval from the Soviet Union and France as well as from a host of other countries, including Canada, because it called for immediate interim financial arrangemennts to pay for peacekeeping costs.

The Irish resolution also would have the authority for peacekeeping financing and decisions placed on the hands of the 117-member General Assembly when the 11-nation Security Council reached a stalemate.

These two points in the Irish proposal are exactly the ones that had brought a split in the world organization on the question of peacekeeping operations which produced a deficit when the Soviet Union, France and a number of other countries refused to pay their share.

Despite urgent pleas from the Soviet Union and a number of other countries, Ireland insisted that a vote be taken on its proposal. Finally, a decision on whether to vote on the proposal was shelved until Monday.

ALBANIA VOTED NO

Only Albania voted against the Canadian resolution. Burma, Nepal and Zambia abstained when the proposal came up for a vote in the assembly's special political committee.

Paul Beaulieu, Canada's ambassador to Brazil and a member of the UN delegation, introduced the Canadian proposal Wednesday in an attempt to prevent a wider split in the UN on the question of peacekeeping.

The Canadian proposal will give the 33-member special committee, of which Canada is a member, a chance to complete its study of the entire question of peacekeeping before the next session of the assembly, when further action will be taken.

It also gave External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken of Ireland and the seven co-sponsoring nations of the Irish draft an opportunity not to press for a vote on their resolution which was certain not to gain the support of the major powers.

Only one major power—the United States — indicated it would support the Irish resolution as well as the Canadian proposal.

Canada felt the solution to the question of peacekeeping would be made more difficult if a detailed resolution such as the Irish draft left the UN member states divided.

Co-sponsors of the Canadian resolution are: Algeria, Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Iran, Italy, Japan, Mauritania, Mexico, Nigeria, Norway, Sweden, Tunisia, Uganda and Yugoslavia.

Vancouver to Get Illuminated Fountain

An illuminated fountain, much larger than those in the Legislative Building lawns here, will be built by the provincial government in Vancouver.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Friday the fountain will be erected on the old courthouse lawn in the downtown area. It will be a monument to the union of the Crown Colonies of Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland in 1866.

Earlier it was announced that the centennial years of 1966 and 1967 (the 100th birthday of Confederation) will also be marked by the province in Vancouver by establishment of a sports hall of fame at Exhibition Park.

Victoria is getting a $7 million museum and archives which is now under construction at Belleville and Government.

Mr. Chant said the new fountain will be designed by his department as was the $45,000 fountain recently built on the south side of the capital buildings here, but the Vancouver fountain will be "much greater."

The minister said several contractors likely will be involved but he did not estimate the cost.

CHINESE CROSS INDIA BORDER

NEW DELHI (AP)—A force of 350 Chinese troops is standing firm three miles inside Indian territory on the distant eastern front, Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan told Parliament today. However, India "will not be provoked to take any rash action against the Chinese at present," he said. Chavan said the Chinese crossed Thagla Ridge on the India-Tibet border Dec. 6 and moved south through the Namkachu Valley to Hatung La Pass.

40 Years Of Service With Gov't

Gordon L. Landon, director of the extension branch of the provincial department of agriculture, retires at the end of this month after 40 years of service.

Mr. Landon, born near Brockville, Ont., jointed the department in 1926 at Nelson, and since then has served under 11 different agriculture ministers.

He and his wife, Violet, were guests of honor at a farewell gathering Friday.

Agriculture Minister Frank Richter presented Mr. Landon with a gold watch on behalf of the government.

"While Mr. Landon was with us many, many years, we are not really going to lose him by retirement," said the minister, "we are merely giving him an opportunity to get on the outside and tell us what is wrong."

Mrs. Richter presened Mrs. Landon with a bouquet of flowers and Allan Littler, chairman of the department social committee, presented Mr. Landon with a wallet on behalf of his fellow employees.

The gold watch which Mr. Landon was presented with was inscribed: "Service to British Columbia 1926 to 1965, G. L. Landon."

Mr. and Mrs. Landon plan to retire to Vancouver.

BENNETT BACK FROM OTTAWA TALKS

More Aid for Education

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Friday he is confident Prime Minister Pearson will make an announcement early in the New Year about increased federal spending on education.

However, the premier, interviewed on his return from the federal - provincial finance minister's conference in Ottawa, said he was not so sure the federal government would heed his plea for increased aid for hospitals and mental health.

Premier Bennett, who is also B.C.'s finance minister, said he and other provincial representatives received no reply from Mitchell Sharp, the acting federal finance minister, when they asked for more federal aid for hospitals.

The premier said the present federal share of hospitals costs is "unrealistic." They now pay 10 per cent and the provinces 50 per cent.

He said a proposal to include mental hospital treatment under federal - provincial hospitalization agreements is to be discussed later by health ministers.

"I'm confident we'll have the full co-operation of the federal government," said the premier.

Mr. Bennett also said there was no doubt in his mind that Mr. Sharp would be given the finance cabinet post on a permanent basis. It was vacated by the post-election resignation of Walter Gordon.

Premier Bennett was interviewed at the Vancouver airport on a stopover on his way to Victoria.
